Mitchell Ware Defends IBI; Blasts Critics

Mitchell Ware, director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Tuesday defended the role of the IBI and criticized those who level unfair attacks at the agency.

"We will not be intimidated by that kind of pressure by some of those in high places who cater to every radical friend in perpetuating them in political office," Ware said.

"We will not be intimidated by that pitiful caricature of a man who wears the mantle of a public official who prostitutes his oath of office," he said.

Speaking at the division 17 of Kiwanis International, meeting near Elk Grove Village, Ware did not name specific persons other than to criticize those who oppose the IBI. He did say he was surprised that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon had "lowered himself" in criticizing the IBI.

Mitchell Ware

WARE INDICATED that the public may hear more about the IBI, since its financial appropriations are now under discussion in Springfield.

A state representative, Rolland Tipsword, D-Taylorville, has introduced a bill to abolish the 16-month-old IBI started by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

"Every once in a while we've taken our lumps but that is to be expected, Ware said.

He pointed to the 97 per cent conviction rate the IBI had out of 243 cases that have gone to trial in the last year.

THE CRIME rate in Illinois went up two per cent last year while nationally it rose 11 per cent. In surrounding states it went up 15 and 16 per cent, he said.

Ware said the IBI utilizes every tool in the law enforcement arsenal and that it has yielded results. He noted the indictment of Fiore Buccieri, the alleged boss of the Chicago crime syndicate.

Buccieri, who had not been arrested since 1946, was indicted by a DuPage County Grand Jury for involvement in a heavy construction equipment theft ring.

The IBI deals with "difficult crime" that local agencies do not have the manpower to cope with, Ware said. These include the murder of horse trainer George Jayne of Inverness, bombings, the Paul Powell scandal, narcotics and dangerous drugs, as well as organized crime.

A former TV newsman, Ware criticized the news media for its handling of the raids the IBI made in southern Illinois last month. Some of the reports were slanted, he said.

Defending the IBI's taking television camera crews on the raids in which explosives were discovered, he said he didn't know if it would be done again but that he did not regret it.

FORTY-EIGHT persons were arrested. However, three Southern Illinois University students who were innocent appeared on national television and were labeled as the chief conspirators.

Ware said Cook County State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan has told him that he wished he had invited television crews along when state's attorney's police raided the Black Panthers apartment where two members of the gang were killed.

Ware said he was glad the IBI had the camera crews on its raids. He later added that reports of newsmen who accompanied the IBI on the raids were accurate but that news reports became distorted by other media men who did not accompany the IBI agents on the raids.

Ware produced letters from radio and television stations agreeing that any misunderstanding was self-inflicted by the news media.

Responding to a recent news report that Ware is apparently the only high state official that requires or accepts money for speaking engagements, he said: "I figured I was worth a little if they insist on me as a speaker."

He noted that members of the IBI speak without fee but that when a group wants the top man they should be willing to pay for him.

WARE SAID he works hard, often until one or two in the morning and was deserving of some reimbursement.

Honorariums have ranged from $100 to $300 for Ware, according to one news report.

In response to a question on whether marijuana was harmful, Ware said there are arguments pro and con.

He said he preferred to reserve his opinion on the subject, after earlier saying marijuana is not harmless.

"The effects are not conclusive that it is harmful," he added.

Ware said there is a movement to undermine the principles of the country by revolutionaries who preach overthrow of the government.

Despite all the changes in society, he said mankind will overcome its problems but that there has to be a commitment by man to respect and abide by the law.

Following Ware's talk, the Kiwanis membership voted to pass a resolution endorsing and commending the IBI and its director.

Ware Commends Elk Grove Village Police

Elk Grove Village has "one of the better small town" police departments in the state, said Mitchell Ware, director of the Illinois Investigation Bureau.

Ware said the IBI has a good working relationship with the local police department, with both agencies cooperating in investigations.

Ware made the comment following a speech before the local Kiwanis Club Tuesday where he urged some 95 Kiwanians to be proud of theri law enforcement agencies.

"You've got a good one here in Elk Grove," he said.

THE VIEW OUT the back window at Harper College is that of the rolling hills just west of Palatine. Between the hills and the college, there's a small man-made lake that shimmers in the spring sunlight. However, you must be awake to appreciate the scenery.

Variety Of Multiple-Family Housing Planned

A variety of multiple-family dwellings — apartments, townhouses and condominiums — are going up in Elk Grove Village.

Nearly 1,500 of these housing units are scheduled for construction in the next year or so in the village, once exclusively a community of single-family homes.

Nearing completion are 448 apartment units in The Terrace apartment complex, located at Kennedy and Elk Grove boulevards. There are currently 300 units in the complex.

The new section will include 144 studio apartments, 184 one bedroom apartments and 120 two-bedroom apartments. Rentals will be $175 monthly for studio apartments, $195 for one-bedrooms and $245 for two-bedroom apartments.

Two swimming pools and a wading pool are included in the complex. The total project, when completed, will include 30 two and three-story apartment buildings.

Four of the five three-story buildings at the Eagles on Tonne apartment development near Laurel Avenue and Tonne Road are completed. Formerly called the Cardinal Court Apartments, the development will include 191 units, 99 one-bedroom apartment units and 92 two-bedroom units.

RENTALS RANGE from $195 a month for a one-bedroom and $245 monthly for a two-bedroom apartment.

Completion will soon be made on the Wild Oaks apartment development at Oakton and Wildwood roads according to builder James Carroll of Elk Grove Vilge.

The development will include 156 units in a two to one ratio of one-bedroom to two-bedroom units, Carroll said. Rentals should start at about $195 monthly, he said.

The first phase of the Village On The Lake condominium and townhouse development located on Biesterfield Road between Route 53 and Arlington Heights Road will be completed this summer. The first phase will include 156 one and two-bedroom condominiums, priced from $18,950 to $31,200.

In later phases of construction, 498 additional condominium units will be built.

The Perrie Grove apartment complex will be built north of Landmeier Road just east of Tonne Road.

THE COMPLEX will include 382 two-bedroom apartments and 212 one-bedroom units in nine four-story buildings, 21 two-story townhouses, a swimming pool, tennis courts and clubhouse.

The first phase of construction, which will include 338 apartments and recreation facilities, is scheduled for completion in the spring of 1972. Rentals will start at $210 monthly for a one-bedroom and go to $285 monthly for a two-bedroom townhouse.

A sixth multiple-family development — the Broadwalk Apartments is planned near the medical center at 752-756 S. Arlington Heights Rd. It will include 144 units.

Approval of a zoning variation for the development was delayed in April by the Elk Grove Village Board at the request of the developers.

Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village president, said yesterday he feels multiple-family dwellings, "of types we're getting, studio, one and two-bedroom, are a good tax rateable for everybody, most importantly, for the schools and parks.

"They produce a good real estate tax base, with relatively few children for the schools and parks to service. We may need a little higher police service, though I haven't checked that out."

HAROLD HARVEY, president of the Dist. 59 school board, said that "Normally, one and two bedroom apartments don't generate large numbers of children for the district. Three-bedrooms generate more, but still usually less than a single-family home.

"One and two-bedrooom apartments normally generate more tax base than children."

Harvey said that for three-bedroom apartments, the ratio between the two is not so great, but still greater than for a single-family home.

He added that this healthy tax base from multiple family dwellings might not hold true in cases of very high land use, as with a 10 or 12-story apartment building.

The policy of Dist. 59, he said, is "not to encourage or discourage multiple family units. Let's just say we can live comfortably with one and two-bedroom units, not taking into account traffic, esthetics or other problems."

Volunteer Service Members

Volunteers who are registered with the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County will be receiving letters in the next few weeks requesting donations to keep the bureau in operation

The Volunteer Bureau's board decided during its meeting Wednesday to appeal to the about 1,500 people who had been served by the bureau. The critical financial situation of the bureau, which has been continuing for months, has reached a peak according to board members

The bureau owes its executive director two months salary, totaling about $1,000, and other outstanding bills with no income guaranteed

Rod McClennan, president of the board, suggested a mandatory registration fee for volunteers who use the bureau and then are assigned to volunteer jobs Members of the board disagreed, saying a registration fee might discourage volunteers

As a common ground, the board decided to ask for voluntary donations from the poeople who have been placed through the bureau in its more than two years of operation.

TREASURER Robert Kaczmarek reported no income could be counted on for the month of May, and some bills remained to be paid from April Although the bureau requested payment from the Arlington Heights United Fund on a monthly rather than a quarterly basis, Kaczmarek reported the request had been turned down The fund will be giving a total of about $3,000 to the bureau.

Another suggestion for raising funds for the bureau's operation was to sell memberships in the bureau to the public. Although some people don't have the time to volunteer, perhaps they would support the bureau's efforts to place volunteers in schools, parks, libraries, hospitals and other agencies, board members said.

A special committee was formed to study the various suggestions and will report at the June meeting of the board.

Kaczmarek also reported he and another board member had approached a foundation for a grant and a decision on the request will be made at the end of the month.

Attending the meeting were the superintendents from elementary school Dists. 15, 25 and 57. All of the districts receive volunteers placed by the bureau.

Another committee was established to study the availability of retired people for volunteer jobs. The committee will investigate the types of volunteer assignments available to retired people and how to contact these potential volunteers.

1,500 Canoeists In River Marathon

The 14th annual Des Plaines River canoe marathon is expected to draw up to 1,50 canoeists Sunday for a 25-mile race from Libertyville to Foundry Road, north of Des Plaines.

The race, billed as the largest canoe marathon in the country, is designed to kick off Clean Streams Week in Illinois and demonstrate the need to improve the condition of this area's rivers and streams so they can be used for recreational purposes.

According to Ralph Frese, race chairman, the interest shown each year in the marathon indicates a demand on the part of area citizens for cleaner rivers and streams.

Frese said more than 620 canoes and kayaks and 1,200 paddlers competed in the event last year. The marathon is sponsored by the Cook County Forest Preserve District and the Illinois Paddling Council.

RACE OFFICIALS will begin launching canoes in heats of 10 boats each at 8 a.m. Sunday at Oak Spring Road in Libertyville, Frese said. Canoeists can enter the race for a $2 fee at the launch site up until 11 a.m., he said.

Frese said the racers will compete for prizes in each of 11 categories for boys, girls, men, women, mixed couples, racing canoes, kayaks and one-man canoes. The first four winners in each category will receive trophies and all entrants will be given a special marathon patch when they complete the race, Frese said.

"The marathon dramatically emphasizes the citizens' desire for activity of this kind. This is why we get such a fantastic turnout in this area and it points out why we need to have the streams cleaned and made fit for uses like this," he said.

"Where else can you show me 1,200 people going down a trail without leaving a mark on the environment? Compare this to hiking or cycling where 1,200 people can trample a lot under foot. With motorcycles and trail bikes it's even worse," he said.

ACCORDING TO FRESE, Illinois rivers and streams hold "a tremendous recreational potential." With little open space left in the Chicago metropolitan area, he said, it is more important now than ever before to clean up waterways that could be used for recreation.

Frese suggested spectators who plan to watch the race can get a good view of all the excitement either at the starting point in Libertyville or at Dam Number 2 at Hintz Road and the Des Plaines River in Wheeling.

George Dunne, Cook County Board president, is expected to attend the 5 p.m. awards ceremony at Dam Number 2, Frese said.

Elk Horn

JCC Project Worthwhile

by TOM JACHIMIEC

The Elk Grove Village Jaycees have hit upon a worthwhile project.

Known as "Do Something," the project is a means to make it as simple as possible for residents to get involved in their community.

The Jaycees have taken the time to catalogue the community's need for volunteer services for persons wishing to donate their time to help make the village a better place to live.

The Jaycees have a list of 50 organizations that need volunteers. All you do is match your interest with one of these organizations by dropping the Jaycees a note.

THE JAYCEES have even provided a postage free post card attached to a list of the organizations needing help

Gerry Smiley, of 1156 Cheltenham Rd., is in charge. Calls should be made to 593-1077 during the evening hours or on Saturdays.

Returns are coming in slow, says Gerry, noting that he has received 100 replies this month but is hoping for 300 to 400

Most of the persons replying are interested in municipal related agencies such as civil defense, environment, planning, and community services, reports Gerry

That's surprising, he says, expecting to see a lot more residents volunteer for scouting.

TEENS ALSO are needed, he says. An attempt to reach them may be made through the high school as Smiley says he plans to meet with Bob Haskell, the principal, to discuss it.

Smiley says President Nixon encouraged the Jaycees to take on such a project last year at a convention in St. Louis "There's a need for more involvement in local affairs by the citizenry," said the president.

The program spread to other states where local chapters picked it up

Some of the agencies that need help include Operation Headstart, summer migrant program, consumer fraud, human relations commission, the library, Little City, St. Alexius Hospital volunteers, and Dist. 59.

The Kiwanis club recently was treated to some inexpensive but fine entertainment this week by "The Brothers and the Sisters" folk singing group that has been together under Brother James Bush for about two years now.

They do an excellent version of "Let the Sun Shine In," as the members of Kiwanis' north and northwest division found out Tuesday.

MEMBERS INCLUDE Kris Borgias, Tom Uhlarik, Barbara Santowski, Diane Rasmussen, Bob Garibaldi, Susan Dean, and Mary and John Campbell.

Mary, 17, a senior at Elk Grove High School, is the lead vocalist.

Jack Pahl found himself in a rather unusual situation for a suburban mayor. While riding in a police squad as part of a ride-along program the department has instituted, Pahl got the job of directing traffic at Nerge Road and Ill. Rte. 53 while his driver assisted an accident victim.

The first car that Pahl had to deter from making a turn onto Nerge Road belonged to Wilbert Nottke, mayor of Itasca.

So there we had it, the mayor of Elk Grove Village giving the mayor of a neighboring town an order.

JACK LAUGHED when he told of the incident but also noted that directing traffic on Rte. 53 is really no laughing matter considering the speed limit is 65 miles an hour Neil Cooney wants to know why there are no members on the village human relations commission. He brought the matter up a while back at a housing commission meeting.

"Should I bring it up?" asked Neil of the other members. They agreed he should bring it to the attention of village officials.

Teen Job Hunt Under Way

Prospects Are Gloomy This Year

by NANCY COWGER

With the end of the school year less than a month away, the annual teenage summer job hunt is under way. But prospects are not favorable this year.

Russell Anslow, Schaumburg Township youth counselor, has been working for several weeks on a special service he provides for young people in the township, a "job clearing house." Thus far, the outlook is not good, he said.

Anslow send out letters to 160 businesses in the township last week. He asked them to whenever possible, hire young people for the summer. Any job that can be done by a young person can be filled by his office, he feels, and it is strictly a public service. Neither the teenager nor the employer is charged.

ANSLOW SAID he realizes it may not be fiscally sound to create jobs for teenagers. But he feels it is good business to hire the young for many jobs, relieving more expensive employes for more important work.

As of yesterday, Anslow had received four replies to his letters, with the potential of six or seven jobs among them.

Anslow also plans to leave flyers advertising his service at grocery stores and other places of business in the township. During the week of June 14, he will "hit the homeowners," distributing leaflets encouraging residents to hire a teen to cut grass, babysit, wash windows or do any other work around the house.

Last year, Anslow placed about 70 teens in jobs through his service, although many of them were "one-shot deals," such as cleaning a basement or putting up screens, he said. There were about 120 teenagers competing for the work, he said.

ANSLOW HAS distributed application blanks at the junior high schools, and placed posters at the senior highs inviting young people to fill out forms at his office.

When a potential employer calls him for an applicant, said Anslow, he goes through his files seeking someone with the proper qualifications. He calls the person who most closely fills the job's needs, and tells them who to contact for an interview.

Anslow leaves the question of salary and hours to be settled between the employer and the applicant. His function is to get them together.

This year jobs are hard to find, said Anslow. "It is an employer's market, and they can afford to be choosy."

In the past, jobs have been especially scarce for people still in school, since they promised only three months or less of employment. This year even graduates will have trouble, he said.

But the high school dropout is in the most difficult spot, he said. No one seems to want him. Anslow just finished a two-month search for a job for a dropout.

ANSLOW RECOMMENDS grocery stores and companies with seasonal work, such as landscapers, as the most likely employers. But checking with management, factories appear to offer more hope, at least for persons over 18 years of age.

Grocery stores do not really have a major need for summer help, said Tom Byrne, manager of the National Store at Golf and Roselle roads.

There is no real increase in business for grocers during the summer, said Byrne, so there is no need to increase the work force. At his store, there is already a sufficient force of part-time workers, who have worked Saturday or night hours during the school year. They jump at the chance to increase their hours when regular employes go on vacation he said. Byrne said any openings he will have will merely represent normal turnover. Fall is his major part-time hiring season, he said, when young people quit jobs as school reopens.

CHRIS COLLIE, personnel director at Motorola, Inc., on Algonquin Road, said his firm will be hiring summer workers although he does not yet know how many. He hopes to hire more than he did last year, but not as many as he did two years ago. He already has a large file of applicants, he said. The teens began coming in last January, and applications hit a peak around Easter, although he still is accepting them.

For factory jobs, the applicant must be 18 years old, said Collie, because of state law. But Motorola does have a large office staff, and accepts 16 year olds for office work. Collie added that his firm tries to provide as many jobs for teens as possible.

Construction companies are off-limits to the teenager. A representative of Campanelli Brothers said his firm hires only union help, and applicants must be at least 19 years old.

The older teen or young adult has a few options in his summer job hunt, with manufacturing firms and vacation seasons in offices. But for the younger teen, the chances are pretty slim, as Anslow put it.

20 Years Of Night School – Now A Degree

Tonight will literally "cap" 20 years of work for a Hoffman Estates man.

Jack Mayer, 233 Kingman Ln., will go to Orchestra Hall tonight to receive his Bachelor's Degree in mechanical engineering from Illinois Institute of Technology. Tonight's cap-and-gown ceremony culminates 20 years of night school classes, of staying up late poring over books, while working at a full time job and rearing a family.

The Mayers were married 20 years ago, and Mrs. Mayer said she does not know how she'll react, having for the first time a husband who is not in school. Earning his degree has been a family project, she said. The children have grown up with a healthy respect for keeping quiet during evening study hours.

Because this has been in a sense a family affair, the whole family will attend commencement tonight to see the husband and father receive his degree. "Jack wanted to just take it in the mail," said Mrs. Mayer, but she said she wouldn't have let him skip the occasion for anything.

AFTER COMMENCEMENT, the Mayers will hold a celebration in their home. It will be a chance to start renewing some of the friendships they have lost, said Mrs. Mayer, when they were too busy with homebork to keep pace with a social life.

The Mayers have lived in Hoffman Estates 12 years after moving from Chicago. While they lived in the city, Mayer took a few courses at Wright Junior College. But 99 per cent of his classes have been at the institute, said Mrs. Mayer.

Mayer works in Batavia, as a mechanical engineer for Dunbar Kappel, a manufacturing firm. He has held a mechanical engineering license the past five or six years, said Mrs. Mayer, and receiving his degree will "mean nothing to him as far as his job is concerned." For the past few years, he has been attending college only because he had gone so far, it seemed unthinkable not to finish, he said.

Now that he is receiving his degree, Mayer does not plan to continue his education. He will begin catching up on the things for which he has never had time. There have been a lot of books printed in the last 20 years, and Mayer looks forward to reading many of them.

OTHER THAN enjoying his new leisure, he has few plans for his "retirement" from school.

Mrs. Mayer said their life to this point has been "different" from that of anyone else they know. The nights Mayer went to school, usually two or three each week, he would leave in the morning and not return home until 10 p.m. or later. Driving from home to Batavia, and from Batavia to the institute, and then coming home took his full day. The other nights were devoted to study. His three children, John, 19, Kathy, 17, and Jack, 12, learned early to plan their activities so as not to interfere with their father's study hours.

It is not the kind of life Mrs. Mayer would recommend to anyone else, and neither would her husband, she said. He tells his own children, if they plan to go to college they should finish school before marrying, she said.

But Mayer's accomplishment is one in which his whole family takes pride. When they go to Orchestra Hall tonight, they plan to be the most enthusiastic cheering section there.

Village Opposes More NIPC Advisory Power

A resolution opposing a bill that would strengthen the advisory powers of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The legislative bill, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, (R-Arlington Heights), would force local municipalities to submit various zoning and annexation plans to NIPC before going ahead with them. NIPC would have no legal power to enforce its decisions on those plans. Its conclusions would be purely advisory

Among other things, municipalities would have to submit plans to NIPC for any boundary changes, for any public works projects costing more than $500,000, and for any zoning changes that involve tracts of 10 acres or more.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S opposition to the bill was approved at Monday's board meeting by a vote of 5 to 1, with only Trustee Richard Monroe voting against it. Commenting on the bill, Monroe said, "It's time someone did some planning on a regional basis. I think it would be a good idea to have someone look at things on a regional basis."

Other board members, including Mayor Robert Teichert, did not agree, Teichert said that the bill, if passed, would mean that "even if we just want to annex a house, we would have to go to NIPC."

In a memo to the board, Teichert said, "Regional planning is certainly necessary, but I find it difficult to believe that these specified local activities require regional coordination. Mandatory review of this nature by NIPC would appear to be an interference with home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals."

Trustee Donald Furst, at one time the village's representative to the regional planning agency, commented, "If NIPC is going to get involved in small things, they won't have time to plan. On a broad concept they do a fine job."

Trustee Kenneth Scholten termed the proposal "unwieldly."

THE RESOLUTION approved by the board sai in part, "whereas such mandatory review would appear to be an unnecessary interference of municipal home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals, now therefore . . . the bill does not appear to be in the best interests of our municipality and should not be enacted into law."

NIPC is a regional planning agency for six Northeastern Illinois counties. The group, sponsored on a cooperative basis by the state and by local governments deals with planning on a regional basis. Members of NIPC come from both the state and local governments.

Trailer Park To Die In Year

Arlington Heights' only licensed mobile home park will die within the next year.

A hearing on the revocation of the license of the Golf-State Mobile Home Park, 1675 S Arlington Heights Rd., was held this week by the Arlington Heights Village Board

After the hearing, the board decided to allow the park's owner one year to try to sell the property for a use other than for a mobile home park The park includes about 25 trailers and is located on the east side of Arlington Heights Road, north of Golf Road

During the hearing, Village Atty Jack Siegel said the village, county and state have inspected the park and reportedly found inadequate sanitation facilities, inadequate water supplies, litter and debris. He said the state had notified the village if it did not take action to revoke the license, the state would step in.

AFTER CONSIDERABLE discussion, the village board and the property owner agreed to a one-year time limit on trying to sell the property. He also agreed not to increase the number of mobile homes parked at the site and to sell the property for use other than a mobile home park. He said he had been trying to sell the property for months.

An agreement between the owner and the village will be drawn up and is scheduled to be presented at the village board's next meeting.

The trailer park is the only one in the village which must be licensed. The mobile home park at Arlington Park Race Track does not come under local and state licensing standards because it is used only for employes of the track and is legally not a public trailer park.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

North's six no-trump is a slight overbid since 16 opposite 16 only add up to 32 However, it is the type of overbid that wins in the long run if declarer knows what he is doing

West led a club which he felt was the lead least likely to help declarer East won with the ace and promptly returned a heart The moment of truth had arrived at trick two

South knew that East would lead the heart whether or not he held the king, so a finesse would be a 50-50 proposition He wouldn't need the finesse if spades were going to break 3-3, but that is only a 36 per cent chance Thus, the finessse appears to be the better way to try for 12 tricks

If you have looked at the East-West cards you will see that the finesse is wrong and spades don't break. However, South justified his partner's confidence by making the hand anyway.

He refused the finesse because there was an extra chance if he did That chance was to find the king of hearts and the long spades in the same hand

After taking the ace of hearts, he simply cashed all the clubs and diamonds making sure to win the last trick in his hand Everyone was down to four cards North held four spades: South three spades and the queen of hearts and poor West has had to throw away the king of hearts or a spade

Make Your Home Burglar Proof

Home burglaries, which traditionally increase during the spring and summer, are preventable

While no dwelling can be 100 per cent burglar proof, individuals can use some safety precautions that will provide some measure of safeguard for their homes

Law enforcement officers generally agree that the following measures will help deter burglaries.

—If you're moving into a new home, don't give your keys to strange contractors or servicemen. Keys are easily duplicated for later entry.

—Valuables should be kept in a safe deposit box, and you should record them along with the serial numbers where possible

—Never leave your garage door open if you leave your home — even for a short while An open garage door invites burglars

—If you leave your house at night, leave a light or lights on.

—If you're going away on vacation, inform your police department and your neighbors —Cancel deliveries of newspapers, milk and mail while you're away.

—Preserve the normal appearance of your home while you're away by not pulling all the shades and blinds and having the grass cut.

—Extra door locks and chains are good becaues the noise a burglar might make trying to break the lock will keep him out.

—If you have solid doors, install "peep-through sights" so you can see who is knocking before opening the door.

—Separate your house keys from your car keys when you leave your car for servicing or in parking lots.

—Be certain windows have strong locks.

—A large, noisy pet will deter burglars.

And if your house is still vulnerable to break-ins, consider installing a security system. The cost for installed security devices varies from a low of $150 to several thousand.

Devices that can be installed vary from window foil and door switches to sophisticated motion detectors, wall penetration detectors, invisible photoelectric beams for spanning wide areas and simple do-it-yourself smoke detection equipment.

Do-It-Yourself

What generally keeps a good hammer or hatchet from lasting almost forever is a broken handle If the tool is a good one and has served you well there is no point in parting with it because the handle is broken

Refitting it with a new handle is not something casually done, not if you wish it to remain the tool it was. Do not use the handle off some other tool. Do not buy the first handle you happen to find in the hardware store. Shop for an exact replacement. Remember that the tool was good because head and handle were matched and balanced

Consider weight as well as size and shape when you buy. Specify that you want a handle for a hatchet rather than an ax, or for a specific type of hammer.

Examine the new handle for flaws Check the grain It should be straight

DON'T EXPECT a perfect fit when you put the old head on the new handle You will find that it goes down on the handle just so far and that's all. Don't force it When it has gone as far as it will without forcing, mark the point and remove the head

With a wood rasp take away a small amount of wood at that point. Work slowly and take away a very small amount at a time Keep refitting and filing until the handle fits the eye of the head so that wood touches the interior surface all around

Once the handle is perfectly fitted it will have to be wedged Some handles have slots already cut for wedges. If you use wood wedges, pre-cutting the slots is necessary Metal wedges cut their own slots.

If you can find wooden wedges or cut them from the old handle the results will be better. These can be fit to size and smoothed easily. Metal wedges are best used for tightening an old handle that has become loose.

Drive wedges in gently. Too much pressure too quickly may split the wood. A long slim wedge is better than a short, fat one

With the wedging done, cut away the excess and file it so that it is flush with the top of the metal head.

Seal the handle to protect it, otherwise it may absorbe moisture and become warped Several thin coats of shellac or varnish are ideal Do not paint the handle Paint hides cracks that eventually cause trouble (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dems Hit On Vote Action

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, chairman of the Illinois Election Laws Study Commission, has criticized Senate Democrats for failing to take action on legislation clarifying 18-year-old voting procedures in the state.

The Supreme Court ruled that 18-year olds could vote only in federal elections and Congress has proposed an amendment which would extend the suffrage to them to vote in all elections is not ratified.

"There is a good possibility that it will not be ratified by the necessary number of states in time for the 1972 elections," Graham said.

"Therefore, I introduced a bill that would bring Illinois election laws into all elections. It must be ratified by 38 states before taking effect.

Graham has introduced legislation which would bring Illinois laws into conformity with the U.S. Supreme Court decisions allowing 18-year-olds to vote in the event the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution which would allow conformity with the decision. The passage of such a bill is imperative to give local election officials guidance in how to handle the registration and the printing of ballots and the administration of the election laws with regard to the 18-year old voter," he said.

Graham said Democratic opposition to immediate passage of the bill this week "guaranteed to the voters of this state massive confusion at the 1972 general election in the event that the federal amendment is not in effect by that time."

He said Democratic defeat of the bill was "another piece of evidence indicating the callous disregard of the Democratic machine for the plight of local election officials who want and need guidance from the state in order to avoid confusion and to give statewide uniformity to the administration of election laws."

In related action, Graham announced that a series of bills which would consolidate election dates in Illinois has been referred to a subcommittee for further consideration, rather than risking defeat.

"These bills would require that all municipal, school, road district and township elections be held on one day, the third Tuesday in April, and thereby reduce voter confusion and save the taxpayers the cost of numerous separate elections," Graham said.

He said there currently are more than 1,600 taxing districts in the state which require election of officials and that costs of judges, polling place rental and other necessities makes duplicate dates too expensive.

Harper Board, Senate Unit To Meet

The Harper College board agreed Wednesday night to send its negotiating team back to meet again with a team from the college's Faculty Senate.

After a two-hour closed session, chairman Milton Hansen read a brief statement requesting that the board committee meet with the Senate team.

He asked the board's committee to report to the full board at the next board meeting, scheduled for Thursday, May 27.

The decision followed a rejection by the Faculty Senate and the full faculty of a proposal presented by both committees.

According to reliable sources, the proposal was rejected by overwhelming margins in both groups.

Negotations have been in progress since late March, when the faculty presented its initial proposal. Lee Owens, Harper teacher and a member of the negotiating team, reported then the Senate team was seeking a nine pr cnt salary increase.

In addition, he stated his team was seeking to increase starting salaries of a teacher with a master's degree to $9,600.

Two days later, Jessalyn Nicklas, board member and chairman of the board's negotiating committee, asserted the total increase in salaries would be much higher if the faculty's proposal were accepted.

Hansen, who also serves with Richard Johnson on the board committee, commented after the meeting that the report at next Thursday's meeting would be important for the progress of negotiations.

Contracts have not yet been sent out to faculty members for the 1971-72 school year, as no agreement has been reached.

The Faculty Senate's negotiating team is composed of Harold Cunningham, William Schooley, Frank McClintock and Owens. Martin Ryan, president of the Senate, Joseph Clouser and Tom McCabe serve as a back-up committee.

In attendance at the meeting was Edward Kalish, a former Harper teacher who was not retained two years ago and is co-plaintiff in a $350,000 lawsuit filed against the college.

THIS YEAR'S LATE comer, your 1970 property tax bill, will soon be in the mail. More than two months behind schedule Cook County began sending bills yesterday to suburban areas. Mailing should be done by mid-June, clearing the way for a first penalty date of July 15. The latest bill differs sharply from last year's punched card. It now is designed to be read optically by a computer.

Urge Communities Unite For CATV

Northwest suburban communities should join forces to effectively meet the challenges posed by cable television (CATV).

This was the concensus Wednesday night of five CATV experts participating in a panel discussion before the Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC). Meeting in the Park Ridge city hall for the regular montly session, representatives from among the conferences' 15 member communities heard spokesman for virtually every viewpoint on the industry outline problems and potential legal ramifications of CATV.

Despite divergent opinions on many issues, most of the experts agree cooperation among communities and setting standards and franchising operators was the best insurance towards providing optimum service.

The NMC itself was suggested as a likely organization to coordinate efforts by individual communities in this area.

"Don't do it alone," stressed Roland A. Fenz of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, an independent agency set up by Congress to assist nonprofit television stations.

HE SUGGESTED uncoordinated efforts by neighboring communities in franchising and operating CATV stations could lead to inadequate service and needless duplication.

Robert A. Brooks, vice president of J. C. Barnard and Associates of St. Louis and a recognized CATV consultant engineer now serving as a technical adviser to the Illinois Commerce Commission, strongly urged community leaders to consider "interconnection" possibilities with neighboring municipalities as a means of proving better service.

Though panelists were generally in concert on the need for intercommunity coordination, there was disagreement on matters of regulations and required performance levels.

Fenz argued there was a growing need for a wider range of service than currently is being offered by CATV operators.

"The need for many, many more channels in the area of public service is an absolute necessity," he said. More efforts to provide programming such as government affairs and educational broadcasts are vital, he said. And he warned against limiting CATV to profit seeking organizations.

"Right now we think a nonprofit organization could do as well if not better than a profit making organization," Fenz said. He further encouraged communities to adopt what he termed a "total service" concept requiring that operators make CATV available to everyone, even the indigent.

ROBERT E. McAULIFFE, president of the San Simeon Corp. of Chicago, which currently has applications pending before several Northwest communities, challenged Fenz' contention as being economically unrealistic.

Throughout the discussion most of the panelists rejected the idea that CATV was a public utility.

However, Fenz in response to questioning from the audience asserted "while it isn't a utility, it certainly is a monopoly."

But other panelists generally agreed that the fact CATV was not a public necessity and that it involved high business risks, removed it from the classification of a utility.

The fifth panelist, Richard R. Zukowsky, a Crystal Lake attorney currently representing the Illinois-Indiana Cable Television Association, explained that the ICC currently was conducting hearings to determine if it had any jurisdiction over CATV.

PRIOR TO THE open discussion each panel member gave views on aspects of CATV with which he was most familiar. All panelists pointed out the potential of CATV was virtually immeasurable.

Fenz predicted, "Cable systems for communities are going to be the communications center for all levels."

The panel was organized and moderated by WJJD radio personality Mark Edwards.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is it possible to contract syphilis without sex? I have had many of the listed symptoms but the only place I could have gotten them would be a contaminated glass or something of that nature Each symptom has been in the correct chronological order for the disease progression but it could easily be coincidence I have been worrying about this for the past seven months I have never had any type of sex with anyone

Dear Reader — Yes, it is possible to become infected with syphilis without having sexual relations, although it is not very common. The germ that causes the disease can be transmitted in fluid such as saliva The germ, however, will not live long outside the body

Amorous kissing with all that entails is one way of transmitting the disease. It is possible under ideal circumstances to transmit it from drinking glasses and bottles The chances, however, that you have acquired syphilis, if it is true that you have not had any sexual relations with anyone is relatively remote

You can find out by having a blood test done through the venereal disease section of either your county or city health office It would not be necessary for you to give your name In fact, all such clinics are confidential For young people, the parents need not know anything about it and the health office does not divulge any information about anyone they see - young or old

Dear Dr Lamb — I have a decision to make which is very hard for me I have a mole on my left cheek that has been there since I was a small girl (I am now 67). It is unsightly and the last few months it has grown some. It is about a half-inch in diameter. My doctor wants to take it off soon. Should I let him or have it taken off by a specialist or should I let it remain? He said he is certain it is not cancerous

Dear Reader — Any mole any place on the body that begins to change in size or appearance should be removed. The only way to tell if it is cancer or not is to remove it and look at the section under a microscope This also enables the doctor to tell whether or not all of the tumor has been removed in case it is cancerous If it is removed, your scar should be almost unnoticeable It is not a very difficult procedure. You should let your doctor go ahead and do what he has recommended

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

Few U. S. coins prior to 1892 can claim a circulation tenure unmarred by at least one type of die variation. Practically every denomination experienced one major and several minor corrections or errors before being discontinued.

Not so with coins of the Barber head series issued from 1892 to 1916. The dime, quarter and half-dollar all with the same Liberty device held up pretty well during a fairly crucial period in American history. And save for World War I, the design could have continued unchanged for at least five to 10 more years.

The design contained all of the right elements, properly proportioned and arranged in a manner that left no doubt who issued the coin. It is strictly American in every sense of the word and many collectors and curators, foreign and domestic, consider the Barber coins among the most attractive of all U. S. currency.

Charles Barber left nothing to the imagination, even to the point of commingling controversial components, such as six-point and five-point stars. He bridged the gap between those in government who preferred one star over the other without allowing room for argument from proponents of either.

The six-pointed star is from English heraldry and the five-pointed star is from French heraldry. Both are of Roman origin but in American history they serve only as designative symbols of no interpretable heraldic value.

So Barber decided to play it safe by using both. Without breaking tradition, he placed 13 six-pointed stars around the obverse device. But above the eagle on the reverse. Barber substituted 13 of the five-point variety as called for in the design of the Great Seal of the United States.

Secondly, he replaced the familiar obese bust of Liberty with a delightfully feminine profile of strong characteristics that met with the approval of shopkeepers and customers alike.

At this point, Barber had everything going for him. He had taken nothing for granted and he had executed perfectly his concept of an appropriate design for a coin of the United States. Its success during a 25-year service period depended entirely on the skill of the die sinker and ultimately the press operators.

From all indications they, too, were on their toes. The mint director never found it necessary to make a change in the design and the production line craftsmanship never allowed even the slightest malfunction during the coining process.

The last half-dollars struck in 1915 and the last dimes and quarters struck in 1916 were identical in every respect to the first of each denomination struck in 1892.

Coins of the Barber series were struck in Philadelphia, Denver, New Orleans and San Francisco mints. In a total of 73 pieces representing a specimen for each year from each mint, only six of the half-dollars are valued at less than $100 apiece in uncirculated condition. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Parade Of Boats, World's Largest Canoe Race Set

A parade of boats on the Chicago River and what is billed as the "world's largest canoe race" will highlight the metropolitan area's observance of the sixth annual Clean Streams Week, May 23 through May 29.

In an effort to buoy public support for its drive to clean up polluted waterways, the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) tomorrow noon will sponsor a floating procession of several dozen boats from the Chicago river locks downstream to Harrison Street and back.

Boats participating in the parade include the Army Corps of Engineers' 'North Central,' the Chicago Department of Public Works' "James J. Versluis' and other craft owned by industry and government.

The Cook County Forest Preserve District, in cooperation with the Illinois Paddling Council will hold the 14th Annual Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon Sunday, beginning at 8 a.m.

Predicting 1,000 participants and 700 canoes, forest preserve officials claim the race is the biggest in the country. The 25-mile course extends from Oak Spring Road to Dam Number Two, located 2½ miles north of Des Plaines on the east side of River Road.

MSD and the Forest Preserve District are among hundreds of government agencies nation-wide officially observing Clean Streams Week.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and the Cook County Board of Commissioners recently approved proclamations designating next week Clean Streams Week.

Dennis Hull To Instruct Skaters

Don't be misled by who you see skating on the ice this summer at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. It's not a mirage.

It really will be Dennis Hull, Chicago Black Hawks star, working as an instructor in the Summer Hockey School sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Park District.

The park district did have a little pull in latching on to Hull for the summer program. Gene Ubriaco, director of the school and coordinator of the program, is a former Hawks player who currently serves as hockey coach at Lake Superior State College, one of the outstanding hockey schools in the country.

DENNIS HULL

HULL WILL be part of a five-man team of instructors. Although he will not appear at the ice rink five days a week, he will work as a guest instructor on a regular basis at specific times each week.

Skip Thayer, head trainer of the Black Hawks, will also be one of the five instructors. Ubriaco will be bringing two others from Lake Superior State to round off the instruction team, Ron Mason, assistant director of athletics and hockey coach at the school, and Don Muio, a junior and member of the varsity hockey team.

The Ubriaco school will be open to boys 7 to 17 years old in 10 weekly sessions from June 14 to Aug. 21. Each class will be limited to 35 students.

Daily sessions will include two hours of ice time with the instructors and one hour of lecture and films. Throughout the remainder of the day, hockey students can take part in the other recreational activities at the Sports Complex, such as swimming, gym, public skating and exercise.

Boys will be divided into age groups for their skating times. Following each full week of instruction, actual hockey games will be held on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Cost of each session is $35 per student.

A TOTAL enrollment of 1,200 boys is anticipated for the summer hockey school. The closest hockey school outside of Rolling Meadows will be in Rockton, Ill., making the local program the only one being offered in the Chicago area during the summer. Similar hockey schools in other areas cost a weekly fee ranging from $65 to $135.

The park board last month approved a total appropriation of $18,500 for salaries of instructors in the hockey program. At that time, park officials estimated a gross revenue of $40,000 from the hockey school, if the school enrolls the full 1,200 boys.

Registration for the Ubriaco Hockey School is being taken at the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Expect Motion To Appoint Village Manager

A motion to appoint Daniel T. Larson as village manager in Hoffman Estates is expected from Trustee Edward Hennessy at the first June village board meeting.

"I'll make the motion," Hennessy said, yesterday.

"I don't anticipate any resistance," he added. "Anyone who might resist won't say so publicly.

Mayor Frederick Downey, rumored to oppose the appointment, said, "no comment" when asked about Hennessy's intended motion.

"This is the first I've heard about it," Downey said, adding it has been his uncompromised practice never to discuss board action concerning personnel before action is taken.

UNDER ILLINOIS statutes, village officials have a right not to comment on a matter regarding the status of employes.

Downey, in accords with state statutes, could also be a one man vote blocking the appointment of Larson as village manager, said Edward Hofert, village attorney.

"We're going to wait a week to clear the channels," Hennessy added, when asked why the motion will be delayed. The village board will not meet Monday, May 31 because that date is a legal holiday.

Hennessy also wants to be sure there are no stumbling blocks in the ordinance for appointing a village manager.

LARSON HAS been serving as administrative assistant to the village president since February, 1970.

"I think he's worked hard for 15 months," Hennessy said. "He's covered a great many things, litigation, public works, annexation; and God knows with the water and sewer problems we've had."

"The board has used him as a constant go-between and for communications between the attorney and the board," he added.

Larson's attendance at village board meetings and most village committee meetings was also noted by Hennessy.

Rock Play Monday At Elk Grove High

"Tommy" a rock play, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Elk Grove High School as one of the activities during Humanities Week at the school.

The play was written by Elk Grove High School student Scott Pruitt. It is based on a rock musical developed by "The Who," a rock music group.

Casting of students is not complete.

Pastors To Discuss 'The New Morality'

The Rev. Ruppert Lovely, pastor of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Palatine, and the Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, will debate "The New Morality" June 1 at Elk Grove High School.

The debate will take place at 9:45 a.m. before Elk Grove High School sociology students. It will be the second time the two ministers have debated the topic at Elk Grove High.

Last spring, they discussed "Morality Today — Is There A Sexual Revolution?" before some 200 high school sociology students.

At that time, Rev. Lindstrom expressed the belief that moral law is written into everyone's individual nature and that God gave all a commandmnet against immorality.

Rev. Lovely stressed the spirit of love and the danger of proclaiming any one attitude as the ultimate truth.

Women Denied Equal Rights

Organized and otherwise, militant and mild, women in increasing numbers are chopping away at innumerable kinds of discrimination which deny them full status as "first class" citizens.

The drastic changes taking place in life for women today provide added impetus to efforts aimed at ending inequities in the treatment of women under law.

Women's health has improved, their life span extended, and rising levels of education have made them potentially better qualified for skilled and professional positions. As modern technology eases the operation of a household, millions of women have embarked on lifetime careers along with marriage and family. Since 1960, families have increased by 15 per cent but the number of families with a working homemaker increased nearly 50 per cent.

There are now more than 32 million women in the U. S. labor force; it is apparent that marriage alone is no longer the answer to a full, creative life for many women.

These changes in our society have made indefensible the continued existence of inequities, especially in the unevenness of state laws. These include discrimination against women in making contracts, engaging in business, establishing guardianships, disposing of property, and jury service. In some states, women serve longer prison sentences, in others they must achieve higher admission standards to educational institutions.

Since 1923 women have petitioned Congress for an Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution which would resolve the question of their equality under the law. They came closer to success than ever before last year when the amendment did win House approval but was defeated by 67 votes in the Senate. Supporters are guardedly optimistic of passage by the 91st Congress.

Even if Congressional approval is forthcoming, however, the struggle for constitutional protection will have just begun; the requirement for adoption by at least 38 state legislatures might take as long as 10 years to complete.

Redress for women is past due, however. Some legislative relief during the interim must be provided.

Rep. Abner Mikvah, D-Ill., has introduced a bill (H. R. 916) incorporating recommendations of the 1970 Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities. Currently before the House Judiciary Committee, the Women's Equality Act would correct some of the specific inequities for women under the law.

Mikvah's bill would eliminate sex discrimination in public facilities, public education, and in the sale, rental or financing of housing as well as in the provision of brokerage services. It would apply equal pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act to women in executive, administrative, and professional positions. Women would receive equalized treatment under the Social Security, Internal Revenue, and Family Assistance Acts.

The bill also would authorize federal grants to any state Commission on the Status of Women to study denial of equal protection of laws within the state, private discrimination against women, and enable steps to insure equal opportunity and equal participation.

Women are nearly a half-century behind blacks and other minority groups in achieving constitutional protection. This can be realized only by amendment, and we urge its adoption by Congress.

But in the meantime, women should not have to wait another decade for a measure of economic equality. We support Mikvah's bill and urge Congress to approve the Women's Equality Act.

The Other, 'Quiet' Revolution

Amid the often raucous clamor of America's young people for revolutionary changes in our society, there is another revolution taking place. It is quieter, but immensely significant. It is the work of a group of Americans who have experienced — and caused — more changes than today's young people can comprehend.

They are the 20 million Americans, over 65 years of age, who helped America grow from a gangly adolescent among nations to the most powerful, complex and industrialized country in the world. They participated in a thousand changes as teachers, engineers, factory workers, doctors, scientists, farmers and businessmen.

Within their lifetime, they have embraced everything from the coming of the horseless carriage to the first man to walk on the moon. They built the first radios and flew the first airplane. They developed the wondrous machines, materials and systems that are an indispensable part of modern life.

And today they are engaged in a quiet revolution to change the role of retired Americans. They are revolting against being shunted aside, against attitudes that deny them opportunities to use their energies and talents as full participants in our national life.

Through such organizations as the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association, with over 2½ million members, they are making their voices heard in state and national legislative councils and demonstrating their continued abilities in a host of community and national service programs.

May is Senior Citizens' Month, an appropriate time to reconsider whether a man, or woman, should be forced to retire at 65, or any other arbitrary age. History abounds with evidence that creativity and contributions follow no clock or calendar. Discrimination due to age is a social phenomenon that merits far greater attention than it has received.

America's older citizens prove it wrong and wasteful as they pursue their revolutionary exploration of the frontier of retirement. They are demonstrating that retirement need not — must not — mean a withdrawal from life.

The Search For Solutions

by ED MURNANE
State Editor

Illinois citizens who waged a successful fight for a new Constitution last year and who have been arguing for other major reforms in the governmental process in the state are facing a perplexing problem right now that may not have a good solution.

For years, constitutional reformers have argued that one of the serious shortcomings in Illinois is the proliferation of local government units.

Because of restrictive debt limitations in the 1870 Constitution, local government bodies were severely limited in the services they could provide to their citizens.

Cities and villages could raise only so much money and the most urgent demands on that money were public works projects, police protection and other basic necessities.

As a result, people who wanted other services were forced to create new government agencies — special taxing districts — to get those services.

So we in Illinois have school districts, park districts, fire protection districts, mosquito abatement districts, forest preserve districts, sanitary districts, library districts and a multitude of others designed for special purposes.

It's not a good system for many reasons, among them the confusion it creates on the part of the residents of various areas and the highr taxes caused by duplicated administrative costs.

A suburban taxpayer who will be receiving a tax bill very shortly will find as many as 10 or 12 special districts to which he will pay money this year. In many cases, he will be paying for administrators and clerical help which, if combined, would cost far less.

The new Constitution makes it possible for special districts to consolidate, merge or dissolve but there would be many problems created if any of them tried to do so and it's not too likely that any existing districts will cease operations with their responsibilities absorbed by another district.

The question that faces the legislature now, and must surely trouble reformers, is this: How do you provide the leadership and fill positions in all these districts without thoroughly confusing the voters with even more elections and without creating a host of patronage positions?

Obviously, the most responsive governing body for each of these taxing districts would be an elected body, one which must carry out the wishes of the people or face defeat at the polls every few years.

But just as obvious is the fact that the voters cannot be expected to cast intelligent ballots if they have to elect every person who is responsible, in some way, for the voter's tax dollar.

The ballot in Illinois already is too long, there are too many elections, and the turnout in most local elections is so low that the voters are saying in their own way that they are not really concerned about electing all their officials.

The alternative to election of all these people is appointment and that, of course, opens another can of worms that can be even more serious.

Political appointments, in most cases, are handed out to people who belong to the same party as the person making the appointment. That's the spoils system, and it's been around so long that there is no way it is going to change.

Under the new Constitution, there are created two major state-wide boards for which the legislature must decide how to select members. They are a state election board and state board of education. Each will have major responsibilities in Illinois and the members will be important people.

So how should they get on the boards? Through elections? Through appointment? Who should make the appointment?

These are among the more serious questions that the legislators must resolve while implementing the Constitution and, based on the kinds of political appointments we've seen in Illinois in the past, plus the lack of voter interest in most elections, it seems there is no way for the state to come out ahead on the issue.

Hardhats Make For A Hard Life

by LEE MUELLER

While the recent antiwar upheaval in Washington again stirred public resentment against the long-haired, hippie-type image, the other radical element of our society — the hardhats — is not doing so well, either.

"My kids are ashamed to tell their friends that I'm a construction worker," explained a father of two Louisville, Ky., St. Xavier High School students. "They apparently think as little of hardhats as some of my pals think of longhairs."

The observation was confirmed recently by a newspaper reporter cleverly disguised as a construction worker on holiday. Wearing flared trousers, a wide-lapeled blazer, collar-length hair and a hardhat, I sat quietly in the Louisville airport, waiting for my plane to New

Special Report

York.

(As I think on it, the hardhat itself was quite nice.) When you wear a hardhat, you won't worry about falling flowerpots or someone hitting you on top of the skull with a brickbat. It was a white football helmet without ear flaps.

(The hat was a gift, actually. Big Al Schneider (say it Snee-der), a huge, steaming hulk of a man who is building most of downtown Louisville, gave it to me. "This will keep the flies off," he said, preparing to guide some visitors through the construction site of his new riverfront hotel complex. This was not exactly true, as will be shown.)

Unable to pack the hardhat in my suitcases at the motel, I decided the best way to get it home was to wear it. So I sat there with my hardhat on, chatting with a friend, when I attracted my first fly.

The fly was in the hair of a young man with a flowing beard. (For some arcane reason, flies prefer head hair to chin hair.) He walked past us, turned and inqured, not politely:

"Say, aren't you a little out of uniform?"

"Out of uniform?" I responded, asking for it.

"Yeh. You ought to be wearing white socks to match your hat," he said, giving it to me. It was, as it turned out, the kindest slur of the day.

Boarding the plane, I entered the coach section which was already practically filled. The specter of the hardhat apparently struck fear into the hearts of many, because the place became quiet, very quiet. There were many young people aboard, New York hippie types, the very worst type if you happen to be a hardhat.

The silence was broken with a series of shouts. "Here come the pigs!" from the back. "Watch out for those falling rivets!" from the middle. "Keep moving, Mr. America," from the girl I started to sit down beside.

I removed the hat and sat down anyway. "You know," she said, "without that hat, you look almost human."

In New York, the girl and I decided to share a cab ride into Manhattan. The driver looked at me and then at my hat, saying nothing as he put our bags into the trunk.

There was a fly in the cab. It buzzed the girl's hair, my hardhat and then landed on the seat beside the driver. He smashed it with his clipboard (Whap!) and turned on me.

"You think you're a smart guy, don't you?" he said, not really asking.

"Huh?" I said, responding with the cultural accent I always employ during highlevel conversations.

"Smart guy," he hissed. "Somebody ought to take that hat off your head and beat you with it. Think you're funny, don't you? (Censored) hippies!" The driver, a bald, snarling fellow, grabbed his steering wheel and jerked the cab toward East 73rd Street. It was a quiet ride home.

The corner of East 73rd Street and First Avenue is populated each spring by a group of hippie-type kids who sit around and drink soda pop and call each other, "Man."

After the hackie practically threw my bags on the street, I picked them up and started walking toward my apartment building. The kids, some of whom I knew, said boo and hiss.

Outside my apartment building are some garbage cans. Anyone desiring a practically new, slightly soiled white hardhat is welcome to look for one there among the flies.

They probably won't mind. I certainly don't.

Bid Rejection Stirs Protest

Attention Board of Directors, Arlington Heights Memorial Library:

The Thursday (May 13) edition of the Herald carried an article concerning your turning down the low bidder for cleaning carpets in the library.

I consider it improper for you to solicit bids and then not accept the lowest qualifying bid. I dought that it was a condition of the bid to furnish proof of having done a job of equal size.

I consider the awarding of a contract at a price 20 per cent in excess of the low bid a gross injustice to the taxpayers of Arlington Heights. If this is typical of the Board's actions, a taxpayer's watchdog committee should be formed.

Had you been as concerned with the quality of the service and the protection of the taxpayer's investment before soliciting bids as you were in reviewing bids, I am sure each of you could have adequately written performance specifications including indemnification which would have eliminated the problem.

The objections to the Wheeler firm cited in the Herald, namely size of job and not doing other jobs for the library, are pure fabrications and not valid reasons for rejecting the low bidder. If that logic were to prevail, all business would be restricted in growth, and competitive bidding would be a sham.

Actions such as yours are one of the principal reasons taxpayers are rejecting bond issues and tax referendums at a record pace. We are proud of our library, but hopefully not foolish in the administration of it.

Assuming you are willing to accept this as constructive criticism, I would expect that you will find it possible to reconsider your action.

More Highway Hassle

In reply to letters in Fence Post regarding torn-up roads throughout area: Aside from the time and turmoil involved in trying to steer a car around and through holes, detours, blockades, and heavy machinery, I have also had to replace shock absorbers and one tire because of road conditions, I hope the paper can do something to help.

'A Great Source'

As out-going council legislation chairman for Arlington PTA Council, I would like to publicly thank Ed Murnane for his "Just Politics" column and all his other articles. I think he has done a tremendous job — much needed. He has always been kind and considerate when I have called for information.

I thank you also for having a man of his calibre on the paper. I hope you find one as good to replace him.

I have found your paper to be a great source of information on legislative matters.

Merchants As Guards

The amount of shoplifting has grown to such proportions that I decided to write a note about it in hopes it will help.

It is not our desire to create an atmosphere of suspicion and make every individual feel guilty, but we must all try to curtail this activity or we shall all suffer higher prices and crabby clerks. We all want everyone to enjoy our store and feel free to browse around, but please help us. If you know of people who are stealing from us, please let us know. I have a feeling that a very few are causing this trouble and if they were controlled we would find the problem not nearly so big.

It would be such a great tribute to our town to wage a campaign against shoplifting so that merchants could spend their time in being of service to the customer instead of a guard.

No 'Silly' Subject

Who can argue with the sense of trying to preserve some natural beauty and scenic area in Illinois? But the tragedy lies in the key point of the editorial (May 11) on the bills for scenic rivers and highways — protecting this beauty won't cost the taxpayers anything!

Yet I suspect the bills will die for lack of public support. How sad — when we realize how many millions are spent every year by taxpayers to destroy nature and scar the countryside with so-called "progress."

The state seems to find plenty of money to pour concrete and pile bricks in the name of "public interest" but nobody gives a damn for the simple — and REALLY important — values in life.

I suppose there were some snickers when the Herald editorialized on such a "silly" subject as scenic rivers and highways, but I for one am glad. My disappointment is the realization that too few people will care or understand what it is you're trying to say. Be assured I at least will write my legislator.

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) —Many students in the process of graduating from high school and their families are scrounging around today for money to pay college expenses looming ahead

For some June graduates the computer may have an answer, or partial answer, to that financial problem.

Have you lived on an Indian reservation for at least six weeks? Or, is your last name Murphy, Anderson or Leavenworth?

If so you may be eligible for part or full financial aid, details of which can be found in the computer data bank maintained by Scholarship Search, a New York company Banks around the country are signing up with this company as a public service gesture and also to ease the pressure for low interest college loans in a time of tight money

Millions of dollars in scholarships, grants and loans are available each year through various private and government organizations. Yet many scholarships go unused because students and their counselors do not know they exist since some are awarded on the basis of where you live, ethnic origins, vocational preferences, social or religious affiliations and the like.

Two years ago three young New York men-Steve Schlessinger, Leonard Sauson and Charles Beaghan-decided to program a computer to ferret out scholarship information Six months ago they went to David North & Associates, Inc., a management consultant firm in New York, to see how to set a broad base for the operation

David North suggested banks. Since May 1, 35 banks with more than 600 branches around the country have signed up with the service. Seventy other applications are pending and 400 are expected to be in the scholarship research business by mid-summer. American Fletcher National Bank of Indianapolis had 2,000 applications in the first 10 days, according to North The Western Pennsylvania National Bank of Pittsburgh ran out of application forms just handling its own employes.

The applicant goes to a bank with such a service and fills out a five page questionnaire. He gets back a computerized printout suggesting scholarship or other college financial aid for which he may be eligible and details on how, when and where to apply for it. For a fee of $20 each applicant receives a minimum of 10 "leads" to financial aid. No charge is made if the computer fails to provide at least 10 scholarship or grant items.

Grants ranging from $100 to full tuition, board and room are in this data bank. Donors include unions, fraternal organizations, foundations, local, state and federal agencies, military auxiliary organizations, industrial groups, corporations and educational institutions.

Financial need is not a deterrent in qualifying.

For example, an American Indian living in New York state and desiring a career in agriculture can apply to Cornell University for a tuition grant. Any student with the surname "Leavenworth" can apply to Yale for a $900 annual tuition grant thanks to a fund established by a Yale graduate interested in perpetuating his family name.

Area Realtors Explore Pollution Problems

Mother Nature took something of a verbal beating at last week's meeting of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

The attack came from George Travers, director of environmental information for the Commonwealth Edison Co. He discussed electric power and the pollution problem at the Des Plaines session.

Travers said the utility plans to have several new generating units in operation by this time next year, to meet increasing demands for electric power. He added that this year's reserves are low, but that the company estimates the supply to be adequate for the summer.

Turning to environmental problems, Travers said, "If you use any kind of energy, you cause pollution. When you make as much energy as we do, you cause a lot of pollution." He said the company currently uses the equivalent of 26 million tons of coal a year in its facilities.

Citing moves by Commonwealth to reduce pollution, he said the company is switching to fuel other than coal in its operations. "We plan to double our capital investment in the next five years," he said. "Of this $5 billion total, $200 million will be spent for pollution control."

Scare tatics have raised misleading questions about pollution, according to Travers. He said the Commonwealth Edison Co. has been adding heat to Lake Michigan for years, with no adverse effects. Radiation is also a phoney issue, he said.

Moving on to the subject of common fallacies, Travers said people often have the mistaken idea that power companies are "bad guys." He said this could not be true, because if the community fails, the company fails.

Said Travers, "There is a fallacy that Mother Nature is in balance. At the conclusion of his speech, he was presented a copy of "Under All is the Land," a book depicting natural beauty in the United States, by Arthur Pipenhagen, board vice president.

by CARLTON SMITH

And don't you wish you'd believed our crystal ball seven months ago, when we said the growth funds were ready to start growing again? That was our forecast in mid-October, when some of the stronger funds begin outperforming the market by a good margin during recovery rallies.

Now one of the fund-watching services reports on 1971 first-quarter results. The average for all growth funds: A gain of 16.5 per cent in the three-month period — roughly double the rise in the Dow-Jones industrial average.

The top 25 funds posted gains for the three months ranging from 27.5 to 50 per cent.

The rebound hasn't been restricted just to growth funds, "Mutual Funds Scoreboard," a quarterly report providing performance figures on 564 funds, headlines the news that the mutual funds have finally erased their generally heavy 1970 losses. For all 564 funds, the median was up 13.6 per cent for the three months.

Mutual funds, however, haven't entirely recovered from the 1969-70 bear market. The median fund was still 7.8 per cent below its pre-'69 level.

There's a suggestion here that the performance funds are by no means dead. "Scoreboard" editor Yale Hirsch notes the presence among the top 25 of many "aggressive funds which did exceptionally well during the bull market, but were clobbered in the ensuing bear market."

The more aggressive funds, high bouncers, have a long way to fall to get back to earth again. Now they seem to be on the up-bounce once more.

There are, for example, six "older" funds on the list, going back to 1967 or earlier. In the roaring bull year, the six averaged a gain of 55.5 per cent. But gains were mostly wiped out by 1969-70 losses, ranging from 40 to 65 per cent, and they still show a net loss.

It isn't always true, however, that you've got to be a loser on the downside after riding the elevator up with one of the star performers. At random, we've checked out three performance funds that have been good to shareholders at the end of four years of ups and downs.

All three were among the top 10 funds in 1967. Fund A, ranked No. 4 that year by the "Scoreboard," saw share values increase 100.4 per cent. Fund B was ranked No. 7 with a gain of 89.9 per cent. Fund C was No. 8 with 89.5 per cent.

Significantly, none of the three is on the list of the top 25 funds for the past quarter. Have they turned conservative? Well, yes; and early enough to hold their losses down during the bear market. One actually showed a 2 per cent net gain in 1970.

Mutual fund investors are always asking, "How do you pick a fund?" Check past performance data and find one that's had even reasonably good gains in good times, and then has managed to hold down losses in disastrous years like '69 and '70.

When a fund shows a substantial net gain at the end, as the three above do, chances are pretty good that the manager knows his business. No, we're not going to identify the three; we're not in the business of touting specific funds.

Rigid Standards Set For Carnivals

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

Carnivals come to town every summer and occasionally even a circus How safe do you feel riding the ferris wheel or sitting in the bleachers watching the circus?

In most Northwest suburban communities the carnivals must meet local safety and health requirements and cannot open until they pass inspections

But despite inspections, not all local officials think the carnivals are safe. Sverre Haug, building commissioner in Rolling Meadows, said, "They're dangerous I'd sooner not see any carnival in town They have such old machinery; they leave wires laying around "

Rolling Meadows has two carnivals a year, Haug said He inspects equipment for safety standards before they open. The carnivals are also subject to health inspections if food is served.

Richard Dawson, environmental health director for Palatine, said the biggest problem with carnivals and circuses is knowing ahead of time that they're coming.

WHEN HE HEARS one will be in town, he sends village regulations so the carnival can comply with local requirements The village generally has two or three carnivals a year and last year had a circus, the first in ten years.

Dawson said the building department makes safety inspections of rides and equipment and he inspects food facilities The police in Palatine also regulate the type of games that can be offered by the carnival

Mount Prospect police handle carnivals in a similar fashion The building, fire and health departments also send out inspectors before a carnival opens.

"We're quite forceful. The carnivals must comply with our regulations or not open," a spokesman in the Mount Prospect village clerk's office said.

In Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Wheeling health and safety inspections are also mandatory.

THE DES PLAINES health officer noted that food stands at carnivals must meet the same code as local restaurants do. "We want to protect restaurant owners since the food stands take business away from them," she said.

Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove, and Hanover Park are not as rigid in carnival inspections as the other communities.

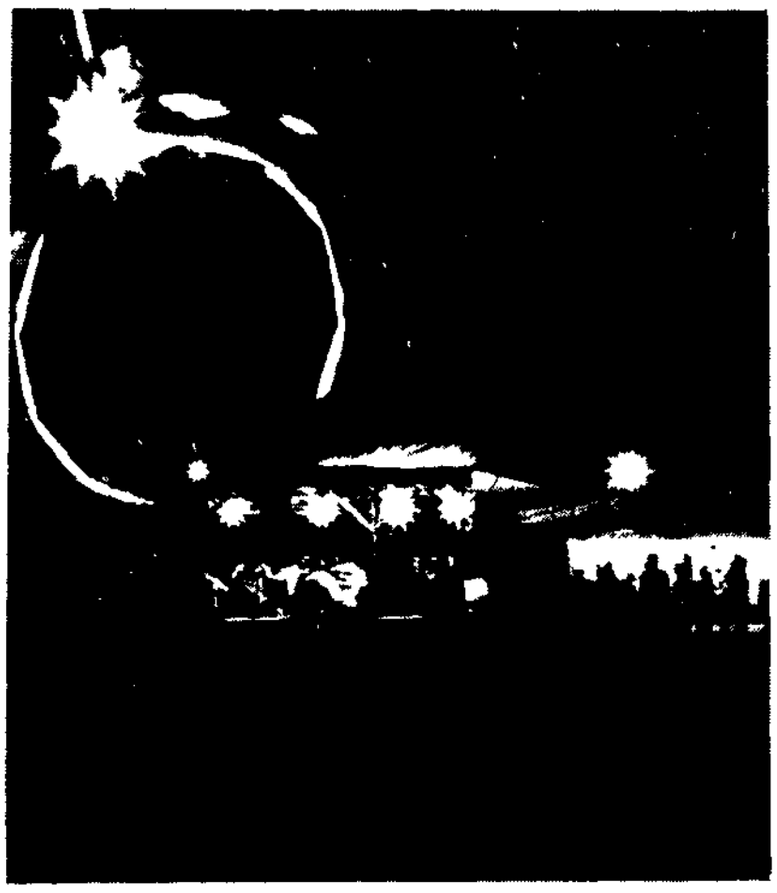
Elk Grove Village requires that the carnival have proper insurance and suggest to carnival operators that they have their equipment inspected, but the village doesn't have required inspection by its officials, a spokesman in the village clerk's office said.

If food is involved, Elk Grove does a health inspection.

Schaumburg village Clerk Sandy Carsello said no inspections are made by the village since the two carnivals that come to town every year are on private property. "We've had no complaints," she said. Health and food inspections are made.

BUFFALO GROVE has no local ordinance, but expects carnivals to comply with state regulations. Fire, police and health inspections are made by local officials.

Hanover Park has four or five carnivals a year and they must get a permit through the mayor's office. However, they are not subject to inspections unless there's a complaint, Mayor Richard Baker said.



CARNIVALS sponsored by service organizations or businessmen are a frequent site on summer weekends in the Northwest suburbs. To ensure that carnival equipment is safe, most local communities require health and safty inspections.

Senior Citizens Of Suburbia

Their Motto: Be Active

Mrs. William Hinneberg at her ceramics class.

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(Third in a series)

Murray Tyler, 80, moved from New York to live with his daughter and her family in Palatine.

He misses the ocean and the salt water fish but "there are other things which compensate for that," he smiled. "There are lots of friendly people here."

When Murray first arrived, his daughter inquired about the Leisure Club of Palatine and suggested he attend their next meeting.

"I joined for companionship," he said, "and I found it."

Murray likes to travel and has taken advantage of numerous trips sponsored by either the Leisure Club of Palatine or The Over 50 Club in Arlington Heights, one of the largest organized senior citizen clubs in the immediate area. Recently he returned very sun tanned from two weeks in Hawaii.

REMAINING ACTIVE is an integral part of a senior citizen's life. Keeping busy acts as a youthful tonic. It is not a question of what one has lost, but what one still has to gain and still can do.

"It's very easy to feel sorry for yourself, but you just have to sit down and analyze . . . you're only a drop in the bucket," said Mrs. Marion Chamberlain of Palatine.

Quite active in several senior citizen clubs since her husband died, Mrs. Chamberlain feels it is of utmost importance to keep one's mind occupied. Currently she is president of the Leisure Club.

"Of course you can get bored," she continued. "You have to get out and help yourself. In working with other people with the same kind of problems, you tend to forget about yourself and begin to care about others."

MRS. CHAMBERLAIN likes "to go." Having met many women through the club, she attends luncheons and small afternoon get-togethers and joins other women for shopping.

Transportation is her only barrier. Mrs. Chamberlain must rely on friends, relatives or taxis. She is one of many who find the northwest suburban area sorely lacking in an adequate transportation system.

Mrs. Ethel Carzine of Winston Park in Palatine also laments the problem of transportation. She, too, relies mainly on cabs.

"I wish there was a shopping area close enough to walk," she said. "I miss that."

The senior citizens who still do own cars and drive run somewhat of a minibus service for their friends, picking them up for club meetings and remembering them when shopping is to be done.

MRS. JENNIE MCINNES is just such a person. With a car of her own, she has no problems in getting around wherever and whenever she pleases. Even so, she, too, voices a need for an intersuburb bus system.

When Mrs. McInnes, who resides with her son in Arlington Heights, lost her husband while still in her mid-fifties, she decided to return to work.

"The employment agencies all around here told me I was too old to go back to work so I went down to Chicago."

Mrs. McInnes found secretarial work in a small office and commuted daily for 16 years.

"They've had trouble filling my position," she laughed. "So many of the young girls can't spell."

THE HOURS MRS. MCINNES formerly spent working are now filled with various social activities. The Over Fifty Club of Arlington Heights takes up a great part of her time.

In addition to the weekly meetings, Mrs. McInnes, a past president of the club, attends a ceramic class every Friday morning at Pioneer Park.

Admitting that it was difficult to adjust to her husband's death, the primary reason for her return to work, Mrs. McInnes is presently neither bored nor lonely.

"I'm seldom home," she said. "When women call me who are lonely and depressed about their husbands. I tell them to get out of the house. You just can't sit around and mope."

THE BUFFALO GROVE Over 50 Club, the Golden Agers of Des Plaines and the Leisure Club and Young at Hearts Club, both of Palatine, are examples of organizations in the immediate area who plan various social activities for the senior citizen. Most are sponsored by either local park districts or individual churches, although actual operations are left up to the members themselves.

In addition to the bi-monthly or weekly meetings where members congregate informally and divide up into card playing foursomes, the clubs like to promote all-day field trips and weekend excursions.

Yet sometimes expenses cancel would-be short jogs. If the club is not large, chartering only one bus is an expensive means of travel.

WISTFULLY, A NUMBER of older residents of the northwest suburbs have suggested the possibility of a special senior citizen center, a building all their own and a full-time paid director to organize various activities and special events.

Yet it is far from reality. Even funds that were once appropriated to offset expenses for senior citizen clubs by local townships have been shut off.

HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICTS 211, 214 and 207 help out by offering senior citizens in their area special privileges.

As members of the various Golden Card Clubs, those 65 and over can attend all high school athletic and cultural events in their district free.

Senior citizens may also attend all adult education courses without having to pay tuition. The exception is District 207. Senior citizens in that area are required to pay one-half of the regular tuition.

Mrs. Dorothy Hulse of Rolling Meadows is presently enrolled in a creative writing course offered at Palatine High School.

"It is important to keep busy and oh, how one can still learn," said Mrs. Hulse, who has been interested in writing all her life.

THREE YEARS AGO, one of her short stories appeared in Highlight Magazine for children Other small items, including several poems, have also been published.

"At 4 a.m. when I'm trying to sleep I often get an idea for a story and must get up and write it down. I'm just finishing up and on my way back to bed when everyone else is just getting up."

Mrs. Hulse, who is a member of the Poets and Patriots of Chicago, does not have to worry about disturbing her son and his family with whom she lives when she decides to burn the midnight oil. One side of the basement has been turned into a comfortable apartment for her including a bedroom, sitting room and small kitchenette. She is lucky to have both companionship and independence.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

They're the "bees' knees" and the "cat's pajamas." They're cute and campy, guaranteed to draw admiring glances, and they're often really beautiful examples of needlework art. They're beaded bags, a Victorian-through-20's style, which your mother or grandma probably still has in the bottom of her trunk, and you might want to borrow hers for a brand new 70's look.

The big department stores are cashing in on the craze with new models at $30 or more. You can be smart and find one much prettier, hand-made, at a flea market or antique show at a starting price of $5 and on up, depending upon condition and design.

The original handbags were imported from Europe, for the most part. The work required an enormous amount of time, patience and dexterity. Some American firms imported the beaded fabric, rather than the finished bag, to escape the import tax on completed articles.

THE BEADING WAS usually attached to a backing of velvet or satin, and was closed with a drawstring arrangement at the top, with a silken cord. One of the oldest type of beaded purse (although these are sometimes made of other materials, too) is a "miser's purse," crocheted or knitted, long and narrow, for keeping coins and small valuables.

The plainer ones were also used by men, in place of a wallet, so the men have come full circle since the 1840's: long hair, beards and mustaches, flares, fitted jackets, Wellington boots, flowing ties and purses.

Linings in the early purses were made of silk and satin, and some had a little pocket on one side for a mirror, which was covered on the back with the lining material.

For do-it-yourselfers in the old days, department stores imported closures, beads by the skein, and accessories, plus instructions and patterns for making bags in many sizes and designs. These featured geometrics, mostly, while imported ready-made bags usually were of flowers. Birds, animals or buildings are rare and command a higher price.

BY THE LATE 20's beaded bags were replaced in favor of steel mesh materials, smooth and supple as snakeskin, and usually closed with a frame and snap fastener. Perhaps you will find just a frame, as a friend did, an ornate one of repousse sterling silver marked "Marshall Field and Co. Sterling. Pat. Dec. 18,89." She attached a velvet upholstery type "pouch" lined with white satin, matching the vest she had made of the same material.

A dealer told me recently she can't keep a beaded bag in stock. "Because of the teen girls buying them up?" I asked. "No, their mothers," she explained. "They use them for evening bags and even for day wear if they aren't too ornate."

My mother was a flapper from her headache band right down to her open galloping galoshes, and next time I go down home, I'm going to look in that old trunk in her attic, if she hasn't already beat me to it!

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

MARIGOLDS AND zinnias are two flowers that are easy-to-grow, fairly quick to bloom, pickable in quantity, and suitable for cultivation in the Prairie Farm and Garden Park community gardening project. Marigolds (right) have extra appeal because they repel bugs. (Photo courtesy Burpee Seeds).

The Prairie Farm and Garden Park is a wish fulfilled for many of us who practice organic gardening.

Over 60 children and family groups have already bombarded the Arlington Heights Park District with requests for free plots and they have signed up to their own gardens the organic way during the summer.

I can predict a gratifying experience when people who start the season with "What's organic gardening?" rake in the harvest with comments like, "I wouldn't go back to gardening with pesticides and chemical fertilizers."

I've got a double plot all staked out with thoughts of growing my own bacon, lettuce, and tomato sandwich (or most of it). There'll be room enough for the biggest of them, including some seeds of Big Max pumpkin that came from a 100 pound monster. Also being hoarded are some cucumber seeds one of my students in the organic gardening class gave me. She claimed the specimen that produced the cuke seeds was as big as a baby.

ALSO EARMARKED for the plot is corn (naturally), purple pod beans, (they're purple, but turn green when cooked), icicle radish, yellow beets, beafsteak tomatoes and flowers, flowers, flowers.

There will be a special selection of companion plants that act as natural bug repellents — onions, marigolds, basil, garlic, nasturtium, castor beans. Sunflowers are a must — for the birds as well as the "biggest sunflower contest."

The Park District is leaving the gardeners all their grass clippings for making compost. Wet newspapers and paper rolls will act as mulch.

Readers who would like to the organic tips on the day of plantings are most welcome, even if theydon't plan to tend a plot at the Park.

The great plant-in will be tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in Prairie Park, located 1700 South on Belmont at Council Trail Road.

"Star" of the week is a tree. Or rather two trees. They stand before the house at 109 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights. These two magnificent horsechestnut trees, in superb flower right now, belong to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Mukahirn. The Mukahirns planted the horsechestnuts in 1922, against advice from a nursery that horsechestnuts wouldn't do well in this area. The Mukahirns are used to people driving by and staring in admiration at their trees. Don't hesitate.

Dear Dorothy Do you know of any leaves that can be kept green by the glycerin and water method? Magnolia leaves? — Shirley W

An authority on drying arrangements says the only leaves she knows that will stay green are beech leaves You have to cut them in June then place in a solution of half glycerin and half water with some green vegetable coloring They will stay green indefinitely Magnolia leaves will turn bronze brown when put in a water glycerin solution although they will remain soft and pliable

Dear Dorothy I'd like to store my winter clothes in plastic bags Is there any way I can keep moisture from collecting in these bags?— A Holeman

Plastic seems to draw moisture Can only suggest you poke enough holes in the bags to make them not completely air tight and yet keep the clothes clean

Dear Dorothy How long can milk be frozen? — Celia H

How long I don't know — but U S Department of Agriculture specialists say that milk that has been frozen for a month or so can be used although the flavor and appearance may be changed

Harper College Fashions

To Model Student Designs

Fashion will monopolize the limelight at Harper College tonight as students of the fashion design program take to the runway and model the individual creations they have made throughout the school year

About 150 different ensembles will be shown emphasizing every possible mood of fashion. Long elaborate evening gowns will offset sportswear items to highlight hot pants, bikinis and beach coverups.

Many of the garments have a crafted look having been tie dyed, block printed or hand painted.

Crocheted and macramed accessories have been hand made to coordinate with many of the outfits. The total look will be greatly stressed.

FASHION DESIGN at Harper College is a two year program leading to an associate in applied science degree. It was established in the fall of 1969.

The courses are designed to train students in apparel design, pattern making, draping, fashion illustrating and tailoring.

A survey of costume history and an analysis of current fashion trends are included in the curriculum as are field trips to fashion manufacturing firms.

Graduates of the fashion design program are prepared for careers in couture designing, flat pattern making, fashion illustrating, fashion advertising, retailing, and window display.

Last week a fashion jury previewed the separate ensembles. From their selections two outstanding sophomore students were chosen. Each received a $50 award for creative use of fabric from Aaronson's Fabric Company of Chicago. They are Debbie Robey of Mount Prospect and Marcy Janis of Northbrook.

RECEIVING REGOGNITION as the most outstanding freshman designer was Susan Gayford of Algonquin.

The Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club awarded a $300 scholarship to freshman Nikki Gagliano of Norridge for "the most creative" fashion design. She was selected by the club following a Harper student fashion show mid May. Nikki's garment was a brown fleece evening gown block printed and decorated with jewels. It will be modeled tonight.

The fashion show begins at 8 p.m. in the college center. The show is free and open to the public. The Ray WeDyck Trio will provide music throughout the evening

PHYLLIS HARTMAN, a sophomore in Harper's fashion design program, models a hot pants outfit that will be seen tonight in the student fashion show. Phyllis is a resident of Arlington Heights.

'Round The Corner

Johnny Kemm, organist, will appear in a special free concert tonight at 7:30, in Naylor's Warehouse Auditorium, 1850 Waukegan Road in Glenview.

For the first time, the Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel is offering family swimming club memberships to the public. The plan goes into effect immediately and runs through Sept. 15. The Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel is located at 8535 W. Higgins Road adjacent to the Cumberland exit of the Kennedy Expressway.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD UPI—Video-record World is a provicative, informative new publication that bills itself as The Magazine of the Videocassette Videodisc Videocartridge Industry ' Which means of course that it is on to a very good thing

And in it current number it offers a fascinating interview with a highly outspoken teacher John Culkin who is a former Catholic priest and now is president and director of a nonprofit organization in New York called the Center for Understanding Media Following are excerpts from that interview, reprinted with permission of Videorecord World

Question How do you see young video or film makers fitting into the cable TV picture? '

Answer I think cable by definition is community television and I think that we haven't had community television except on massive city basis And there are many communities inside that one community of Los Angeles or New York So what cable can do is to pick up smaller communities whether they're ethnic communities economic communities or communities of age groups like young people or parents or something like that So I think it's this kind of rifle shot approach which will make cable responsive to local needs

"BUT AT THE same time, the more local it is the less money you're gonna have to put into production So I think almost by definition you're into mimeograph machine television "

Q "What kind of programs then do you foresee?"

A Inexpensively produced stuff simple discussion format, simple documentary out in the neighborhood kind of format

There's not a big enough audience to support much more than that You know we'll produce things but within that context The David Frost show doesn't cost 20 cents to produce and there's nothing on the David Frost show except a fancy name That costs money So you can have a local David Frost show or talk show where the reason the people hang in there and listen isn't because the guests are that sexy but because the guests have got something to do with their life in a very close way

"That simple kind of television A project that we did in Newburgh N Y proves that you can generate a lot of fairly well produced material, documentaries You know — take the porta-pack out on the streets and look at things in the neighborhood So that's all possible '

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although 10,000 demonstrators were arrested during the recent antiwar rally here give or take a few dozen innocent bystanders it appears that other types of lawbreaking during that period declined

The daily crime summary published by one of the local papers indicated that the robbery rate for example may have been the lowest in years

This heartening situation was called to my attention by Jim Atkins, a photographer-writer who covered the demonstrations for a magazine

"SOME OF THE people who were locked up said it was the first day they hadn't been robbed in a month, Atkins reported "They may have accidentally hit on an answer to the D C crime problem — put the honest people in jail where they'll be safe '

At the present time, unfortunately there aren't enough jails to hold all of the honest people in Washington although we may be nearing that point

That doesn't necessarily mean, however, that antiwar demonstrations can't continue to provide a valuable ancillary service as a crime deterrent

If, indeed, J Edgar Hoover and Martha Mitchell were truly discerning, they would be welcoming the demonstrators, not criticizing them

When you've got the sidewalks clogged with war protestors, you make it difficult for muggers and holdup men to operate at peak efficiency

Being as a rule short of bread themselves, demonstrators are seldom worthwhile targets for brigands Their very numbers, however, can frustrate the nefarious designs of predatory felons by making affluent pedestrians less conspicious

Efforts to block traffic also are useful For the drivers of getaway cars are just as vulnerable as commuters to obstacles in the streets Finally, the demonstrators cause police to step up their vigilance and bring troops into the city for patrol and guard duty

So even if the peace movement doesn't prevent war, it is great for crime prevention If the fighting in Vietnam continues long enough, we may finally have law and order.

Doctors Urge Change In Medical Licensing Act

Illinois physicians Tuesday endorsed a proposed change in the medical practice act to increase the supply of physicians in the state

The Illinois State Medical Society s House of Delegates announced support for House Bill 1245, introduced in the current session of the legislature by Rep Leland Rayson, D-Chicago The bill would waive U S citizenship requirements which must now be met before foreign-born physicians can take the medical licensing examination

About 100 fully-trained Filipino physicians now living in Illinois would be able to practice after passing the exam, according to Dr Adolfo Maglaya of the Chicago Chapter of the Phillipine Medical Association of America Dr Maglaya, who testified before the medical society Tuesday, said the chapter has about 500 members in the Chicago area

"We recently surveyed about 120 of our members who would be eligible to practice if they passed the exam, ' he said ' About 100 said they would stay in Illinois, and of these 60 said they would practice in the ghetto, or in downstate areas where there is a doctor shortage '

Also speaking for the bill was Dr William Lees, Lincolnwood, chairman of the state medical society's Task Force on Physician Shortage He said Illinois is one of only 13 states which still have the citizenship requirements in medical licensing laws.

"We could use up to 7,000 more physicians in Illinois right now,' Dr Lees said In spite of this shortage, this vitally important supply of fully trained, capable physicians remains untapped "

Dr Lees explained that because of immigration quotas, the Filipino physicians often must wait up to three or more years before they can file a declaration of intent to become a U S citizen This declaration must be filed before a physician can take the medical licensure exam in Illinois

Dr Maglaya said the Filipino physicians aren't asking for special favors

We just want to be able to TAKE the exam," he said ' What really hurts is that it doesn't matter how competent we are " Dr Maglaya said Because of the red tape, we're not even allowed to take the examination " He added that these physicians travel to Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin or other states where they can take the licensing exam

'As you might guess, these physicians are lost to Illinois," Dr Maglaya said

How to think clearly

Many today try to tell us how to think. Sometimes it's hard to know when you are doing your own thinking.

But there's a good answer.

You have the God-given right to think clearly for yourself.

Your ability to exercise this right continually comes when you discover that God is the real Mind of man, and that you can listen to God for direction.

If you'd like to know more about this you'll enjoy hearing the Bible Lesson read in our church this Sunday.

Won't you join us.

Signup For Volunteers Tomorrow

A mass registration for high school and college students who would like to do volunteer work this summer will be held tomorrow at four locations.

Students may register at any of the locations, leaving their name, address and phone number. They will be contacted later for a personal interview and placement in a summer volunteer assignment.

The registration is part of the Teens Who Help (TWH) program sponsored by the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County.

Available assignments include youths working for social agencies, hospitals, elderly peoples homes, schools for handicapped children, libraries and the summer migrant program.

Specific volunteer jobs include manning a hotline for a community service project, teaching English and working with culturally deprived and underprivileged children.

The Volunteer Bureau serves as a clearing house for volunteers on a year-round basis. The TWH program was established following a survey by the bureau which showed about 500 youth volunteers could be used by various agencies during the summer.

The registration locations will be manned by members of the staff of the branch offices of the Volunteer Bureau.

The Arlington Heights branch office will be taking registrations in the basement of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton Ave., from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Prospect Heights branch office will accept registrations in the main lobby of John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The registration location for the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Branch offices will be Lions Park, 411 S. Maple, Mount Prospect. The location will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Lois Moore branch office serving Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness will take registrations at The Bridge, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Students unable to register at the above locations on Saturday may register during the week at the bureau's main office in room A302 at Harper College, Roselle and Algonquin roads, Palatine.

"HAPPY DAY" will perform a musicall history of rock and roll music Saturday at the youth center in the basement of Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave., Arlington Heights. Admission will be $2 for the dance which will be held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. and is open to the public. The center is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Newspaper Official To Address CBMC

Wes Hartzell, assistant managing editor of Chicago Today, will speak at Tuesday's meeting of the Northwest Christian Business Men's Committee (CBMC).

The group meets every Tuesday from noon to 1 p.m. at Nielsen's Restaurant on Mannheim Road about one block south of Higgins Road, Rosemont.

Hartzel is currently a member and was president of Dist. 207 Maine Township High School Board. The newspaper man joined the Herald-Examiner in 1935 as a copy boy and became junior editor and copy reader. He was then transferred to the Evening American (now Chicago Today) in the Sunday department in 1938. Among other duties, he wrote features, planned layouts, and reviewed books and musical presentations.

Tuesday's speaker became the city editor of the paper in 1954, special projects editor in 1959 and assistant managing editor in 1969.

This year, Hartzel was named to the board of trustees of the Institute for Education Research, an agency formed by about 40 school districts in Cook County to research curricula and problems of local school districts.

Hartzel is a member of the South Park Church in Park Ridge and has taught an adult Sunday school class there for about 20 years. He is a member of the board of the Chicabo Gospel Mission, a skid-row mission established in 1945. For ten years, he has been a member of the Northwest Symphony Orchestra in the French horn section.

Northwest CBMC has invited any interested men to attend its weekly luncheon meetings.

Open House Set At Arlington Race Track

Indian Chief Shatka Bear Step will give the Lord's Prayer in sign language while riding his Appaloosa stallion as a part of the festivities for Arlington Park Race Track's open house June 6.

The special day will include races, exhibits, tours and shows. The custom of an open house was originated last year by John F. Loome, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE). The festivities last year drew about 20,000 people to the track last year and a larger crowd is expected this year. Activities will begin at 12:30 p.m. and continue until 4:30 p.m.

The success of the program last year led to the planning of a vastly expanded program which will feature all facets of the thoroughbred racing game, an exhibition quarterhorse racing and a complete pageant featuring Appaloosa horses and Chief Shatka Bear Step's performance.

Racing Secretary Peter Kosiba will put on three exhibition thoroughbred races and has arranged for a wide variety of exhibits of saddles, jockey silks and equipment plus a bus tour of the Arlington Park Stable area.

People attending the activities will be able to see a blacksmith shoeing horses, talk to a special panel of newspaper handicappers, tour the track's mutuel department to learn what happens when people bet, visit with memers of the Illinois Thoroughbred Breeders Association who will show two mares with new foals and view racing movies.

RACING PERSONALITIES will be interviewed and available to answer questions. Another event will include Natalie Lamping presenting an exhibition of dressage and jumping on the Arlington grass course.

Displays will explain what and how much race horses eat, how to identify horses and what types of medicines are used on the animals.

During the day, "Think Green" buttons and bumper stickers will be given away. Another free item will be a thoroughbred racing coloring book, "Tale of the Thoroughbred," designed for the open house by artist Sharon Simons.

Children attending the open house will be able to sign up for the Arlington Railbird Club which meets at the track each Saturday morning beginning June 12. Members of the club ride the merry-go-round which was originally part of the amusement equipment at Lincoln Park Zoo.

IN ADDITION to the thoroughbred, quarterhorse and Appaloosa races, members of the Appaloosa Horse Club will present a program showing the history of this type of horse, beginning with the Cro-Magnon Era and continuing down through present day racing and pleasure horses.

Quarterhorse riders will also provide a special program featuring Dianne Sapp, National Youth Champion last year; Debbie Smail, runner-up for Top Youth of the Nation; Ken Ritter, 1970 National Reining Champion; Sam Smail, owner and rider of the 1969 National Champion Junior Pleasure Horse, Illini Duke; and Tommy Manion, who will exhibit his national champion reining horse.

Maine-Northfield

With one victory and one rain-postponed game last week George's Fix All 66 took sole possession of first place in Maine Northfield Little League's major American league with a 3 to 0 record.

The victory, a 9 to 1 win over Tolimit Insurance, came after Gary Schukowsky touched off a seven run explosion for the Fix Alls. Other contributors at the plate included Jeff Hersh who drove in one run, Randy Weingarten, one RBI, Jim Dash an RBI, Steve Levy an RBI, and Dave Pink two RBIs. Weingarten and Pink each delivered doubles while Hersh, Dash, Schukowsky, Mark Maller, Dale Sylvan and Kerry Erlich had singles. Erlich also was the winning pitcher, fanning ten, walking one and giving up six hits.

In the MNLL minor National league a real tight race is shaping up with four teams tied for second place at 4 VIP Studios of Mt. Prospect retaining first place with three wins and one loss. Randy Pfundheller was the batting champ with two home runs as the VIPs shut out Johnson Sporting Goods 4 to 0.

Donald Howell, who shared mound honors with Kerry Erlich in striking out 11 and allowing two hits, also had three singles. For Johnson's, the hitters were Tom Mendralla, a triple and Bob Machun, a single. Mike Stone spoiled the VIP's undefeated record when he pitched DeVille Plumbing to a 6 to 3 victory. Russ Karbus helped out with a home run and a single that scored two runs. Ralph Menotti also homered and Bob Jwicki doubled and drove in two. Von Marcus' single brought in two runs and Stone and Danny Bowgren each singled.

DeVille enjoyed another win when they bested Shore American Motors 11 to 4. The winning pitcher was Bob Jwicki who was assisted by home runs from Mike Stone, Ralph Menotti and Danny Bowgren who also doubled. For the Americans, Gordon Shore doubled, Steve Goranson singled and drove in two runs and Gary Comanche drove in a run, had two hits and made a beautiful play in defense while on the ground.

Shore American Motors came back to win their other game 10 to 4 over Talisman Village. Wayne Comancho was the winning pitcher and Gordon Shore had a big night belting a grand slam home run and a triple for five total runs batted in. Comancho had three singles and Steve Goranson doubled in two runs. For Talisman, Alan Teicher knocked out a two run homer and Jerry Levy collected two singles.

Pellegrini Signs split for the week, taking Talisman Village 4 to 2 and losing to Johnson Sporting Goods 7 to 2. Against Talisman, Sam Halpin was the winning pitcher. Heavy man at the plate, John Mals drove in three runs with a home run, Mickey Conner tripled in a run and also doubled. Steve Lubelfeld and Alan Teicher each doubled and drove in a run for Talisman. Johnson Sporting Goods' Jamie Hamenski gave up three scratch hits as they downed Pellegrini Signs. Bob Machun doubled and drove in two runs for the winners and Jim Ruck singled.

As MNLL minor league action got under way Saturday, the Shasta Pet Center guaranteed themselves at least a tie for first place by topping Glenbrook Insurance 14 to 3 in a one-hitter that featured Craig Stone and Jeff Gross on the mound. Gross also collected two hits and four RBIs. Dave Langer had three hits and Wayne Spiwak, Danny Sanders and Bills DeGilio each had two. Steve Becker hit a double in addiine to the attack.

In other minor league action, the Flying Frenchman Restaurant bombed Mission and White Construction 13 to 6 with Nick Tremont getting the win on the mound. He also doubled as did teammates Gary Adelman and Brian Heraty, who also picked up a triple and an extra double. Especially noteworthy on defense were Steven Pulsis for the Frenchman squad and David Panicko, Mission and White short stop. A scheduled game between The House of Schiller and Loochtan Insurance was protested.

Louie's Records Another Shutout In Tuesday Golf

Louie's Barber Shop turned in their third straight victory Tuesday night, an 8½-1½ win over Illinois Range in Mt. Prospect Twilight Golf League competition.

The Barbers so far have gone undefeated, and their victories have been substantial ones, accumulating a total of 28 points out of a possible 30.

Second place Keefer's Pharmacy produced a similar 8½ point victory over their opponenet, Licht's Paint Store, but their efforts were not enough to narrow the 4 point lead maintained by Louie's.

Busse-Biermann Hardware struggled to a 5-5 tie with George L. Busse Co., and backed into third place, as Mt. Prospect Electric Constr. Co. lost a 4-6 heart breaker to Kirchhoff Insurance.

Biggest winner of the evening was Kersting Garden Center, who blanked Shuey Music Center 10-0. The luster of the victory was dimmed somewhat, however, when a study of the scorecards revealed Shuey's had been represented 100% by alternates.

In the final match, Kruse's Tavern edged Mt. Prospect State Bank 6-4.

The League played under perhaps the best weather conditions of the young season but only one competitor broke 40. Ed Lauing of Keefer's scored a 36 gross, 32 net, over the 1st nine which gave him low gross and low net honors for the session.

Birdies were reported by H. Punches no. 11, E. Pociask no. 13, and C. Dresser no. 17.

Team standings May 18:

Louie's Barber Shop	28

Will Conant Or Fremd Take Title? Showdown Today In Mid-Suburban

by LARRY EVERHART

Conant hopes to keep a good thing going

Fremd hopes the third time will be the charm

That's the situation as the two teams await the Mid-Suburban League championship game at Fremd today at 4:15.

There will be two other playoff games at the same time — Forest View at Hersey and Glenbard North at Palatine.

Conant has already beaten Fremd both times the District 211 rivals have met. Two weeks ago today, the Cougars won 3-1 behind Bill Arkus, and last week they eliminated Fremd in the Barrington district title game, 2-0 as John Macdonald fired blanks.

Macdonald will be the likely Conant starter again tonight, hoping to duplicate his performance of nine days ago. He has a 2-3 record in league play, but one of the wins was a no-hitter and that mark does not count Macdonald's two tournament wins.

Fremd coach Terry Gellinger is undecided on which of his two top-notch hurlers to start — Mark Wicklund or Rick Peekel. Wicklund, a righthander, is 5-4 in MSL competition. Lefty Peekel is 4-0

One of Fremd's relief pitchers, Terry Kukla, is out of action with a broken ankle he suffered in the Vikings' last outing.

Fremd finished with a 9-4 league record and the North Division title. Hersey and Arlington were also 9-4 but the Vikes had more wins within the division.

Conant won South Division supremacy with an 8-5 mark, having to break a deadlock with Forest View with a 7-5 win over the Falcons last Friday.

The Cougars advanced farther in tourney play than any other Herald area team, being ousted by Lake Park 13-9 Wednesday in the Elk Grove regional title game.

Strongest hitters for the lusty-hitting Cougar nine have been Rich Gallas and Randy Jones in conference play, each batting around .400. Rich Gawron came on strong as a power hitter in the two regional games with two home runs, a triple and six runs batted in.

Fremd's top hitters have been Dave Wickersham, cleanup man; and Dave Houswirth, who leads the MSL in stolen bases with 10

Even though there have been a total of only six runs in the first two games between Fremd and Conant, Gellinger does not necessarily feel it will be another low-scoring contest today.

"A lot will depend on the weather," he says. "We've had very little rain and if there is no more, the field will be hard. Then a lot of ground balls could get through. And if the wind is blowing out, it could be a complete turnabout from those other two games.

"But a real fine pitching performance could hold up in any conditions. We're confident we can do the job. We haven't lost at home all season"

Since Conant has scored 15 runs in two games and Fremd scored 19 in its only game since that 2-0 district clash between the two, it is evident that there might not be another pitchers duel today.

Hersey and Forest View met back in the first conference game of the spring, with the Huskies' Terry Smith turning back the Falcons 2-0 on a three-hitter. Smith is another likely starter while Forest View has several fine pitchers, including freshman phenom Larry Monroe.

Glenbard North topped Palatine 6-3 in their only previous meeting. The Pirates' ace Steve Garoutte will probably start tonight.

Kickin' It Around

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

IT WAS A shot, just a shot not a goal that I'll remember most about these past few weeks of the long professional hockey season

I'm sure people are sick of hockey right now, particularly fans of the Chicago Black Hawks, but I still think back to that shot last Sunday in Montreal, a penalty shot, Frank Mahovlich bearing down on Tony Esposito, one-on-one, the cobra vs the mongoose

That has to be one of the most exciting moments in sport, and a penalty shot is so rarely awarded that many recent hockey fans may never have seen one

I wonder about it now because it was so exciting. Just the anticipation of Mahovlich bearing down on Esposito was exciting. I wonder why you don't see it more often and why it isn't used to settle ties, my pet peeve about any hockey game.

I don't know about you, but I don't like to watch a sports event, any event, and have it wind up in a tie With apologies to Ara Parseghian Really, Ara, I feel cheated when I watch a tie no matter how great the play I like to have something decided

In the winter of 1942 President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League announced the abolition of overtime in scheduled games so that teams would be sure to catch their trains without delay So much for overtime Bring on the frustrating tie

Johnny Gottselig of Chicago, who sometimes served as a playing coach, was one who hailed the move as an astute change "It took a war to do it," he said, "but thanks to it, the tempo of hockey will be a great deal faster than it was"

The men who run the National Hockey League today are selling a red-hot product even though the season is so long. League attendance figures show a remarkable success story, but I still think these figures obscure a weakness.

I've always felt that a hockey tie was an unnecessary anti-climax which could be transformed into exciting finishes I'm more convinced now after watching Mahovlich drive in on Esposito Sunday, the thrill of a penalty shot.

Too many of the hockey officials are chained by some absured tradition that tells them any departure from the norm automatically is awful There are some baseball people who think the same way.

I can understand the fear of overtimes dragging games into the late hours of the evening, but there should be some way of at least attempting to determine a winner

Why don't they let these penalty shots settle a tie game? For example, you could permit each side to take four or five penalty shots The shots would require little extra time, perhaps five minutes, and the chance of achieving a decision would be strong. You could still catch your train — or plane.

In a regular game the rules call for a penalty shot when a player attempting a breakaway shot is pulled down or obstructed from behind, when a player throws his stick across the goal mouth and when a player other than the goalie falls on a puck in the crease.

Critics have claimed that NHL game officials are so obsessed with "balancing" infractions against both opponents that the penalty shot seldom is called.

The league shuns an overtime period in regular season play because they say it would place the weaker teams at a disadvantage Is it possible the reverse would be true with a penalty shot?

I can just see a team carrying a crafty old-timer on its roster, a man who perhaps can't handle the musclemen dominating the ice today, but who still is a master skater with all the finesse and moves which give a goalie trouble

You could have a crowd-pleasing equalizer here for some of the expansion teams through the years, a cunning veteran ready to produce a penalty shot.

I don't know the exact figures for 1970-71, but I did look them up for 1969-70. Twenty per cent of the 456 games played in 1969-70 in the NHL ended in ties. One out of every five. Is that a satisfying result? I don't think so.

Is there an answer? Or is hockey satisfied with their ties? They probably feel that they've got a hot product so why change it

After watching the action Sunday in Montreal, I have to feel that hockey offers no more exciting play than the penalty shot and fans just don't see enough of it.

That's what I'll remember about this Stanley Cup series, Mahovlich bearing down on Esposito, one of the thrilling moments in sport

MARTIN UNFAIR?

Dear Sirs:

I would like to comment on Detroit Tigers manager Billy Martin's criticism of his star outfielder Willie Horton last week.

Horton took himself out of the lineup for one game, saying his shoulder had such a knot in it that he could hardly raise his throwing arm. Martin said he was disappointed in Horton for not giving his best, saying, "I've played this game with the flu, pneumonia, cracked ribs, broken toes, broken nose and I even played a month and a half after I broke an ankle"

So what? Does this mean that all baseball players should foolishly play with injuries, possibly disabling themselves even further and jeopardizing themselves? Just because Martin insisted on playing the suffering hero role, does that mean all his players must do the same?

Martin has a lot of gall assuming that a player is lazy and "playing hookey" just because he is honest enough to admit an injury. If Horton was physically unable to play well (and I think we should take the word of a professional), he would only be hurting his team to continue playing.

I have never thought much of Billy Martin as a person, and that opinion has been strengthened.

Name withheld by request

We missed reading about the incident, but if you have quoted Martin accurately, we must agree. Only an athlete knows if he is injured enough not to play, and only he should make the decision. — Larry Everhart

"CITY FOR LOSERS"

Dear Sirs:

So Chicago blew another one Now, I suppose we'll hear all summer about how proud we should be of the Black Hawks, how they gave us so much to cheer about

This is a city for losers. The big one always gets away and I don't see any chances like this one coming our way for a long, long, long time. There's no way they should have blown that two-goal lead on their own ice.

So that's over. And now we get stuck with Durocher and his Cubs, who are too old; Tanner and the White Sox, who are too young; Dooley and his Bears, who can never seem to get straightened out, and Motta and his Bulls, who will always have to face up to Lew Alcindor.

Stanley Bobak
Arlington Heights

Much as we hate to admit it, you're right. Even though there's always next year, who knows how long it will be before the Hawks are that close to the Stanley Cup again. It was a bitter blow to a city that desperately needs something to really brag about in professional sports. — Bob Frisk.

WHY BANKS?

Dear Sir:

I am in agreement with a lot of people that Leo Durocher has to go. My personal opinion is that Lou Boudreau should be hired as the new manager but, in last week's Fans Forum, Larry Mlynczak mentioned Ernie Banks for manager.

How does he base this opinion?

John Balfo
Des Plaines

If and when Leo goes, the Cubs' new manager must be able to step right in on the scene and know the team, the league and the situation immediately since the Cubs still have a shot at the pennant. There can be no trial periods for the new manager. The Cubs can't wait for the new manager to "get his feet wet."

The Cubs' new manager must also relate to his players and get the most out of them. The new manager must have the respect of his players.

The new manager must be a knowledgeable baseball veteran who knows the game inside out.

Ernie Banks is on the scene right now. He knows what is going on around the league. He knows his players.

Banks would give the Cubs a more personal relationship between player-and-manager. Everyone speaks highly of Ernie, so he must have the players' respect.

Ernie is a 17-year veteran of the major leagues and he's played the game at two positions and has doubled as a player-coach in past seasons.

WAIT UNTIL NEXT YEAR

dear Sirs:

Well, I guess that neither of us can say, "I told you so." You picked the Bruins, I picked the Black Hawks. For a while there, I thought that I couldwrite this letter happy but now I'll just have to agree with you in what you said in reply to my first letter Wait until next year.

Vince Maranto
Arlington Heights

Crucial Weekend; Golfers Battle For State Berths

by KEITH REINHARD

And then there were 72 . . .

That's the number of golf teams still in the running for state championship honors from an original field of nearly 400 who competed in district tournaments last week.

Those 72 — including three from the Herald area — will see their ranks further reduced at eight sectional meets today and tomorrow. Only 24 teams will emerge then to join with Chicago's one championship squad in competition for elite honors at the University of Illinois in Champaign next weekend.

In addition to Prospect, Arlington and St. Viator outfits battling for team laurels, Fremd's Jeff Oakley and Wheeling's Bob Winter are still in the running for individual attention after finishing 1-2 respectively at Hersey's District fray last Friday.

Oakley and Winter, along with the Cardinal and Lions clubs, are slated for action at the Crystal Lake Sectional on the Country Club golf course there.

The Knights journey to the Fox Bend golf course in Oswego for the Aurora East-sponsored sectional.

This year's three-step state tournament is a departure from previous seasons when the top teams and individuals from each district went directly to the championships. In 1970, Fremd was the only local representative after having captured the district title at Barrington.

This year Oakley will be the only one carrying Viking colors into sectional action, but he should be a worthy representative after carving an even-par 72 finish on Hersey's Buffalo Grove layout. He and Winter (who stroked a 75 for runner-up district medalist honors) will face their stiffest challenges most likely from among the members of New Trier West and Glenbrook South contingents netting top honors at the Niles North district.

The Cowboys and Titans are also probably the ones Viator and the Cards must contend with if they wish to advance beyond sectional play. These two Central Suburban powerhouses placed first and second a good span ahead of the Lions and Cardinals at the Chevy Chase Invite conducted earlier this month.

Other squads in the running at Crystal Lake are Maine East, Waukegan, Carmel, Libertyville, and Deerfield. Deerfield finished in a three-way tie with Joe Gliwa's Lions and Tom Walthouse's Arlington bunch for championship honors at Hersey.

Waukegan will be the number one representative out of the Grayslake District.

At the Aurora confrontation Mike Nisen's Prospect gang must be chiefly concerned with the LaGrange and St. Charles groups which copped district titles at Downers Grove and Oswego respectively.

Other teams entered in that tournament include Hinsdale Central, Glenbard West, Naperville, Marmion, Addison Trail and Fenton. The later two placed second and third behind the Knights at the Bison-hosted district last weekend.

St. Viator Plays For Loop Title

St Viator and Immaculate Conception will clash this afternoon for the overall baseball championship in the Suburban Catholic Conference beginning at 4 p.m. in Elmhurst

The Lions, although finishing in a virtual deadlock with Holy Cross atop the East Division standings, received the nod to represent the East from a poll of league coaches Wednesday evening.

Viator will protect an 11-1 conference record and a 19-5 overall mark against Immaculate Conception who swept through the SCC's West Division in 11-2 and stand 15-3 overall.

The important encounter should bring out the best in each club, so it is safe to assume that Lion flamethrower Mike Pettenuzzo will hook up with Knight fireballer Tim Verpaele.

The trophy battle will also give Viator a chance to see the league's leading hitter in Knight southpaw Frank Fink who has kayoed opposing pitchers at an even .500 clip.

St. Viator Trackmen In Conference Action

St Viator has three good reasons why it should make a respectable showing amid the established schools in the Suburban Catholic Conference Track Meet tomorrow

While it is only the Lions' initial baptism in the league, head coach Ron Klaus is hopeful that his crew can rise to the occasion at Wheaton College beginning at 10 a m

In overcoming the handicap of a home without a track, Viator has still registered a trio of individuals on the Paddock Area Track Honor Roll

Having already reserved a starting berth in Champaign for the State Meet next weekend, sprint specialist Tim Gillespie will attempt to uphold his reputation as the area's fastest 100-yard dash man

Gillespie has scorched the track in a sizzling 9 9 where a repeat performance tomorrow should surely bring him a gold medal

And if the 100 goes to St Viator's side of the ledger, it could boast a double winner when Gillespie returns in the 220 where Tim has already stopped the clocks in 22 4

Gerry Richardson, another blue-chipper for Klaus, should benefit Viator's team hopes in the middle distances Gerry's best race may be the quarter mile where he has already toured the distance in 51 6

The field events will be another potential Lion point-getter when Klaus unveils strongman Ed Klingberg in the discus competition Klingberg has unwound for heaves of 152-8 and 154-6 previously, either one of which, if he duplicates tomorrow, should rate near the top of the hill.

C.P. Floors Holds Lead In Scratch

C P Floors, Inc , paced by the fine performances of Ray Raedel and Gordon Meling, hold a 2 1/2 lead in the Old Orchard Scratch League after Friday night's play

Raedel fired a 36 for low gross honors on the front nine and Meling came in with a 37 George Johnson of the Sauganash Corp team also had a 37

Ben Kronn, Silo Inc. team's No 1 man, toured the back nine with a fine 35 to lead the backside players for low gross honors Jim Badenoch of L-Nor Cleaners came in with a 36

C P Floors, Inc has 16 1/2 points compared to Webb Offset, Inc. with 14 The latter team won 5 1/2 points from Don Hager Realtors as did the leaders who really took Bob Burrow Chevrolet

Peters & Co is in third place with 12 points followed by Sauganash Corp with 11 1/2

Cards Romp In Golf Action

Arlington played the back nine at Palatine Hills Golf Club for the first time this year it still produced another romp

The Cardinals now unbeaten in nine Mid Suburban League duals this year used a pair of 39 s by John Gibbel and Chris Marszalek to defeat Glenbard North 161 178 Tuesday The co-medalists were three-over par

Rounding out the scoring for the Cardinals were Mike Rossi (41) and Gordie Kaser (42)

The Glenbard North scoring was as follows Hay (41), Shirk (42), Frolich (44) and Norris (51)

Steve Sluka, a fine sophomore product, led the Cardinals to a 171-204 victory with a brilliant one-under-par 35 on the front nine He sank a bunker shot on the final hole for a birdie and also the lowest score recorded on either level The victory left the young Cards with a 4-5 MSL mark

Wheeling, Arlington Land Playoff Wins In Baseball

and JIM COOK

It's becoming a familiar story in the Mid Suburban League playoff system.

The North continues to dominate They didn't win everything in the football and basketball playoffs, but they came mighty close

They started out with two wins in two games Thursday in the baseball playoffs

Arlington dumped Elk Grove, 8-5, and Wheeling smashed Prospect, 14-0, in playoff action. Three more games will be played today

Arlington — backed by the big bats of Chuck Donchess, Mike Wilbins and Mike Moffo and some Elk Grove errors — coasted to the victory over the Grenadiers on the Cardinals' diamond.

The Cardinals, now 10-4 in the league, came from behind with three runs in the first to take the lead and were never headed.

After two outs in the first, Russ Kirchhoff hit a blooper to right for a single. Then Moffo unloaded a booming triple to left Wilbins, behind the count, lashed a shot to center that flashed passed Scott Clinton and rolled all the way to the tennis courts for a home run.

Donchess got into the act in the second inning to pad the lead After Tom Carroll led off with a single, the Cardinals' big catcher hit one in about the same place as Wilbins' drive and just beat the throw to the plate for second two-run homer of the day That made it 5-2.

Arlington added two in the third with the help of a couple of errors and an RBI single by Donchess. An insurance run in the sixth on a walk and an error on a sacrifice bunt by Rick Schoell helped put the game out of reach.

Elk Grove, 5-9, literally knocked Jim Locascio, Arlington's starting pitcher, off the mound in the first. Locascio stopped a line drive with his bare hand and threw out the runner before leaving the game. The Grenadiers scored on a fielder's choice by Nick Adams and the liner by Luke Wolanski

Jim Hopkins came on in relief and went four innings to get the win. Bill More pitched the fifth and sixth and was touched for runs in each inning. The first coming on an outfield error and the second on an RBI single by Bob Chen.

Mike Moffo gave up a run in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Dan Conley.

Dave Hilderbrand started for the Grove and was tagged for the loss. Wolanski pitched the final three innings.

The prestige may have been lacking, but the incentive was clearly evident and it was all Wheeling needed to waltz to a whitewash over Prospect in the battle between Mid-Suburban League's fourth place teams.

Th MSL playoff system paired the Wildcats (6-7) against the Knights (4-9) in their respective North-South Divisional standings, but Wheeling emphatically announced which was the better team yesterday.

The victors thoroughly pounded a quartet of Prospect hurlers for 11 hits including a solo homer by Keith McGowan in the last inning. But Prospect obliged the Wheeling onslaught with a couple of costly errors and eight walks.

Wildcat hurler Dwain Nelson cruised through the seven-inning distance on a yield of just four scattered hits. Knight Mike Tolzien registered a pair of safeties including one in the first that presented a scoreless Prospect threat.

Wheeling opened fire in their half of the first on a single by Bert Newman, an error, two stolen bases, a wild pitch and a sacrifice fly to push a pair across off Prospect's Ron Smoy.

The count ran to 5-0 after the third when Smoy was knocked out on three walks, a double by Fred Bencriscutto and a single by Marty Clifford.

The Wildcats weren't choosy as they jumped on Knight relievers Casey Rush and Stu White during a six-run uprising in the fourth. Newman singled, Robby Richter and Nelson each doubled, Bencriscutto tripled and McGowan contributed a sacrifice fly for the key blow.

Wheeling added two more in the f fth on a walk, Tony Fricano's single and Mike Groot's double before closing out the scoring in the sixth on McGowan's blast over the left field fence.

Arlington Heavy Favorite In Conference Net Finals

by PAUL LOGAN

When discussing the Mid-Suburban League's two-day tennis meet, you have to face three very important facts:

1) Arlington has won the conference four straight years since joining the league.

2) Arlington has, possibly, the toughest team since leaving the West Suburban League.

3) Arlington has a brilliant dual meet record again this season.

All of this adds up to another very rough time for the rest of the teams in the Hersey — hosted conference showdown which begins this afternoon at 4:00. The 10 MSL schools will play two rounds today and tomorrow beginning at 9 a.m.

Both in singles and doubles play the Cardinals have to be given the edge since none of them have lost to SML opponents during the season.

Singles play shapes up this way:

First singles — Jim Merkel is the man to beat. This tough Arlington sophomore is fresh from a district victory. Others who have shots at him are Bob Zimmanck of Prospect, Chris Lesniak of Elk Grove and Rick Leadley of Hersey.

Second singles — Greg Gibbel, a Card senior, is the marked man here. Going after him will probably be Steve Collins of Prospect and Kirk Buckholz of Forest View.

Third singles — Don Rodig, another super soph for Arlington, has the favorite's role here. Taking aim on him will be still another sophomore — Matt Borman of Palatine, Buddy Edmondson of Conant and Mark Greenberg of Elk Grove.

First doubles — Carl McWherter and Bruce Starek, Arlington's district winning doubles team, are the duo to beat. Having the best chances of upsetting them will be Pat Massey and Al Lewandowski of Elk Grove, Jeff Muradin and Zimmanck of Prospect — also qualifiers for the state, and Rick Liston and Al Pritz of Hersey.

Second doubles — The entire field will be trying to stop the very strong team of John Koriath and Jon Deevy, an almost unbeatable combination.

The frosh-soph meet, scheduled to be played at Wheeling, will probably be between two teams — undefeated Forest View and once beaten Arlington. The latter's only loss came at the hands of the surprisingly strong young Falcons.

Harper Falters In Campus Debut

by PAUL LOGAN

Harper College's baseball team cinched first place outright on Monday and the Hawks' play showed it on Wednesday.

Hosting Triton College in the first sporting event ever held on the new campus, the Hawks — visibly flat for the final Skyway Conference game — allowed their opponents to run away with the victory.

Triton, which tied for second with McHenry with 7-3 records, broke open a 3-1 ball game with a four-run sixth inning and then held on to win 9-4 Wednesday afternoon on the frigid, windy and dusty Harper diamond.

Harper, which finished SC play with an 8-2 record, tied the score in the second on a squeeze play. Steve Bahn, the starting and losing pitcher, placed a perfect sacrifice bunt which allowed Duke Delano to score from third. The bases had been loaded up until that play, but the Hawks couldn't push across any more runs until the eighth inning when it was too late.

After allowing one hit in the first inning, Bahn held the Warriors hitless until the fifth when they scored twice. They drove him from the mound in the sixth when the Triton pitcher unloaded a ground rule triple with the bases loaded.

Pat Doyle came on in relief and retired the next two batters. He threw another scoreless inning and then Frank May pitched the eighth and was tagged for a two-run homer. Steve Gross hurled the ninth.

Harper had a ground ball homer of its own in the eighth. After Bill Maffy singled, Ken Dohm unloaded one to left.

With two outs in the ninth, the Hawks tallied their final run on a ground rule triple by Wally Wiener. He drove in Bill Henry who had reached on a single. Wiener was the only Hawk batter to have more than one hit with a 2-for-5 day.

The Hawks will finish out their schedule with a double elimination tournament at Lake County this weekend.

Shutouts In Soccer For Celtics

It was goose egg weekend for the Palatine Celtics soccer teams. Each posted a shutout victory at Maple Park as the junior team (aged 13 to 16) won its first game of the season and the intermediates (aged 10-12) remained undefeated.

The junior Celtics routed Morton Grove 6-0 despite missing two penalty kicks. Morton Grove is a fine team and it took by far the best effort of the season for Palatine to win so convincingly.

Steve Sakats was the goalie posting the shutout. Scoring two goals each were Jerry Blam, Steve McGinnis and Larry Gackowski.

The intermediates also defeated Morton Grove, a previously undefeated team, by 3-0 to keep their record spotless. Brian Scolpino was the goalie and scoring was done by John Hagel, Brad Byker and Danny Tischler.

The younger squad will get a stiff test to its perfect record again this Saturday, meeting another undefeated team for the second straight week. They will travel to Northbrook to play the Northwest Kickers.

The junior team is to play against the Menominee Boys Club of Chicago this week, though time and place were uncertain

Schaumburg Wins Soph Golf Test

Schaumburg's varsity golf team had no success with Glenbard North but the Saxon frosh-soph unit nudged the Panthers by three strokes to finish their campaign on a winning note Monday night.

The varsity tally was 180-216 in favor of hosting Glenbard, at their Indian Lakes layout. Tom Jacobsen's soph unit, however put together a 212-215 victory, their second dual win of the season

Mike Moscinski was low scorer for the Saxon varsity at 50. At the lower level Dale Jensen and Mike Bussey shared medalist honors at 51 while Chuck Gallagher and Steve Struckman both fired 55s.

The frosh-soph Saxons finished with a 2-10 mark. The varsity wound up with a 0-12 slate.

Macnider, Piana Bid In Nationals

Both Jim Macnider and John Piana will have to come up with the greatest efforts of their young careers if Harper College is to collect its first points ever in the National Junior College track and field finals this weekend

Macnider a two-miler and Piana a long jumper were accompanied by Bob Nolan their coach to the showcase of junior college thinclads in Mesa Ariz., earl er this week

Over 100 schools are expected to enter the meet at Mesa Community College the defending national championship team the past two years This means plenty of competition for the Hawks, but Nolan is optimistic

'What it amounts to is that Macnider will have to run the best race of his life and Pana will have to do the same in the long jump if they are to score," said Nolan. "Both Macnider and Piana are capable of scoring in their events. I think both belong in this meet but they're going to have to come up with some real good performances"

Macnider who qualified in both the mile and two-mile events, will only compete in the latter because of the competition factor His best time this year has been a 9 27 Nolan feels he must run 10 to 12 seconds faster to place

Pana, a freshman was just coming off a leg injury when he qualified with a leap of 22-6¼ Nolan thinks his jumper has completely recovered from his thigh injury and is capable of going over 23 feet

Milton Richman

PHILADELPHIA UPI — Jim Ryun, the world's foremost miler, kept rubbing his eyes.

This wasn't the involuntary act of a man who couldn't bring himself to believe what he had just seen.

It was, instead, the deliberate act of a man who was trying to get the blood in his head circulating properly again, the act of a man trying to breathe a little more deeply so that maybe the pain in his side might abate a bit, the act of a man fighting to hold back the feeling of nausea in the pit of his stomach.

What had been billed as the super mile turned out to be precisely that in the Martin Luther King games at Franklin Field.

Thick sheets of rain which fell until almost noon threatened to turn the dream mile between Jim Ryun and Marty Liquori into something more like a nightmare, but the rain stopped before the meet got underway and those who attended saw the kind of duel they aren't ever likely to forget.

Six others also were in the race but actually they were so much window trimming. The people had come to see only two men-Ryun and Liquori.

They were the ones who made it the super mile.

When the race was over each headed in different directions up the track. Liquori turned and began walking counterclockwise. Ryun, feeling plain rotten, lingered near the finish line awhile and then started moving off the track and onto the infield so that it was five minutes or so before they actually came together again

"I thought I had you in the final straight," Ryun said to Liquori. "You looked a little heavy. I tried to move and the same thing happened to me."

Liquori nodded

"I know what you mean," he said. "It looked like a stumbling contest."

It looked like nothing of the sort to those watching, and when Marty Liquori said what he did to Jim Ryun after Sunday's race it was simply one fine competitor paying his sincere respect to another.

Liquori's 3 54 6 was his best ever and Ryun finished so close behind that he was clocked in the same time.

The figures did not approach Ryun's world record of 3:51.1 and Liquori was asked how much the time meant to him compared with beating Ryun, whom he practically sent into retirement with a beating in Miami two years ago.

"I can't see too much excitement running against the clock," said the outgoing 21-year-old Liquori, a Villanova senior and resident of Cedar Grove, N J. "In my mind, a four-minute mile looks the same as 3:51 if you're out there by yourself. I feel I don't care if it's a four-minute mile or a five-minute mile. To me, if two guys are struggling down the backstretch, with both of them revealing a lot of themselves, their desire to win the race, then that's where the excitement is in track."

And that's where it was at Franklin Field.

"It's not beating the other guy," Liquori tried explaining, "it's triumphing over yourself that's more important. Remember, there were a lot of circumstances involved today.

"For example, he had to fly in here from the West Coast; I just had to drive down a little way from my dorm."

Liquori was asked whether he felt he had triumphed over himself by beating Ryun.

"I don't know," he laughed.

"I can't look at it in totality."

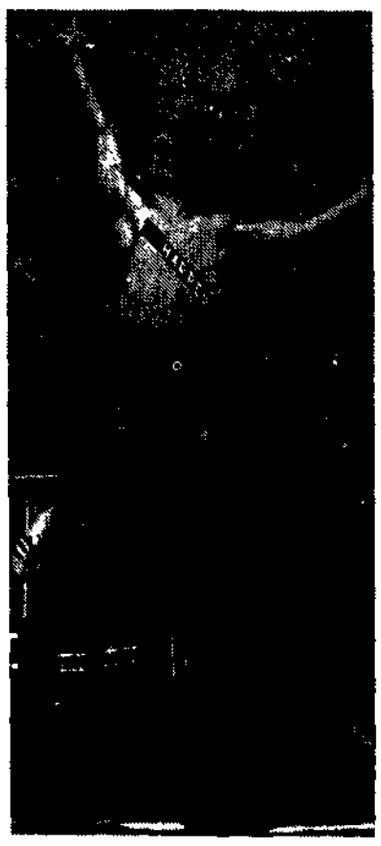
"Does this at least prove to you you're the best?" came another question.

Liquori laughed some more.

"It proves to me I'm the best on May 16th and that's about it," he said.

Liquori is good with figures. He knows he has beaten Jim Ryun three times now in 11 races and likewise knows that averages out to .273 against Ryun's .727.

Marty Liquori out-runs Jim Ryun now and then; he never runs him down.



LONG JUMPER John Piana will be hoping to come up with the leaps of his life this weekend in the National Junior College finals at Mesa, Ariz. Piana and Jim Macnider were the only Harper College track men to qualify.

Harper Wins Tennis Test

Harper College's tennis team officially ended its season Tuesday afternoon at Elgin on, what else, a winning note.

The Hawks, champions of the Skyway Conference, finished out their dual season without a loss in conference play by blasting the Maroons, 6-1.

All the singles players posted victories:

Randy Seiler rolled past Frank Brickhead, 10-2; Roger O'Keefe blanked Ken Alexander, 10-0; Bill Hitzeman romped over Tom Dahlstrom, 10-1; and Mike Bierma edged out Bob Harvey, 10-6.

The first two Hawk doubles teams also won. O'Keefe and Hitzeman bested Brickhead and Dahlstrom, 10-4, and Seiler and Bierma bumped Don Cook and Harvey, 10-2. Absorbing the only loss was the team of Joe Frometa and Randy Bocian. They dropped a 10-8 decision to Alexander and John Taylor.

Kentucky Winners

FRANKFORT Ky (UPI) — Kentucky-bred thoroughbred race horses have won 51 5 per cent of the major stakes races of more than $50 000 in North America over the years the Kentucky Racing Commission reports

The state though, accounts for only one fourth of the annual crop of foals, the commission added

Legion Baseball Tryouts

Anyone who has a mailing address in Arlington Heights and is 18 or under is eligible to participate on the Arlington Heights Legion Baseball Team.

Coach Lloyd Meyer will be organizing his first practice Saturday afternoon at 3 at Recreation Park and again, both Monday and Tuesday at 4 p m. at the same location

An aetrative 40-game schedule including three games with Elgin and Cicero await any interested boys, regardless of where they attended high school.

Tryouts for the Palatine American Legion baseball team will be held Wednesday, May 26, announced coach Bob Grybash

The tryouts will be held at Fremd High School at 6 p m. All prospective players from Palatine, Fremd, Conant and Schaumburg high schools are urged to attend.

Canoe Marathon Sunday

The 14th Annual Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon, sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Cook County and the Illinois Paddling Council, will get underway Sunday, May 23, at Oak Spring Road near Libertyville at 8 a m The 1,000 contestants in 700 canoes will paddle down the river for 25 miles to the finish line at Dam No 2, located 2½ miles north of Des Plaines, east side of River Road

George W. Dunne, President of the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners, will present awards to the men and women who qualify in the various divisions at 5 p.m. at Dam No. 2.

The Canoe Marathon ushers in Clean Streams Week, designated in a proclamotion by Governor Richard B Ogilvie as May 23rd to 29th The Forest Preserve District also sponsors the Cook County Clean Streams Committee, a citizens group charged with locating and combating the pollution of our county waterways

Indy Spots Still Open

President Dunne in commenting on the forthcoming marathon said, "These annual canoe races, thanks to the splendid efforts of Ralph Frese and his associates, are very exciting to watch, and the District is pleased with the co-operation received each year from other governmental agencies in the Chicago Metropolitan area. The marathons also serve to make the general public more aware of the great need for keeping our streams and lakes clean."

The seven remaining spots in the starting lineup for the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race probably will be filled Saturday, with Sunday, the last day of qualifications, devoted to the traditional "bumping" process.

Observers figure there are eight or nine unqualified cars with a "good" chance of making the lineup, and a half dozen other machines with a fair chance.

And if this weekend follows last year's final round of time trials, most of the activity will come Saturday. The extended weather forecast includes a chance of rain by Sunday, which is all the more incentive to be ready for qualifying runs Saturday.

Big Ten's Bill Reed Dies

Big Ten Commissioner Bill Reed died early Thursday at the age of 55 after a long illness with rheumatoid arthritis.

The cause of death was listed as hepatitis

Reed had been hospitalized since early this year and had several operations

His death came little more than a month before he would have completed his 10th year as commissioner of the Big Ten, which he began July 1, 1961, as the third commissioner of the conference.

While Chicago Is Quiet

The Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens were welcomed home Wednesday by the largest crowd ever to turn out in Montreal history. An estimated 500,000-600,000 greeted the National Hockey League Champions in the downtown area of the city

Chemplex Golfers Launch 5th Season: Hader Sharp

Thirty two golfers officially opened the fifth season for the Chemplex Twilight Golf League on Thursday at the Golden Acres Country Club in Schaumburg

Mike Hader led all the golfers with a low gross of 43 including birdies on the 2nd and 7th holes Larry Anderson a first year player shot a low net of 32

The oddity of the evening was Jack Jacobs tee off shot on hole no 2 which hit Mike Hader s ball lying in the fairway some 250 yards away

The Chemplex League is divided into four equal flights based on handicaps (A, B C D), and each of the eight teams in the League is composed of one member of each flight

The Chemplex golfers are looking ahead to two special events this summer The Playboy Club in Lake Geneva Wisc will be the site of the Annual Golf Outing between American Can Co (Barrington) and Chemplex with the winner taking possession of a traveling trophy (Chemplex is a joint venture of American Can Co and Skelly Oil Company)

The end of the season will be marked by the Fifth Annual 'Whup The Boss' Golf Outing when the Chemplex League players match their scores against the play of an assigned Company Officer

League Officers for the season include President — Jack Blanchard, Treasurer — Carl Snyder Scorekeeper — Bill Hicks and Chairman of the Rules Committee — Milt Kostner

When it comes to saving money most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything's done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds. For E Bonds, it's 5% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months. 4% the first year. That's even higher than the rate on the 5½ year certificate.

Sock away the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll working. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can by having.

Take stock in America.

A NEW AGE DAWNS in your garden with Northrup King's "Aquarius" marigold. This new double-crested dwarf French type marigold is ideal for borders. It has a balanced color mixture with shades and bicolors of gold, orange, mahogany red and yellow.

Gypsy Marigold:

A true earth flower; A durable garden favorite

by FRANCES ALTMAN

There are those who condemn the marigold as a noxious weed — others champion it, as did the late Senator Everett Dirksen who felt the marigold should be considered as the national flower.

No one can deny that it is a hardy plant, a gypsy that will bloom under the most severe circumstances. Call it an earth flower, if you will, for its scent is a pungent, earthy one, not sweet.

In texture and in size, the marigold, like the gypsy, can be a trickster. It can mimic other flowers — the carnation and the chrysanthemum. And it is zestfully at home in either rustic or formal settings.

A Marigold Garden was the recent creation of Rolling Meadows landscape architects Harold O. Klopp and Larry G. Pugsley at the Chicago World Flower and Garden Show. Some 1,200 marigold plants were planted in geometric beds, interplayed and contrasted with patio benches and walkways — ideas whch can be adapted for the home garden.

Raised planting beds and marigolds of varying heights created an undulating landscape of golden beauty accented by clumps of dark green evergreens, sod and the silver-gray foliage of Russian olives.

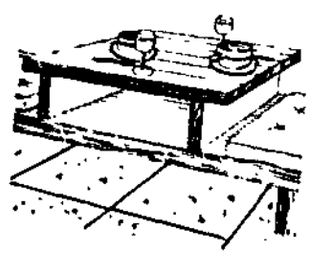
Marigold blooms differ dramatically in shape and form from the single, delicate daisy form to the large double bloom of the Toreador with its perfect symmetry and pure orange coloration found only in this monarch of the garden.

Shorter varieties include the 6 to 8-inch Red Glow and Red and Gold Hybrids; a medium height is the Nugget, maturing at approximately 12 inches. The Climax, Toreador and Senator Dirksen varieties grow to a height of 18 to 24 inches and produce blooms that often reach four inches in diameter.

Adding spice to the garden this season is a new near-white variety, the "Man-On-The-Moon." Though it is not quite as white as "Whitemost," it blooms earlier and has a larger double blossom and measures about 3½ inches across. Another tall one, it grows 20-inches tall and continues to open from mid-summer until frost.

Another newcomer for '71 is "Aquarius," a double-crested dwarf French type ideal for borders. Holding to the traditional marigold mixtures it offers bicolors of gold, orange, mahogany red and yellow.

When started from seeds marigold plants should be thinned to intervals of about 3 inches along borders, more for taller varieties. They are easily transplanted and with proper care will bloom in only a few weeks' time. The marigold also makes an excellent cut floer, but a bouquet's water should be changed daily.



Tote Table

PORTABLE SNACK tables convert patio benches to dining spots, are easily built of fir 1x4s nailed over 2 by 8-inch runners. Paint tables a gay color or try stripes with each board different.

Individual Has Big Role In Fighting Pollution

The individual has a "profound role" to play in improving the American environment, believes Robert F. Lederer, Executive Vice President of the American Assn. of Nurserymen.

"Single persons or even large groups can do little to clean up Lake Erie or the Potomac River," Lederer said. "They can do little to develop devices to lessen pollution emission from automobiles or chemical plants. They can at best have a small effect on the decisions to create large generating plants which have the capability of upsetting the ecology of rivers and oceans. But they do much toward Green Survival."

Green Survival is the Association's national campaign to educate the public on the many positive contributions that plant materials make to the environment. The program is also designed to encourage the individual to undertake planting projects to help the crusade for a better national environment.

Biilogists, psychologists, horticulturists, and scientists have emphasized the need for an increased use of plant material to help improve the hpysical and mental environment of the nation.

"Plant material is everywhere and will survive almost anywhere," Lederer said. "It has big jobs to do, and small. Trees must retard erosion so that earth, with its pollutants, does not wash into small streams and then on to large rivers and oceans. Plants can block out unwanted noises and sights."

Beautiful Gardens By Day Turn Fairylands By Night

When the shade of night begins to engulf the landscape, instead of becoming a sea of gloom, it can take on a new fairyland appearance merely by the flick of a switch The lighted garden at night can be a wonderland of enchantment so different from the same garden by day

In daylight, a shrub may be one of a number of plants that combine to make a border But at night, when sprayed with light, it can stand as a sentinel with interesting features never imagined during the day

A walk or pathway that by day is the quickest and easiest means to go from one par of the garden to another becomes a mystery trail to a new world when marked by the soft glow of light that seems to originate from the depths of the adjacent plants themselves.

The hours of family living outdoors can be extended almost indefinitely, when the area is properly lighted. The landscape design experts at the American Association of Nurserymen say that often the outdoor living room can be made usable at night with only a few strategically placed lights rather than a bank of floodlights

Selecting the right type of garden lights and placing them in the proper location are the important considerations for night landscaping. There will be functional lights which will illuminate paths, drives and other areas. Then there will be decorative lights to highlight trees, shrubs or garden features.

Two types of lighting arrangements are commonly used in home landscapes. One has everything above ground. The fixtures have traditional cords and plugs and a spike for inserting in the ground. Such a system the homeowner can install himself.

The second, and much preferred system, is professionally installed with no exposed wires above ground and the fixtures firmly and permanently placed. Both systems will give the garden a new look at night, but the permanent installation, designed by a professional for the garden, will give effects not possible from above-ground lights.

The most dramatic and inviting effect from garden lights comes when they are not visible during the daylight hours. For instance, to light a foot path, instead of using overhead lights to shine down, there are low fixtures — about a foot above the ground — that cast a soft glow on the path itself

Individual trees and shrubs, as well as fixtures such as fountains and pools, can be illuminated by flood or spot lights that shine up from the base. Sometimes the lights which are used to highlight a feature will also give enough reflected light to aid walkers or illuminate a patio.

It may be desirable to use different colored lights for various areas. A soft red or amber light on a fountain can provide an illusion of the flames of an open fire. Also, even a common shrub will take on a different appearance when bathed in red or blue light.

When designing the landscape setting the AAN nurseryman keeps night effect in mind as well as the day appearance. A plant with interesting branching could be strategically placed so that when in the light of a small spotlight the dancing shadows will add interest to a wall or against the house.

With lights in the landscape, there can be an ever changing night picture in the picture window as the seasons pass.

In Fall, as the leaves begin to drop, the picture takes on new interest. This is culminated by a Winter scene with colored lights playing on snow-frosted trees and shrubs. Then comes the new awakening of Spring as Nature's color again dominates

Even a change in the weather will help create a new picture of the night landscape. The reflection of drops of rain on foliage and branches will sparkle like jewels. An evening mist will also give a different picture.

The addition of the extra charm of a night landscape can be easily achieved. Permanent installation should be considered in the initial planning by the landscape designer.

Thinning Seeds Necessary

Almost every seed packet bears the instructions, "Thin the plants to allow them room to develop," or words to that effect. This is a reasonable and practical suggestion. You may choose to ignore it, but remember seedsmen base their recommendations on the experience accumulated from centuries of gardening.

Why must gardeners need to be reminded again and again to thin the plants they are growing in flower beds and vegetable rows? The answer lies somewhere between the average gardener's carefree approach to gardening and the human quality of mercy that all of us share in varying degrees.

If your flower garden looks like Noah's Ark, with flowers crowded in two by two, or if your carrot roots look like corkscrews, you are suffering from an oversupply of mercy for growing things.

Even the hardnosed professional gardeners share your problem, only they do all they can to overcome it. Professional gardeners employ a number of practices to reduce the need for thinning:

— They seed thinly and transplant the surplus seedlings to fill up skips.

— They start seeds in flats or boxes indoors or in protected outdoor nursery beds for later transplanting.

— They start seeds directly in "plantable" peat pots.

Of course, the professional gardener tries to allow adequate space between plants to begin with. This sounds simple, but most hobby gardeners underestimate the ability of plants to expand and to keep expanding.

A new flowerbed looks so skimpy with young zinnia plants for instance, spaced 2 feet apart. All that bare soil showing for weeks! If looking at bare soil between plants bothers you, then scatter seeds of fast growing flowers such as baby's breath or sweet alyssum between them. Or, in the vegetable garden, plant fast maturing leaf lettuce or radish between plants of slow growing tomatoes, eggplant, or peppers.

Yet, despite all your precautions, you will probably need to do some thinning. If you are careful, the surplus plants will survive for transplanting.

As a rule of thumb, always thin flowers to allow plants to stand alone, except for flowers with small frames such as lobelias.

Use Plants As Weapons Against Air Pollution

Man can live only a few minutes without oxygen, yet he has been treating the air he breathes as though it were completely expendable.

During the Twentieth Century the air over the United States has been used as a repository for an endless list of pollutants, resulting in a national air pollution crisis.

Drastic measures must be taken to stop the pollution, and ways must be found to immediately improve the quality of the air we now breathe. Strangely enough, one of Nature's most abundant creations offers us a means of purifying the air. It is the plant — the green, growing plant.

Plant life, both on land and in the sea, provides man with his sole source of oxygen. "As incredible as it may seem, it is the simple, beautiful trees, shrubbery, grasses, and flowers on land and the vegetation in the sea that provides us with this life-dependent thing called oxygen," said Robert F. Lederer, Executive Vice President of the American Association of Nurserymen.

Plants produce oxygen through the process called photosynthesis. Basically, photosynthesis is the absorption by plant life of carbon dioxide, which is converted into plant food, with the end result being the release of oxygen into the air.

Without photosynthetic activity of green plants, there would be no oxygen for industrial furnaces, let alone for animal and human life. Without the action of plants and animals in aquatic systems, there would be no pure water to supply agriculture, industry, and homes.

Plant life is, therefore, one of America's most important weapons in the fight for environmental quality. Whereas automobiles, factories, and jet planes release tons of pollutants into the air, mass plantings of trees and shrubbery can absorb much of the carbon dioxide and other harmful gasses and release oxygen in their place.

Research conducted by the University of California shows that people who live near freeways breathe air containing less than 1,000 parts fresh air to one part auto exhaust. A healthful ratio is considered to be 2,000 to one. By planting trees or thick shrubbery along freeways, the present ratio can be improved.

Most importantly, homeowners can create their own oxygen-producing factories by planting trees and shrubbery in their own yards to offset the harmful air flowing from freeways, congested areas, or industry.

A Garden Can Grow Anywhere; Just Build Tubs And Plant It

The Age of Portables That's us a generation which demands that nearly everything in and around the house be movable, be it TV set or storage system

The list of intriguing portables grows daily and to it must be added the portable garden

Now? Not exactly For generations, container gardening has been an honored means of introducing the bright color of flowers to a terrace or walkway But today almost everything except the lawn and spreading chestnut tree can and might be grown in a pot It's a sensible development Using containers, you can set a tree or drift of tulips anywhere on the property ignore poor soil conditions, foil root weevils and tailor the environment to suit your taste, not the climate

Building containers is a simple job and costs are low One good tub is built something like a log cabin, minus the notched ends Depending on the tub's size, cedar 1x1's, 2x2s or 2x3s are used and stacked as high as needed

Each course is toe-nailed to the preceding course, and the four pieces of each course are laid end-to-side around the rectangle, so that only one end per piece is exposed Alternate courses reverse direction

That design built of 2x3s laid flat is particularly good for large tubs, since the corner joints are especially strong. Appearance-wise it's a winner with strong horizontal lines, straight sides and clean, square corners. For a detailed, traditional look, add corner guard moldings

Another tub that's easy to build calls for either 1x1s or 2x2s run vertically to form the sides The pieces are held in place either by interior bracing or an exposed frame on the outside.

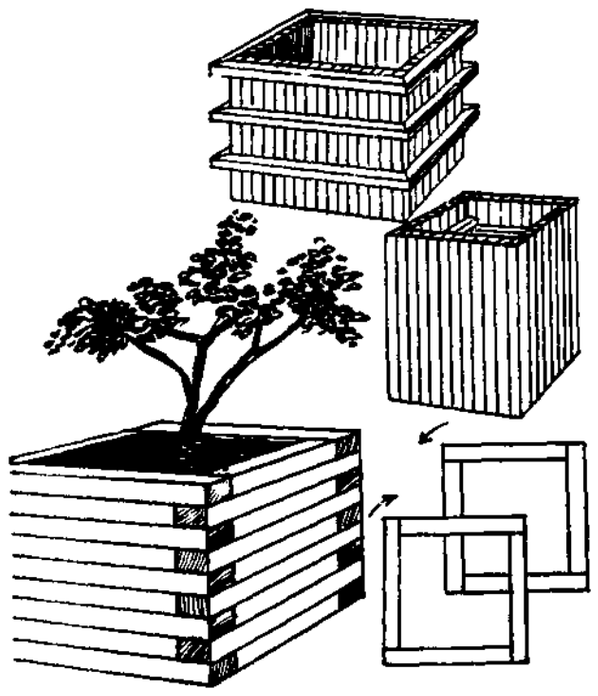
The interior brace calls, again, for 1x1s or 2x2s which are run around the perimeter of the tub at the bottom, middle and top, much like fence rails. Corners of the bracing needn't be mitered; instead, overlap ends letting two of the pieces rest on the other two.

For an exposed framework, miter corners

A base for any of the three tub patterns can be built of dimension lumber nailed over edge-up 2x2 or 2x3-inch runners. Drill drain holes in the base and slide a shallow pan between runners to catch drain water that may stain a patio or deck surface.

Tubs built of western red cedar lumber will last a good many years, but larger sizes containing permanent plantings should be lined. Metal linings are often used. Some avid gardeners, however, prefer heavy-duty plastic bags — garbage can liners. They're staped to the tub's inside and drainage holes are punched in the bottom.

Big tubs become portable when mounted on ball casters



STACKED CEDAR 2x3s made the big tub, lower left. Sides are built with pieces laid end-to-side; alternate courses reverse direction. Upper tubs have vertical 1x1s or 2x2s nailed to interior bracing or exposed frame. Bases are of dimension lumber nailed over edge-up 2x2s or 2x3s.

Select Evergreens For Beauty And Value

by SHEILA and ALLAN SWENSON
Garden Specialists

Evergreens are useful in every garden. They have many assets that will enhance any type of size of landscaping — dignity permanence and richness of color and texture Their greatest asset is their ability to give definition to a landscaping design

Use evergreens for backgrounds, hedges and as a contrast for deciduous plants

Most evergreens are quite adaptable The juniper thrives in sunlight Yews do best in moist soil Taller evergreens are ideal plants for focal points in a yard Low growing plants are preferable for foundation plantings

Evergreens, both broad-and narrow-leaf are seldom sold bare root, because they re always in leaf

Plant evergreens according to their eventual size at maturity This allows them to spread out and grow quickly When you have set them and partially filled the hole 'loosen' the burlap and push it down into the sides of the hole It will eventually rot away

Water the plants deeply about once a week particularly during dry periods When they have begun to grow, feed them lightly with balanced fertilizer

Use good mulch, peat moss or compost to provide good growing soil conditions for the plants

To pick the best evergreens for your area see your local nurseryman or reputable garden center

Avoid bargain plants that won't stand up well Evergreens are a lasting investment so pick and plant properly They ll add value to your home in beauty and dollars in the years ahead

This week I have decided to turn the column over to you in this first section to see what you think about Chicago radio and TV and to find out your feelings about how things could be improved.

After you are done answering the questions, simply put the answers in the mail and address them to: TELETALK READER POLL, in care of this newspaper.

I would like to find out what you think, and I feel some broadcast people in Chicago would be interested in what you have to say, too.

I will report on this poll in later columns, so please indicate as to whether you want your name withheld or not in case I wish to use some direct quotes from your letter.

Here are the survey questions:

1. My favorite Chicago TV station is:

2. My favorite Chicago radio station is.

3. My favorite Chicago sportcaster is:

4. My favorite Chicago newsman is:

5. The thing I like least about Chicago television is:

6. The thing I like most about Chicago television is:

7. My favorite Chicago radio disk jockey is:

13. My favorite talk show host in Chicago is:

14. My opinion of Bozo's Circus is:

15. What changes would you like to see (if any) in the way movies are shown on Chicago television?

16. Any other general commentary or opinion about Chicago radio or TV

What Do You Think?

If you like to switch from TV to radio after the 10 p.m. newscasts are on, you may be familiar with a guy named Jack Eigen on WMAQ radio.

Eigen talks from 10:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Monday through Saturday on WMAQ and he has had the distinction of having the only daily talk show on Windy City radio for nearly 20 years.

Two things strike me about Jack Eigen.

The first is that you will probably either love or hate him almost immediately.

His style is so unique that it is difficult to ignore him. He practices a highly personal brand of radio as he gives you almost every detail about his day and gives you a rundown on his family.

While other talk show hosts tend to hide feelings and rarely reflect about their personal lives, Eigen "lets it all hang out," in a talk session that often verges on psychotherapy.

If all of this sounds a bit tedious to you, let me caution you about the other thing that makes Jack Eigen stand out.

He does his show very well and is probably one of the very few people who can hold a microphone completely by himself with no guests for many minutes or even hours.

Almost every major star visiting Chicago usually makes a visit to the Eigen show a "must," not only because he is blessed with a loyal following but also because Eigen usually conducts a pretty good interview.

Certain show business people do avoid the Eigen show, however, because at one time he was one of the most outspoken interviewers in the country.

Now he has mellowed somewhat, and he usually reserves his blasts for his current "girl Friday" for not writing guest's names neatly.

If you are tired of listening to music some evening and the TV set is dark, you might tune in 670 on your AM dial.

You might hate what you hear or love what you hear, but you will probably not be neutral.

ON THE COVER: The young ladies who provide the singing voices for the cartoon, "Josie and the Pussycats," seen Saturdays 10:30-10:56 a.m. on the CBS Television Network, were actually cast to resemble the comic book characters, Josie and her two pussycats. They are Catherine Dougher (brown hair), Chene Moor (blonde) and Patrice Holloway

TeleTalk MAILBAG

After reading the enclosed (a recent MAILBAG with questions as to why Channel 9's CREATURE FEATURES is not on at an earlier hour), I thought your readers might like to know they can see early spooky movies every Sunday from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Channel 32.

Science fiction movies are also scheduled at an early hour on Channel 32, and they're pretty scary too.

My girlfriend and I would like to know why GILLIGAN'S ISLAND was taken off the air. We both think that Bob Denver played a good part in that program. Also, we were having an argument over what he played before GILLIGAN'S ISLAND. Could you please tell us.

—Maria C. and Joann W.
Arlington Heights

ANSWER:

Old programs like GILLIGAN'S ISLAND are bought in groups to be rerun. When the supply of programs is exhausted, the station takes the show off the air, at least for awhile.

Denver appeared as Maynard G. Krebs in THE MANY LOVES OF DOBBIE GILLIS before GILLIGAN'S ISLAND. Most recently, he starred in THE GOOD GUYS, a short-lived situation comedy.

Hofert And Samelson

Appointment Of Legal Firm Eyed By Hanover Park

by JERRY THOMAS

The firm of Hofert and Samelson now acting as legal counsel for Hoffman Estates is expected to be appointed to represent the village of Hanover Park as well

Village Pres Richard Baker will suggest Norman Samelson of the Hofert and Samelson firm as his choice for Village attorney to the board members in executive session sometime Thursday if the board schedule allows

Baker wants to make the appointment at the end of May and stated he felt Samelson s qualifications would make him an excellent village attorney for Hanover Park

Baker s admission that Samelson was his choice after interviewing several candidates was surprising to some board members upsetting to others

An appointment made by the president would have to receive three approving trustees votes to be effective

A POLL OF the board members indicates Samelson will have those three votes

Trustees who said they ll vote for Samelson are Frank Palla Valle Jr Thomas Evert and William Rietz newly seated Republican backed candidates who ran as a three man slate in the April election

Samelson acts as attorney for the Schaumburg Township Republican party who backed the slate for Hanover office

Dalla Valle and Evert had at the first session they were seated, presented an ordinance drawn up for them by Samelson establishing the managerial form of government and establishing the duties and powers of the village manager In the same election that won them their seats on the board residents voted in the managerial form of government by referendum

The ordinance holds importance in Baker's decision to appoint Samelson since it as prepared by Samelson, would strip the president of all appointive powers and gives these appointive powers to a village manager One of the appointments the manager would make would be the village attorney

Trustee Rietz said Baker s apparent irritation that night when the two GOP men presented the ordinance drawn up by Samelson leaves him with a totally surprised feeling today "

' I'm satisfied of course he added, "but mostly surprised that Baker chose Samelson said Rietz

"This proves to me that Samelson is being considered for his merits because it is an appointment the president had to make on his own, ' he added

Baker said four hours of interviewing gave him an insight into Samelson's personality and checks on his reputation prove him to be capable

The village manager ordinance was brought up briefly during the interview but "It's no problem," Baker added "It has not been adopted by the board and is in the hands of another attorney together with our attorneys ordinance awaiting a recommendation," he said

ALL THREE GOP trustees deny that Samelson s appointment was in payment of a pre election commitment by the GOP candidates

Trustee David Bugh is holding his decision on Samelson and said he has not met him, does not know him and feels an executive session to discuss fees and duties is in order

Trustee Jim Lewis thinks the presidents appointment means ' bad news "

"I am not necessarily reflecting on Samelson's abilities or him as a person," Lewis said

However it is public knowledge that the Hanover Park Republican slate of candidates is committed to hiring Samelson because he works for the Republican Party, he's no man of their own choice," claims Lewis

Lewis insists the village of Hanover Park was well and ably represented by attorney Davies

"His work has never been challenged and I don t think we need another attorney The only reason Baker is not reappointing Davies is because he personally has a conflict with him and cannot work with Davies, ' said Lewis

Trustee Barry Rogers was not available for comment

ATTORNEY DAVIES when asked how he felt about the matter said 'I ve been too busy handling village business to worry about it "

Annual Teen Job Hunt Is Under Way

by NANCY COWGER

With the end of the school year less than a month away, the annual teenage summer job hunt is under way But prospects are not favorable this year

Russell Anslow, Schaumburg Township youth counselor, has been working for several weeks on a special service he provides for young people in the township a ' job clearing house " Thus far, the outlook is not good, he said

Anslow send out letters to 160 businesses in the township last week He asked them to whenever possible hire young people for the summer Any job that can be done by a young person can be filled by his office, he feels, and it is strictly a public service Neither the teenager nor the employer is charged

ANSLOW SAID he realizes it may not be fiscally sound to create jobs for teenagers But he feels it is good business to hire the young for many jobs, relieving more expensive employes for more important work

As of yesterday, Anslow had received four replies to his letters with the potential of six or seven jobs among them

Anslow also plans to leave flyers advertising his service at grocery stores and other places of business in the township During the week of June 14 he will "hit the homeowners," distributing leaflets encouraging residents to hire a teen to cut grass babysit, wash windows or do any other work around the house

Last year, Anslow placed about 70 teens in jobs through his service, although many of them were "one-shot deals,' such as cleaning a basement or putting up screens, he said There were about 120 teenagers competing for the work, he said

ANSLOW HAS distributed application blanks at the junior high schools, and placed posters at the senior highs inviting young people to fill out forms at his office

When a potential employer calls him for an applicant, said Anslow, he goes through his files seeking someone with the proper qualifications He calls the person who most closely fills the job's needs, and tells them who to contact for an interview

Anslow leaves the question of salary and hours to be settled between the employer and the applicant His function is to get them together

This year jobs are hard to find, said Anslow "It is an employer's market, and they can afford to be choosy "

In the past, jobs have been especially scarce for people still in school, since they promised only three months or less of employment This year even graduates will have trouble, he said

But the high school dropout is in the most difficult spot, he said No one seems to want him Anslow just finished a two-month search for a job for a dropout

ANSLOW RECOMMENDS grocery stores and companies with seasonal work, such as landscapers, as the most likely employers But checking with management, factories appear to offer more hope, at least for persons over 18 years of age

Grocery stores do not really have a major need for summer help, said Tom Byrne, manager of the National Store at

Scale Is Part Of Signup Gear

Part of the Hanover Park Boys Football Association officers equipment for Saturdays player registration will be a scale

A second registration is planned for July 17 at the same time and place

A regular schedule of games this year has been planned to start this fall Football games will be played with teams from other suburban communities

Boys who plan to play must be eight years old before Jan 1 1971 and not yet 14

Boys who want to play must have observed their eighth birthday by January of this year They must also show birth certificate or baptismal certificate proof that they are not yet fourteen and will not be before Sept 1 1971

Move To Name Larson Seen

A motion to appoint Daniel T Larson as village manager in Hoffman Estates is expected from Trustee Edward Hennessy at the first June village board meeting

"I ll make the motion " Hennessy said, yesterday

"I don't anticipate any resistance ' he added "Anyone who might resist won't say so publicly

Mayor Frederick Downey, rumored to oppose the appointment, said, "no comment" when asked about Hennessy's intended motion

"This is the first I've heard about it," Downey said, adding it has been his uncompromised practice never to discuss board action concerning personnel before action is taken

UNDER ILLINOIS statutes village officials have a right not to comment on a matter regarding the status of employes

Downey, in accords with state statutes, could also be a one man vote blocking the appointment of Larson as village manager, said Edward Hofert, village attorney

"We're going to wait a week to clear the channels," Hennessy added, when asked why the motion will be delayed The village board will not meet Monday, May 31 because that date is a legal holiday

Hennessy also wants to be sure there are no stumbling blocks in the ordinance for appointing a village manager

LARSON HAS been serving as administrative assistant to the village president since February, 1970

"I think he's worked hard for 15 months ' Hennessy said 'He's covered a great many things, litigation public works annexation, and God knows with the water and sewer problems we've had '

'The board has used him as a constant go-between and for communications between the attorney and the board," he added

Larson s attendance at village board meetings and most village committee meetings was also noted by Hennessy

Hennessy said the board has called on Larson to serve in instances where he does not have authority and that the time has come to give him that authority officially

"We'll act after the Memorial Day holiday," he added

FIREMEN FROM Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates fought this blaze yesterday afternoon at a vacant farm house at Golf and Plum Grove roads. Elk Grove firemen stood-by to help in Schaumburg. Officials said the fire apparently was set, but did not know by whom. The house had been scheduled for demolition.

20 Years Of Night School – Now A Degree

Tonight will literally "cap" 20 years of work for a Hoffman Estates man

Jack Mayer, 233 Kingman Ln , will go to Orchestra Hall tonight to receive his Bachelor's Degree in mechanical engineering from Illinois Institute of Technology Tonight's cap-and-gown ceremony culminates 20 years of night school classes, of staying up late poring over books, while working at a full time job and rearing a family

The Mayers were married 20 years ago, and Mrs Mayer said she does not know how she'll react, having for the first time a husband who is not in school Earning his degree has been a family project, she said The children have grown up with a healthy respect for keeping quiet during evening study hours

Because this has been in a sense a family affair, the whole family will attend commencement tonight to see the husband and father receive his degree 'Jack wanted to just take it in the mail,' said Mrs Mayer, but she said she wouldn t have let him skip the occasion for anything

AFTER COMMENCEMENT, the Mayers will hold a celebration in their home It will be a chance to start renewing some of the friendships they have lost, said Mrs Mayer, when they were too busy with homebork to keep pace with a social life

The Mayers have lived in Hoffman Estates 12 years after moving from Chicago While they lived in the city, Mayer took a few courses at Wright Junior College But 99 per cent of his classes have been at the institute, said Mrs Mayer

Mayer works in Batavia, as a mechanical engineer for Dunbar Kappel, a manufacturing firm He has held a mechanical engineering license the past five or six years, said Mrs Mayer, and receiving his degree will "mean nothing to him as far as his job is concerned " For the past few years, he has been attending college only because he had gone so far, it seemed unthinkable not to finish, he said

Now that he is receiving his degree, Mayer does not plan to continue his education He will begin catching up on the things for which he has never had time There have been a lot of books printed in the last 20 years, and Mayer looks forward to reading many of them

Mrs Mayer said their life to this point has been "different" from that of anyone else they know The nights Mayer went to school, usually two or three each week, he would leave in the morning and not return home until 10 p m or later Driving from home to Batavia, and from Batavia to the institute, and then coming home took his full day The other nights were devoted to study His three children, John, 19, Kathy, 17, and Jack, 12, learned early to plan their activities so as not to interfere with their father's study hours

It is not the kind of life Mrs Mayer would recommend to anyone else and neither would her husband, she said He tells his own children if they plan to go to college they should finish school before marrying, she said

But Mayer's accomplishment is one in which his whole family takes pride When they go to Orchestra Hall tonight they plan to be the most enthusiastic cheering section there

Mitchell Ware Defends IBI

Mitchell Ware director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation Tuesday defended the role of the IBI and criticized those who level unfair attacks at the agency

'We will not be intimidated by that kind of pressure by some of those in high places who cater to every radical friend in perpetuating them in political office Ware said

We will not be intimidated by that pitiful caricature of a man who wears the mantle of a public official who prostitutes his oath of office he said

Speaking at the division 17 of Kiwanis International meeting near Elk Grove Village Ware did not name specific persons other than to criticize those who oppose the IBI He did say he was surprised that Lt Gov Paul Simon had lowered himself in criticizing the IBI

WARE INDICATED that the public may hear more about the IBI since its financial appropriations are now under discussion in Springfield

A state representative, Rolland Tipsword D Taylorville has introduced a bill to abolish the 16-month-old IBI started by Gov Richard Ogilvie

"Every once in a while we've taken our lumps but that is to be expected Ware said

He pointed to the 97 per cent conviction rate the IBI had out of 243 cases that have gone to trial in the last year

THE CRIME rate in Illinois went up two per cent last year while nationally it rose 11 per cent In surrounding states it went up 15 and 16 per cent, he said

Ware said the IBI utilizes every tool in the law enforcement arsenal and that it has yielded results He noted the indictment of Fiore Buccieri, the alleged boss of the Chicago crime syndicate

Buccieri who had not been arrested since 1946 was indicted by a DuPage County Grand Jury for involvement in a heavy construction equipment theft ring

The IBI deals with "difficult crime' that local agencies do not have the manpower to cope with Ware said These include the murder of horse trainer George Jayne of Inverness bombings the Paul Powell scandal narcotics and dangerous drugs as well as organized crime

A former TV newsman, Ware criticized the news media for its handling of the raids the IBI made in southern Illinois last month Some of the reports were slanted he said

Defending the IBI's taking television camera crews on the raids in which explosives were discovered he said he didn t know if it would be done again but that he did not regret it

FORTY-EIGHT persons were arrested However three Southern Illinois University students who were innocent appeared on national television and were labeled as the chief conspirators

Ware said Cook County State s Atty Edward Hanrahan has told him that he wished he had invited television crews along when state's attorneys police raided the Black Panthers apartment where two members of the gang were killed

Ware said he was glad the IBI had the camera crews on its raids He later added that reports of newsmen who accompanied the IBI on the raids were accurate but that news reports became distorted by other media men who did not accompany the IBI agents on the raids

Ware produced letters from radio and television stations agreeing that any misunderstanding was self inflicted by the news media

Responding to a recent news report that Ware is apparently the only high state official that requires or accepts money for speaking engagements, he said I figured I was worth a little if they insist on me as a speaker "

He noted that members of the IBI speak without fee but that when a group wants the top man they should be willing to pay for him

Golf and Roselle roads

There is no real increase in business for grocers during the summer, said Byrne so there is no need to increase the work force At his store there is already a sufficient force of part time workers who have worked Saturday or night hours during the school year They jump at the chance to increase their hours when regular employes go on vacation he said Byrne said any openings he will have will merely represent normal turn over Fall is his major part time hiring season he said when young people quit jobs as school reopens

CHRIS COLLIE personnel director at Motorola Inc on Algonquin Road, said his firm will be hiring summer workers although he does not yet know how many He hopes to hire more than he did last year but not as many as he did two years ago He already has a large file of applicants he said The teens began coming in last January and applications hit a peak around Easter although he still is accepting them

For factory jobs the applicant must be 18 years old said Collie because of state law But Motorola does have a large office staff and accepts 16 year olds for office work Collie added that his firm tries to provide as many jobs for teens as possible

Construction companies are off limits to the teenager A representative of Campanelli Brothers said his firm hires only union help and applicants must be at least 19 years old

The older teen or young adult has a few options in his summer job hunt with manufacturing firms and vacation seasons in offices But for the younger teen the chances are pretty slim as Anslow put it

Eye 'Week Of Young Child'

The Week of the Young Child is being observed in Hoffman Estates this week and next week.

In honor of the week devoted to preschool children, Schaumburg Township Public Library now has on display art work contributed by children in three nursery schools in Hoffman Estates. They are Early Learners Nursery School, held at Our Savior's Methodist Church; Countryside Nursery School, Higgins Road; and the First Baptist Church Nursery School.

Mayor Frederick Downey has signed an official proclamation declaring village recognition of the event. And the children are "doing their own thing" to set aside the event.

In the Early Learners school, a special session will be held tomorrow aimed at acquainting fathers with what goes on during the rest of the week. On the early Fathers' Day, daddies are asked to attend with their children, no mommies allowed, and do just what the children do in a normal nursery school day. The fathers also will see slides of some nursery school activities that cannot be included in the single-day event.

Vote To Expand Library District Is Tomorrow

A proposal to expand the Wheeling Library District into Lake County will go to voters in a referendum tomorrow.

Residents of the present district—most of Wheeling and the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove — and residents of the Lake County annexation area will vote on the proposal from noon to 6:30 p.m.

The annexation area includes the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, the communities of Horatio Gardens, Half Day, and Prairie View and parts of Long Grove and Lincolnshire. Its boundaries are the county line on the south, the Des Plaines River on the east, Arlington Heights Road and Rte. 83 on the west and a section line a mile north of Port Clinton Road on the north.

If the referendum passes, residents of the annexation area will begin paying a library tax of about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation or an annual tax of $33 on a house with an assessed valuation of $15,000.

Passage of the referendum would result in a slight decrease in the taxes of residents of the present district. The 22 cent tax includes two cents per $100 of assessed valuation for a bond issue. This would be reduced slightly since the tax base would be increased.

RESIDENTS OF THE annexation area would receive free Wheeling library cards if the referendum passes. Library officials also plan to have a book mobile for the area and they are considering a branch library.

Library officials say that the expansion will give the district a larger tax base and allow it to increase its collection of books and its services. They say the annexation area is the natural growth area for the library district. The boundaries of the area generally follow those proposed in a study done for the North Suburban Library System.

While the annexation area covers 15 square miles, more than the present district's 10 square miles, it has no library service and a much smaller population. The present district has about 25,000 people, the new area has 5,000.

Critics of the annexation complain that, except for the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, residents of the annexation area were not contacted about the referendum in advance. They also say that the library is too small to serve the new area.

A list of the polling places for the referendum follows.

PRECINCT 1— Willow Grove School, 777 Checker, Buffalo Grove. Residents of the annexation area who live west of the Soo Line RR. tracks.

Precinct 3 — Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Residents of the present district west of Buffalo Grove Rd.

Precinct 4 — Louisa May Alcott School, 530 Bernard, Buffalo Grove. Residents of the present district west of Buffalo Grove Road.

A Herald Editorial

'Yes' Vote Best On Referendum

The Herald recommends that voters in the present Wheeling Library District and in the Lake County annexation area vote yes in tomorrow's library referendum.

For residents of the present district — most of Wheeling and the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove — a yes vote will be a vote for continued growth and improvement of their library. It will not increase their taxes.

For the residents of Lake County, a yes vote will mean a new tax of 22 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. But it will also be a vote for organized growth, professional services and a library district of realistic size.

The shift of Wheeling's library from a volunteer, amateur organization to a modern efficient service has already begun.

A little more than a year ago voters already in the district approved a referendum to purchase a new library building and to provide increased funds for operation of the local library.

Residents have a new library building, the beginning of an expanded book collection and a professional librarian. A professional children's librarian is soon to join the staff.

Residents who voted for the referendum a year ago must now vote again to help the district continue in its efforts to provide adequate library service. Expansion will bring the district a larger tax base and more funds to work for, meeting the needs of an area which it already serves.

For residents of the Lake County area proposed to join the district (Lake County Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Half Day, Horatio Gardens, Aptakisic, and parts of the village of Long Grove and Lincolnshire) voting "yes" tomorrow will mean a chance to join a district which has shown its ability to modernize and to begin to bring its library up to par.

If residents of the area wait for a smaller library district to begin in their own communities they will only have to face the years of "volunteer" libraries and, in the end, an even bigger tax bill when the smaller district decides to build its own modern facilities.

Critics of the library district complain that the boundaries of the annexation area are arbitrary, particularly because they only take in parts of Long Grove and Lincolnshire.

Library representatives reply — and we think correctly — that the boundaries are natural ones, the Des Plaines River on the east, Rte. 83 on the west. These are certainly more comprehensible boundaries than those of many villages in the area.

The boundaries are generally those suggested by the North Suburban Library System after a professional study of the area. While the annexation area is large — larger than the present district — the library system had tended toward larger library districts because they operate with greater efficiency and cause less duplication of services.

Residents of the new area must also remember that in addition to a chance to pay taxes to the district, they will also have a chance to vote in its elections and help direct its future growth.

Board members of the district have visions of future expansion possibilities for the district such as branch libraries, a book mobile, and expanded services in the new main library building.

But only by establishing a larger district with a larger tax base, can the district realize its plans of becoming a modern, efficient library district geared to serving the suburban residents in this area.

Lake-Cook To Be 4 Lanes

Lake-Cook Road will be extended through Wheeling as a four-lane expressway about 1972, Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said this week.

Scanlon said Cook County will extend the expressway through Wheeling from Milwaukee Avenue to McHenry Road rather than continuing through Buffalo Grove.

"They'll stop until they get Buffalo Grove to decide what the route should be (through Buffalo Grove)," Scanlon said.

Scanlon based his estimate on the road extension through Wheeling in 1972 on conversations with county officials. He said the officials indicated the plan was to complete the extension through Wheeling and then await a decision on a route before undertaking the extension from McHenry Road to Rand.

In Wheeling the route closely follows the county line.

Wheeling has a route on its official map which matches the county's choice.

Lake-Cook Road does not currently exist in Wheeling.

There is a paved portion of the road which dead-ends on the east side of Buffalo Grove. Coming from the east, Lake-Cook road ends at Milwaukee Avenue.

Paths for the LakeCook Road extension in Buffalo Grove alternately would either follow the path of the existing road or would lie between the village municipal building and Emmerich Park.

Although Scanlon said he had informatio that the Wheeling portion of the road would be built in 1972, official documents from the county highway department are not as specific as to the timing of the construction.

All work on Lake-Cook Road becoming a four lane highway separated by a median is potentially slated somewhere between 1972 and 1975.

Milwaukee Avenue to McHenry Road is number 41 on the list of projects for that period, and McHenry Road to Rand is number 45.

Plans to make LakeCook a limited access expressway farther east are ahead of the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove work on the county's list.

Edens Expressway to Waukegan Road, Sanders Road to Waukegan Road and Milwaukee Avenue to Sanders Road are given higher priority.

Plan Board Weighs Multiple-Family Housing Plan

A proposal for a massive multi-family development in Arlington Heights near the western end of Wheeling was presented to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Wednesday.

The plan commission gave no immediate answer on the proposal which would be the largest multi-family development in Arlington Heights.

After an extended hearing, the proposal was referred to the plan commission's plat and subdivision committee and the hearing was continued to July 14.

The request for approval of a planned development involves about 70 acres of land on the north and south sides of Hintz Road at Windsor Drive (Buffalo Grove Road), adjoining the existing Northgate subdivision. The land was zoned R-5 (multiple family) in January, 1967, when it was annexed along with the Northgate property.

Arnold Anderson, chief architect for Miller Builders, told the commission and the approximately 50 neighboring residents in attendance that the project would include 934 multiple-family units.

ACCORDING TO the plans, nine two-story and six four-story buildings, in addition to 79 four-unit condominium buildings, would occupy the land.

The condominium buildings would include two-and three-bedroom units. The apartment buildings would include 378 one-bedroom, 524 two-bedroom and 33 three-bedroom units.

Anderson also told the planning group that the project would be screened from adjoining single-family homes and would include two swimming pools, a community building, tennis courts and incidental play area.

A retention pond near the north end of the project also would be used for recreational purposes, he said.

HERMAN SOIFER, vice president of Miller Builders, said the apartment rentals would start at about $215 and the condominiums would sell for $24,000 to $26,000.

The request for approval of the planned development was the second hearing of the night for Miller Builders.

Earlier in the evening, the developer requested approval of a preliminary plat of subdivisions for Northgate Unit 5.

This phase of the Northgate development, comprising about 60 acres to the south and east of the proposed multiple-family project, would include 179 more single-family homes similar to those existing in Northgate.

The commissxion voted unanimously to continue that hearing until July 14, pending a report from the commission's plat and subdivision committee.

ABOUT 50 OWNERS of single-family homes in the Northgate subdivision appeared at the hearing to object to the apartment project. Among them were approximately 30 who presented a petition declaring that a representative of Miller Builders had assured them the land in question would be used for schools and parks.

Education Unit Elects

Five persons were elected to two-year terms on the Education Commission of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Buffalo Grove last weekend.

Elected were: Robert Hermes, Bruce Brown, James Marra, Margaret Toporek, and Joyce McCabe. The voting was held after the evening Masses on Saturday and the morning Masses on Sunday.

Announce Street Resurfacing Plan

Wheeling Trustee Edward Berger announced this week that the village will resurface streets in areas of the Hollywood Ridge subdivision north of Dundee Road.

Berger said the village will have to omit unit five of the subdivision from the work, however, because streets in that section have not been officially accepted by the village. Streets in unit five include Berkshire Drive, Coral Lane, Mockingbird Lane and Chestnut Lane.

Berger, who heads the board's streets, public buildings and grounds committee, explained that the work would be done contingent on the availability of motor fuel tax rebates to pay for the work.

Banser Criticizes 2 Referendums

The Buffalo Grove park referendum and the Wheeling library referendum have been criticized by Harold Banser, superintendent of High School Dist 125

Banser said he opposes the park referendum because it includes $382,000 for an indoor swimming pool to be built in connection with the Dist 214 high school planned for Buffalo Grove

Banser's district, which takes in the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, is just completing a swimming pool at Stevenson High School Banser said that he thinks Dist 214 which serves the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove, should build its own swimming pool instead of relying on the Buffalo Grove Park District

BANSER SAID he opposes the library referendum because "If it was to be done there should have been a great amount of preliminary work done with the people of Lake County. I don't think there was enough work done and I don't think enough information was given out ahead of time to warrant the boundaries"

The boundaries, Banser said, include part of his district but omit other parts "I would prefer a district which includes all of the school district," he said

Banser also said that he doubts that the Wheeling library "will be able to provide much service" He said, however, that he would find it difficult to oppose the referendum if the new boundaries included only Lake County Buffalo Grove

He criticized the library district for including land farther north which will soon be developed and provide a rich tax base while excluding the current population centers of Long Grove and Lincolnshire In addition, he said that residents of those villages tend to go to public libraries to the east, rather than to the Wheeling library

IN SPEAKING about the park referendum, Banser concentrated his criticism on High School Dist 214 He said the district should have included a pool in its original plans for the new school and that its cost should have been included in the recent Dist 214 referendum.

"The primary purpose of this kind of pool is instruction of high school students in water safety," Banser said. "Dist. 214, with its tax base, should provide the pool as part of its physical education program"

Banser said that Lake County residents of Buffalo Grove will, if the park referendum passes, pay for two high school pools, one at Stevenson, which is financed by Dist 125 taxes, and the second at the Dist. 214 high school, which would be paid for with Buffalo Grove park district taxes

School Dist. Will Cooperate

Supt Edward H Gilbert of High School Dist 214 has announced that the district will cooperate with the Buffalo Grove park district s plans for a swimming pool to be built in connection with the district s high school in Buffalo Grove

Gilbert pointed out that the plans are contingent on voter approval of tomorrow's park district referendum

He said that the school district would use the pool for physical education and athletic programs and "would be most willing to bear its appropriate share of the cost of operating the pool"

Gilbert said his district "would be very pleased to work with the park district in developing the joint school and swimming pool facility" on the high school district site at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads

"With the approval of the voters," Gilbert said his district "will be ready to initiate joint planning for the construction of the school and swimming pool"

Fishbein Letter Called Misleading By Trustee

I would like to reply to Justin Fishbein's letter on the library referendum

Mr Fishbein is misleading when he says that the Wheeling library's book budget is $38 000 a year That figure is correct for the past year However, it is based on our old tax rate of 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation Our tax was raised last year to 20 cents a two-thirds increase Our book budget will also increase by about that amount

In addition our assessed valuation has increased from $63 million to $73 million further increasing the amount available for book purchases If the referendum succeeds, our assessed valuation will increase too and we will have even more for books

The FENCE POST
Letters to the Editor

Despite Mr Fishbein's contention the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission was contacted about library plans The North Suburban L brary System contracted NIPC and the commission recommended that the Urban Life Institute do the library survey The institute did make this survey and we have followed it

Joyce Finnegan
Trustee
Wheeling Library District

A Reply To Mrs. McCabe's Letter

In reply to Mrs Joyce McCabe s letter, the Dist 214 people and park district representatives were not invited to the Buffalo Grove Alliance meeting They asked to appear That evening we discussed the library referendum but decided not to act because we did not have enough information We did attend the library district s next public meeting to hear their case That was last Friday at a Strathmore Homeowners Association meeting

Based on that presentation by the library district the executive committee of the BGA voted not to endorse the referendum.

Residents To Decide Fate Of Park Facilities

Residents of the Buffalo Grove Park District will vote tomorrow on whether the district should spend more than $1 million to expand park facilities and build two swimming pools.

Approval would authorize the district to sell $1,250,000 in general obligation bonds to cover the cost of land acquisition and park development.

The bonds would be sold at a five per cent interest rate and mature in 15 years. The cost to property owners will average 19.2 cents per $100 assessed evaluation over the 15 years. This would mean that the owner of a house with a market value of $30,000 would find his park district tax bill increased from the current $22.50 to about $50.30, if the bond issue is passed.

The referendum plans were prepared by Alan Caskey of McFadzean and Everly Ltd., park planners. The financial consulting firm was Benjamin and Lang.

Plans call for adding 35 acres of park land, mainly in places where there are currently no parks.

The district plans to buy about ten acres in the area of the Cambridge subdivision. Plans call for construction of a preschool shelter, an open play area, play apparatus and baseball fields.

At the northern end of the district in Lake County, an outdoor swimming pool is proposed for a 15-acre park. Tennis courts are also proposed there. The land for this park, near the sewerage treatment plant, will be purchased from the village.

THE OTHER SWIMMING pool will be built in conjunction with the new Dist. 214 high school on the corner of Dundee and Arlington Heights roads. It will be an indoor-outdoor sized pool. The school district will pay part of the operating costs.

The other 10 acres of land to be purchased will be in the central area of the village.

Money also will be set aside for expansion of the Emmerich Park building and improvement of the five school-park sites, "site 21," and the Raupp Memorial.

The money will be used for playground equipment, landscaping, and construction of baseball fields and in the case of the Cooper Park site, an athletic track. Plans for "site 21" on Arlington Heights Road in Lake County provide for landscoping, a playground area, a baseball field and a sled hill. The proposed improvements for the Raupp Memorial, on Rte. 83 are the repair of the existing farm house, removal of outbuildings, and landscaping.

The reasons for the referendum were outlined by Park District Pres. William Kiddle.

"The immediate need is obvious," he said.

"Open space is diminishing rapidly in the village and land values are more than doubling each year. Also, construction costs are increasing at the rate of one per cent a month, making the proposed facilities more expensive if we wait," he said.

KIDDLE SAID the cost to the taxpayer will decrease in the future. "The extensive commercial, industrial and apartment development over the next few years will greatly reduce the tax obligation to the homeowner."

Kiddle also pointed out that an expanded park system would "improve property values and enhance the beauty of the entire community."

The referendum has the endorsement of the Buffalo Grove Village Board and the Buffalo Grove Alliance Party.

The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. For a list of polling places see related story.

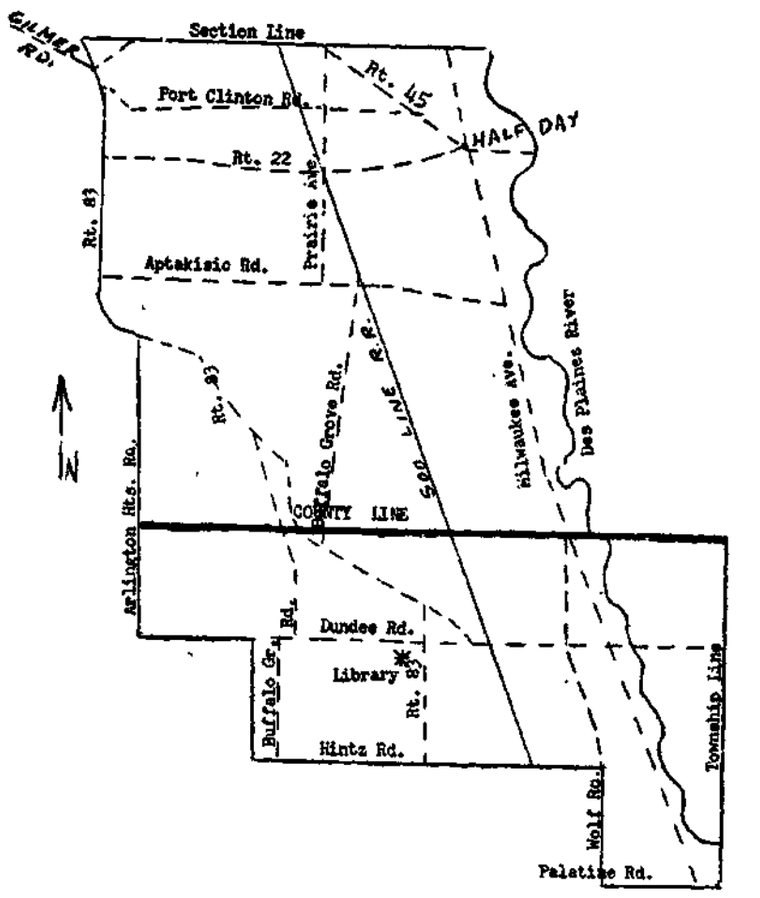
Education Club Awards Presented

The Wheeling High School Distributive Education Club presented its annual awards at a dinner held at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows last week.

Two students won "Employe of the year" awards and Ray Chiavario, the manager of the ladies department of the Wheeling K-Mart store, won the "Employer of the year" award.

The students are Linda Pecora, employed by Scott's in the Buffalo Grove Mall, and Sandy McCourt, who works at Kare Drugs in Wheeling.

The girls received the awards for "outstanding achievement in the distributive education class, on the job and in the distributive education club," according to Miss Kathy Nagle, distributive education coordinator at Wheeling High School.



THIS MAP SHOWS the present Wheeling Library District, south of the county line, and the area, north of the county line, which the district will seek to annex in a referendum tomorrow.

Tomorrow Is Vote To Expand Library

A proposal to expand the Wheeling Library District into Lake County will go to voters in a referendum tomorrow.

Residents of the present district—most of Wheeling and the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove — and residents of the Lake County annexation area will vote on the proposal from noon to 6:30 p.m.

The annexation area includes the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, the communities of Horatio Gardens, Half Day, and Prairie View and parts of Long Grove and Lincolnshire. Its boundaries are the county line on the south, the Des Plaines River on the east, Arlington Heights Road and Rte. 83 on the west and a section line a mile north of Port Clinton Road on the north.

If the referendum passes, residents of the annexation area will begin paying a library tax of about 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation or an annual tax of $33 on a house with an assessed valuation of $15,000.

Passage of the referendum would result in a slight decrease in the taxes of residents of the present district. The 22 cent tax includes two cents per $100 of assessed valuation for a bond issue. This would be reduced slightly since the tax base would be increased.

RESIDENTS OF THE annexation area would receive free Wheeling library cards if the referendum passes. Library officials also plan to have a book mobile for the area and they are considering a branch library.

Library officials say that the expansion will give the district a larger tax base and allow it to increase its collection of books and its services. They say the annexation area is the natural growth area for the library district. The boundaries of the area generally follow those proposed in a study done for the North Suburban Library System.

While the annexation area covers 15 square miles, more than the present district's 10 square miles, it has no library service and a much smaller population. The present district has about 25,000 people; the new area has 5,000.

Critics of the annexation complain that, except for the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, residents of the annexation area were not contacted about the referendum in advance. They also say that the library is too small to serve the new area.

A list of the polling places for the referendum follows.

PRECINCT 1— Willow Grove School, 777 Checker, Buffalo Grove. Residents of the annexation area who live west of the Soo Line RR. tracks.

Precinct 3 — Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Residents of the present district west of Buffalo Grove Rd.

A Herald Editorial

'Yes' Vote Best On Referendum

The Herald recommends that voters in the present Wheeling Library District and in the Lake County annexation area vote yes in tomorrow's library referendum.

For residents of the present district — most of Wheeling and the Cook County section of Buffalo Grove — a yes vote will be a vote for continued growth and improvement of their library. It will not increase their taxes.

For the residents of Lake County, a yes vote will mean a new tax of 22 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. But it will also be a vote for organized growth, professional services and a library district of realistic size.

The shift of Wheeling's library from a volunteer, amateur organization to a modern efficient service has already begun.

A little more than a year ago voters already in the district approved a referendum to purchase a new library building and to provide increased funds for operation of the local library.

Residents have a new library building, the beginning of an expanded book collection and a professional librarian. A professional children's librarian is soon to join the staff.

Residents who voted for the referendum a year ago must now vote again to help the district continue in its efforts to provide adequate library service. Expansion will bring the district a larger tax base and more funds to work for, meeting the needs of an area which it already serves.

For residents of the Lake County area proposed to join the district (Lake County Buffalo Grove, Prairie View, Half Day, Horatio Gardens, Aptakisic, and parts of the village of Long Grove and Lincolnshire) voting "yes" tomorrow will mean a chance to join a district which has shown its ability to modernize and to begin to bring its library up to par.

If residents of the area wait for a smaller library district to begin in their own communities they will only have to face the years of "volunteer" libraries and, in the end, an even bigger tax bill when the smaller district decides to build its own modern facilities.

Critics of the library district complain that the boundaries of the annexation area are arbitrary, particularly because they only take in parts of Long Grove and Lincolnshire.

Library representatives reply — and we think correctly — that the boundaries are natural ones, the Des Plaines River on the east, Rte. 83 on the west. These are certainly more comprehensible boundaries than those of many villages in the area.

The boundaries are generally those suggested by the North Suburban Library System after a professional study of the area. While the annexation area is large — larger than the present district — the library system had tended toward larger library districts because they operate with greater efficiency and cause less duplication of services.

Residents of the new area must also remember that in addition to a chance to pay taxes to the district, they will also have a chance to vote in its elections and help direct its future growth.

Board members of the district have visions of future expansion possibilities for the district such as branch libraries, a book mobile, and expanded services in the new main library building.

But only by establishing a larger district with a larger tax base, can the district realize its plans of becoming a modern, efficient library district geared to serving the suburban residents in this area.

Education Unit Elects

Five persons were elected to two-year terms on the Education Commission of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Buffalo Grove last weekend.

Elected were: Robert Hermes, Bruce Brown, James Marra, Margaret Toporek, and Joyce McCabe. The voting was held after the evening Masses on Saturday and the morning Masses on Sunday.

Berth Reappointed To Plan Commission

Wallace "Bud" Berth has been reappointed to a one-year term on the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The apopintment was made by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong at Monday night's village board meeting.

Berth was the chairman of the commission, but did not seek reappointment when his term expired April 20 because he was a candidate for trustee in the village election. Berth was not elected to the trustee post.

2 Village Trustees Move

Pollution Charges Brought Against Klefstad Builders

Charges of contributing to industrial pollution and inadequate drainage have been brought against the developers of Klefstad Industrial Park by two Palatine Village Trustees.

The accusations came this week after trustees Wendell Jones and Merwin Soper conducted an on-site field survey of the 80-acre development located at the northwest corner of Hicks Road and Illinois Avenue.

They said they have uncovered "alarming conditions" for a village concerned with the problems of flooding and pollution, adding that apparent ordinance violations and gross neglect were evident after touring the industrial park, which is being developed by Klefstad Engineering Co. of Chicago.

"We're not engineers, but we are certain that earth mounds, abandoned cement pilings, junked cars and other nondescript debris are not conducive to adequate drainage," Soper said.

THE WESTERN edge of the Klefstad property abuts the southeasternly most section of Palatine, which has been a continual flooding problem and is commonly referred to as the southeast drainage area. Village officials are now investigating the possibility of using federal funds to bring flood relief to homeowners of this area.

"The residents of South Oak and Benton street have complained many times about the change of drainage flow since this industrial park was built," Jones said.

The Klefstad property allegedly impairs proper drainage for the southeast section of town, causes water to flow back toward the homes and results in standing pools of stagnant water, he added.

"This is an insidious form of industrial pollution and must be corrected in the interest of the residents of our village," Jones said.

WALTER ERLER, chief engineer for the Klefstad company, said of trustees charges, "We are taking steps to correct these conditions."

He said the debris which has been dumped on the Klefstad property is not the fault of the industrial park. "Residents use our land as a dump and we have asked Palatine to control this problem. Evidently, they do not enforce their rules."

He added that drainage problems will be corrected this summer when workmen extend a storm sewer from Vermont Street across the Klefstad property. "This has been in the plans for some time and the village knows it," he added.

Referring to the piles of cement which Jones and Soper referred to, Erler said "this cement has been poured there for a reason. It will be used as fill for streets we plan to put through."

But the trustees maintained that the many mounds of hardened cement on the property only contribute to an unsightly condition and poor drainage.

A LOOK DOWN THAT lonely road, Vermont Street, is far from eye pleasing. This is the most apparent collection of trash scattered over the Klefstad Industrial land in Palatine. Most of the debris, however, has been dumped in secluded pockets over the 80-acre tract which can be found only by walking several hundreds of yards into the property from the street.

Stull Seriously Hurt In Crash

John B. Stull, the 27-year-old vice president of Stull Realty and School Dist. 23 board member, was seriously injured Wednesday night in a two-car collision west of Palatine.

A resident of 309 Viola Ln. in Prospect Heights, Stull is reported in serious condition in the intensive care ward of Northwest Community Hospital.

He was injured at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday when his car collided with another driven by Herbert Funk, 18, of 50 W. Wood St., Palatine at Colfax Street and Quentin Road.

A hospital spokesman said Funk escaped serious injury and was released from the hospital after he was treated Wednesday night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Stull was northbound on Quentin Road and Funk was driving east on Colfax when the collision occurred.

Further details of the accident were not available, however.

Environment Bd. June Meeting Eyed

Hopes are the newly created environmental control board will hold its first meeting next month, said Richard Dawson, Palatine environmental health director.

Although village trustees passed an ordinance last month which provided for an 11-man control board headed by Dawson, no one has been appointed by Mayor John L. Moodie to date.

Dawson said a list of potential appointees, who represent a cross section of many fields related to environmental protection, will be submitted for the mayor and trustees' review shortly, with hopes of holding a meeting the third week in June.

Once board members are selected, each will serve a one-year term on a trial basis. Thereafter the terms will be longer, Dawson said.

The new board replaces the now defunct board of health, which village officials felt was restricted by antiquated ordinances and no longer provided the scope of services needed to protect the village environment.

Its successor will serve as a referral and advisory group on all environmental related matters. It will also be charged with proposing new ordinances, conducing studies, surveys and educational seminars.

ANOTHER DUTY OF the new board will be to serve as a liaison between the village and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, which sets standards the new board will enforce.

Dawson said he is looking for people with expertise in biology, chemistry, medicine and many other fields dealing directly or indirectly with ecological matters.

Aside from proposing new village laws to uphold a healthy environment, Dawson said he also plans to begin work on projects such as circulating an environmental news letter and setting up educational seminars.

He hopes the board will have a far reaching effect, going beyond Palatine's limits to influence other communities into pooling forces in such projects as a proposed coop garbage district between neighboring municipalities.

Dawson said a refuse coop would provide a common landfill, incineration process and recycling procedure.

VIP Club Slates New Paper Drive

Another paper drive sponsored by Palatine High School's Very Important Parents (VIP) club will be held Saturday.

Assisted by Palatine's Diversified Occupations and Education for Employment groups, and the junior class, this paper drive promises to be the biggest ever.

For Saturday's drive, to be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., a third semi-trailer will be added to cart the old newspaper away. In previous drives, there were only two trailers. However, after a drive last winter, when students and adults collected more paper than anticipated, the third trailer was decided upon for Saturday's drive.

The trailers will be parked on Wood Street by Palatine High School's tennis courts Saturday. While area residents are invited to bring their paper to the trailers, there also will be a curb-side pickup in most areas after 9 a.m.

People making donations are asked to tie the papers into bundles and to not include any magazines.

Girl, 5, Struck By Car 'Serious'

A five-year-old girl, struck by an auto in Reseda subdivision Wednesday afternoon, is reported in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital.

Michele Snelten, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Snelten of 957 Stark Drive, is still in the intensive care ward following the accident, which occurred at 4:15 p.m. on Old Mill Valley Road.

Police chief Robert Centner said she was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Joan Bergner, 35, of 645 Jupiter. Centner said no charges have been brought as a result of the accident, but police are still investigating.

He said Michele was hit after she ran out of a driveway from behind a parked truck into the path of Mrs. Bergner's auto, which was heading east on Old Mill Valley Road.

Tree Disease Warfare

Ladybug Beatles A Natural Enemy

If residents have been "bugged" with cottoning maple scale, or other tree diseases they will really be bugged this summer.

Any day now, the forestry division of the public works department expects to receive a shipment of thousands of hyppodamia convergens, commonly called ladybug beatles.

The insects will be used to naturally control tree diseases along village parkways in the place of spraying pesticides, which have been completely banned in Palatine over the course of the last year.

Richard Dawson, director of environmental health, said the ladybugs "feed on all sort of parasites, are excellent for this kind of job and cost about one half as much as pesticides."

At about $17 a gallon, the village has ordered a little more than six gallons — with 75,000 bugs in each gallon — from Bio-Control Co. in California.

DAWSON SAID THE bugs will be used to control, among other thinsg, fruit scale, mealy worm, bole worm, leaf worm, leaf hopper, fle hopper, corn ear worm, cotton scale and leaf aphids.

"What we are primarily concerned with is controlling cottoning mapel and silver maple scale and leaf aphids," he added.

Kept in cold storage, the bugs, upon arriving in Palatine, will be released at the base of trees at night, when they are more dormant and less likely to fly away. Upon sunrise, the bugs become more active and will go to work, scaling their way up the trees, on the hunt for parasites which have claimed many of the village's trees over the years.

The ladybugs are not for public purchase, but questions residents have concerning their use can be answered by Lloyd Wright of the forestry division at 358-7544.

Residents Tired Of War Protests

Even though Presiden' Richard Nixon has set a course to eventually end the war in Vietnam, several groups of people have continued to protest the war

In late April, a group of Vietnam veterans protested against the war, stating that it wasn't ended quick enough. They were followed by the May Day Tribe, who used disruptive tactics in their anti-war protest They, in return, were followed by the Rev. Carl MacIntyre and his followers, who protested for a military victory in Vietnam.

In asking the residents of Palatine and Rolling Meadows what they thought of these protests, the majority said they were tired of hearing of protests.

Two residents, one from each town, merely said they were tired of anti and pro-Vietnam protests and no longer wished to talk about them Others, however, had comments

Mrs. Marilyn Oesterreich, 4325 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, said the recent demonstrations were not needed and were organized rashly

She pointed out that while the demonstrators believe one thing, the Presiednt and other Washinton officials have other opinions based on information not available to the protestors.

However, they were more eager to demonstrate, than to examine the officials beliefs, she said.

Mrs. Isabella Obert, 4349 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, also thought the demonstrations were a mistake.

"You can't withdraw all the troops from Vietnam at once," she said. "You have to bring them out gradally.

"President Nixon said gradual withdrawal will work and I believe him."

Mrs. Obert added, however, that the Vietnam War should have been thought out right at the beginning like the other wars America has fought. Had American troops moved right in and won it, she said, there would not have been all the killing as there has been to date.

However, Mrs. Christina Wolber, 530 W Echo Ln., Palatine, said she only disapproved of the demonstrations that were disruptive.

"I am in sympathy with the veterans since their protest was orderly and they didn't disrupt things like the May Day Tribe did," she said. "I may feel that we should end the Vietnam war quicker than is currently being done, but I do not approve of disruptions as a means of getting this point across."

She added that she liked the orderly way the Rev. arl MacIntyre and his followers demonstrated, but she was not in sympathy with his belief in going for a military victory in Vietnam.

TWO "COUNTRY GIRLS," Mrs. James Proce and Mrs. John Hard, are in the process of setting up the Country Store, a new booth to be featured at this year's St. Theresa's Church carnival. Items on sale at the store, open this weekend, include homemade jellies and cakes, hand packed pickles and pie filling, and handmade articles like wall plaques.

No Ceremony Set On Y Fund Drive

No ceremony is planned for tonight to commemorate the end of the active phase of Countryside YMCA's Building Fund drive.

Drive workers will meet at 8 p.m. in the Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine, for a regular report meeting, bringing in contributions toward the Y's building facility.

After tonight, the drive will continue, but not with the heavy personal contact that has been the backbone of the drive for the past seven weeks. Beginning tomorrow, a three-week "clean-up" period will begin, in which the YMCA will go after the pledge cards that are still outstanding.

On Wednesday, the YMCA's board of directors will meet at 8 p.m. in Leadership Center to decide if enough money has been pledged to go ahead with the Y's facility.

TO DATE, about $650,000 has been pledged toward the building facility, which will be constructed on a site north of Palatine near Baldwin and Colfax roads. However, it has been estimated that a goal of $1.75 million would have to be reached to complete the first stage of construction with nine recreational priorities included in the building.

Among the nine priorities are an indoor swimming pool, a crafts room, a family game room, a snack bar and a teen center.

Beginning on April 2, the drive had a hard time getting started. With initial pledges of $100,000 on that date, the drive was only able to increase this amount by $10,000 by the following week.

By the time the drive was half over, the initial pledges had only been doubled.

Chairman of the drive, William Branham, blamed the slow progress on the late start the drive got in seeking pledges from area businesses. He also pointed out that some people who promised to go out and secure pledges from neighbors never found the time.

LAST WEEK, A. C. Buehler, the chairman of the board of the Victor Comptometer Corp., offered to double each dollar that the YMCA secured in pledges up to the first $750,000. While the YMCA board of directors voted to increase their pledges by 10 per cent, it is not known what effects this offer had on the public.

As of this week, drive leaders were still confident that the goal of $1.75 million will be reached. They said this amount will be reached after all the cards still out as of tonight are brought in during the next three weeks.

After the three-week "clean-up" period, the YMCA is planning an event to honor the many people who donated time to drive during its active period.

There's Good In Teens, Too

Because he thinks we hear only the bad about teens, Frank Spaulding of Palatine wants everyone to know there are some good things, too.

He's the father of Craig Spaulding who was killed in an auto accident last weekend.

"We were overwhelmed by all the kids who took time out to come and see us," he said.

At the funeral service for his son Monday night more than 200 teens came to see the family.

"Some came from as far as Colorado and Texas," Sapulding said.

"So often you hear people say 'What do kids care?' Well, I just want them to know that kids really do have hearts."

Homemade Jellies, Preserves Available At Church Carnival

Anyone looking for homemade jellies or preserves need not go any further than the carnival at St. Theresa's Church of Palatine this weekend.

These items will be available at the Country Store booth at this event, aimed at raising funds for church activities and programs. Women dressed as "country folk" will be manning the booth, selling everything from handpacked pickles to needlework.

According to Mrs. Beverly Carkeek, a carnival worker, this will be the first time St. Theresa's carnival will have a Country Store. The store will be open for business on Saturday and Sunday.

However, the rest of the carnival began yesterday and will continue through Sunday.

CARNIVAL HOURS will be 6 to 11:30 p.m. tonight, 2 p.m. to midnight tomorrow and 2 to 10 p.m. Sunday. It will be held in the church lot at 455 N. Benton St.

Other carnival attractions, which open tonight, include the rides, game booths and the concessions stands.

Rides at this year's carnival include the flying airplanes, the tilt-a-whirl, a ferris wheel, kiddie cable cars and a merry-go-round. Game booths include the duck pond and the Dragline.

In addition to the concession stand, several clowns will tour the carnival grounds selling balloons.

The sponsor of this year's carnival is the St. Theresa Social Club. Four husband and wife teams have been working on the club's carnival committee for several weeks, putting the contents of this event together.

St. Theresa Social Club is a group at the church that coordinates all activities and programs of the parish.

Sewer System Laws Adopted

The first two ordinances regulating the operation and use of sewer system in Palatine Township have been adopted by the board of auditors.

With these ordinances, the township can now acquire existing sewer services or build and operate sewer systems. The ordinances were written after months of discussion by board members, Township Atty. Roger Bjorvik, and William Townsend and Walter Hodel of Consoer, Townsend and Associates, township engineer.

Under the first of the two ordinances, the use of public sewers is defined and explained. The types of building drains and sewers are explained, along with the type of materials they can be made with. Regulations concerning hook-ups, location of pipes in relation to the home and the inspection of sewers are also listed.

THIS ORDINANCE sets installation of a sewer to a building at $50 for residences and $125 for businesses with $10 added if more than one inspector is needed on the project.

Also provided for is protection of public and private property in sewer excavation. If someone is convicted of violating the township sewer ordinance, he will pay a fine of $100 maximum.

In the second ordinance, the procedures for applying for sewer installation are defined. The construction, operation and maintenance of the sewer systems are also stated.

Since last year, the township board has been considering entering the sewer business in two subdivisions north of Palatine.

IN LAKE PARK Estates, located near Quentin Road and U.S. 14, residents have asked for township assistance in building a sewer system. Under the plan, the residents will pay for the system, but the township will maintain it.

Currently, Lake Park residents are considering having a feasibility study of a sewer system in their area done by an Arlington Heights engineering firm.

Also under consideration by the board is the acquistion of L & K Utilities Co. in the Palatine Hills subdivision, along Steven Drive between Baldwin and Colfax roads. The board will not acquire the water and sewer company, however, unless the subdivision's residents request that it do so.

Student Ecology Unit To Clean Maple Park

A major cleanup campaign will be staged by Palatine High School's Ecology Club on May 20 and 29.

During these two days, members of the club and other Palatine students will concentrate their efforts on cleaning up the Maple Park area.

Club members and volunteers will pick up all litter around the area, particularly at Salt Creek. They will also distribute literature to area residents encouraging them not to dump trash along the creek.

To date, about 15 Palatine students and club members have signed up to take part in the clean-up, according to Anne Wallace, a member of the Ecology Club.

In recent months, the club has planted trees around Palatine and cleaned up the area around Palatine High School. Its members also passed out anti-litter literature at the Randhurst Shopping Center in April.

MAKING A FINAL alteration in a mexi dress worn by Judy Lewis is Sylvie Lockyer. Both took part in Wednesday's spring fashion show at Palatine High School which featured about 100 suits of clothing made and designed by students. About 90 girls took part in the show.

Spring Fashion Show Is Declared Success Here

Palatine High School's annual spring fashion show has been declared a success by Pamela Block, the show's faculty supervisor.

She said that more than 250 people turned out at Cutting Hall Wednesday evening to see home economics students display the clothing they made.

About 90 girls from three home economics courses took part in the show, which featured about 100 different suits of clothes. The girls displayed everything from maxi coats to hotpants.

All girls in the show doubled as models while Palatine students Bill Dyzsel, Margaret Atkins, Eve Linsner and Jim Hartman supplied the narration.

IN THE SHOW, Home Economics I students modeled their cotton skirt, vest and jumper ensembles.

Clothing II students modeled their sleepwear, spring dresses, and pants outfits. A few of their younger brothers and sisters assisted the students by modeling juvenile sports outfits and carrying stuffed animals made in the class.

Clothing III students modeled tailored coats. The coats were of the mini, midi and maxi lengths and were in formal, Elizabethan and peasant styles.

This year's fashion show was titled "Moments to Remember." In keeping with this theme, the stage was decorated with red, white and blue paper symbols depicting various school activities. Clothing was separated in the show according to the seasons and the school activity it would go with.

Upland Improves Following Crash

Palatine resident Glen W. Upland, 19, is improved, but remains in serious condition at Northwest Community Hospital following a two-car accident last Friday which claimed the life of a passenger in his car, and injured three other persons in another car.

A hospital spokesman said Upland, of 540 E. Lincoln, is still in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

Police said Upland was heading west on U.S. 14 when his car, for an unknown reason, went into a skid, crossed the road and was hit broadside by an oncoming vehicle, killing Upland's passenger, 19-year old Craig Spaulding of 1335 Kenilworth Rd., Palatine.

The accident occurred near Arlington Park Dodge, 1400 E. Northwest Hwy. and also injured the driver of the oncoming vehicle, Michael Arnold, 22, of 407 E. Euclid in Arlington Heights.

TWO PASSENGERS in Arnold's car were also hurt. They are Miss Susan Kieser, 22, of Rte. 1, Palatine; and Miss Cindy Foss, 22, of 48 Wilshire Dr., Deerfield.

The hospital spokesman said Arnold and both his passengers are reported in good condition and should be released from the hospital by the weekend.

Palatine police said yesterday no tickets have been issued, but they are investigating the accident and it is possible charges will be made.

It's No Mirage

Dennis Hull To Instruct Hockey

DENNIS HULL

Don't be misled by who you see skating on the ice this summer at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. It's not a mirage.

It really will be Dennis Hull, Chicago Black Hawks star, working as an instructor in the Summer Hockey School sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Park District

The park district did have a little pull in latching on to Hull for the summer program. Gene Ubriaco, director of the school and coordinator of the program, is a former Hawks player who currently serves as hockey coach at Lake Superior State College, one of the outstanding hockey schools in the country.

HULL WILL be part of a five-man team of instructors. Although he will not appear at the ice rink five days a week, he will work as a guest instructor on a regular basis at specific times each week.

Skip Thayer, head trainer of the Black Hawks, will also be one of the five instructors. Ubriaco will be bringing two others from Lake Superior State to round off the instruction team, Ron Mason, assistant director of athletics and hockey coach at the school, and Don Muio, a junior and member of the varsity hockey team.

The Ubriaco school will be open to boys 7 to 17 years old in 10 weekly sessions from June 14 to Aug. 21. Each class will be limited to 35 students.

Daily sessions will include two hours of ice time with the instructors and one hour of lecture and films. Throughout the remainder of the day, hockey students can take part in the other recreational activities at the Sports Complex, such as swimming, gym, public skating and exercise.

Boys will be divided into age groups for their skating times. Following each full week of instruction, actual hockey games will be held on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Cost of each session is $35 per student.

A TOTAL enrollment of 1,200 boys is anticipated for the summer hockey school. The closest hockey school outside of Rolling Meadows will be in Rockton, Ill., making the local program the only one being offered in the Chicago area during the summer. Similar hockey schools in other areas cost a weekly fee ranging from $65 to $135.

The park board last month approved a total appropriation of $18,500 for salaries of instructors in the hockey program. At that time, park officials estimated a gross revenue of $40,000 from the hockey school, if the school enrolls the full 1,200 boys.

Registration for the Ubriaco Hockey School is being taken at the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Terry Hayford Fund Is Set Up

The Rolling Meadows Jaycee-ettes have set up a fund for 13-month-old Terry Hayford, who is critically ill with a rare disease

The recent Mother's Day corsage sale provided the initial money for the fund and the Jaycee-ettes are now asking other interested groups of individuals for donations.

Young Hayford was struck with "hipsasary convulsions" when four months old and was taken to Northwest Community Hospital for treatment. She now is a patient at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago

According to Jaycee-ettes, Mr and Mrs Ralph Hayford, 3303 S. Owl Dr. have accumulated more than $30,000 in uninsured costs

Donations may be sent to "The Terry Hayford Fund" at the Bank of Rolling Meadows All money received will be used for the child's hospital and doctor bills

Jeff Super Still In Serious Condition

Jeffrey Super 6, who was hit by an auto over a week ago, remains in serious condition today in the intensive care ward of Northwest Community Hospital

He was injured in an accident at the intersection of Central Road and Linden Avenue, when the bicycle he was riding swerved into an oncoming car. Young Super is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Super, 4000 Eagle Ln. in Rolling Meadows

Receives Honors

Therese Grady of Rolling Meadows has been named to the scholastic honors list at Marycrest College in Davenport, Iowa.

She achieved a grade point average of between 3.4 and 3.79 on a 4.0 scale during the semester ending in January.

Miss Grady, a freshman at the college, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Grady, 4404 Sycamore Ln.

A LITTLE BIT of Holland, and 23 other nations of the world, will be displayed through costume, dinner and dance tonight at the international dinner of Girl Scout Troop 71 in Rolling Meadows. Lyn Sergot created her Dutch costume herself, with a little help from friends, as did all other girls in the troop.

Girl Scout Dinner Tonight Will Be 'International'

International flavor, in foods, costumes and dance, will surround the annual dinner of Girl Scout Troop 71 in Rolling Meadows at 7 tonight at Central Road School.

A pot luck dinner, featuring a wide variety of international dishes, will be held for fathers of the 30 girls in the scout troop. Each of the girls will prepare a special dish.

Delicacies will include Hungarian goulash, chop suey, lasagna, cabbage rolls, Mexican enchiladas, Grecian salads, Italian bread, and, to complete the menu, American cupcakes.

The dinner concludes a year of study of 24 different nations by the girls as part of work on the World Neighbor badge. Research of the countries and their cultures was done through several field trips and visits to local libraries.

According to Mrs Kathy Brightwell, one of the troop's leaders, each scout collected material for an individual scrapbook of the country she was studying. Particular words in the native languages of their countries were learned, as well as facts on governments, customs and clothing.

Scouts will appear in costumes of their countries for the dinner and perform an original play, "The Key to Understanding," which will provide an explanantion of the workings of the United Nations depicting cultural aspects of the 24 countries.

Other entertainment for the fathers will be supplied by a 40-foot dancing dragon and a Polynesian dance routine called the Pinikling, which involves manipulation of bamboo poles.

Rev. James Halpin, Pastor At St. Colette, To Retire

The Rev. James F. Halpin, pastor of St. Colette Church in Rolling Meadows since the church's beginning in 1959, will be honored by local parishioners from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday at a retirement celebration in the church hall.

Father Halpin's retirement was recently announced by the Chancery Office of the Archdiocese of Chicago and he was appointed pastor emeritus of St. Colette's. The Rev. Thomas Fielding will replace him as pastor while Father Halpin remains with the church continuing some of his priestly functions, such as hospital and sick calls.

A native Chicagoan, Father Halpin was born Nov. 17, 1907 and studied at St. Gabriel and Visitation Schools before entering the archdiocesan seminaries. After his ordination in 1933, Father Halpin served as assistant pastor at several parishes in Chicago, including St. Margaret Mary, St. Francis Xavier, Annunciation and St. Bride.

He was instrumental in the organization of St. Colette's when the late Samuel Cardinal Stritch of the Chicago Archdiocese appointed Father Halpin to form the new parish in Rolling Meadows. His work saw the opening of the church in 1959 and the beginning of the school in 1961.

Plans for the retirement party Sunday are being coordinated by the Women's Guild of St. Colette's. All parishioners and community residents are invited to attend.

Residents Tired Of War Protests

Even though President Richard Nixon has set a course to eventually end the war in Vietnam, several groups of people have continued to protest the war

In late April, a group of Vietnam veterans protested against the war, stating that it wasn't ended quick enough. They were followed by the May Day Tribe, who used disruptive tactics in their anti-war protest They in return, were followed by the Rev Carl MacIntyre and his followers, who protested for a military victory in Vietnam

In asking the residents of Palatine and Rolling Meadows what they thought of these protests the majority said they were tired of hearing of protests.

Two residents, one from each town, merely said they were tired of anti and pro Vietnam protests and no longer wished to talk about them Others, however, had comments

Mrs. Marilyn Oesterreich, 4325 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, said the recent demonstrations were not needed and were organized rashly

She pointed out that while the demonstrators believe one thing, the Presiednt and other Washinton officials have other opinions based on information not available to the protestors

However, they were more eager to demonstrate, than to examine the officials beliefs, she said.

Mrs. Isabella Obert, 4349 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, also thought the demonstrations were a mistake

"You can't withdraw all the troops from Vietnam at once," she said. "You have to bring them out gradally.

"President Nixon said gradual withdrawal will work and I believe him."

Mrs. Obert added, however, that the Vietnam War should have been thought out right at the beginning like the other wars America has fought. Had American troops moved right in and won it, she said, there would not have been all the killing as there has been to date.

However, Mrs. Christina Wolber, 530 W. Echo Ln , Palatine, said she only disapproved of the demonstrations that were disruptive

"I am in sympathy with the veterans since their protest was orderly and they didn't disrupt things like the May Day Tribe did," she said "I may feel that we should end the Vietnam war quicker than is currently being done, but I do not approve of disruptions as a means of getting this point across."

She added that she liked the orderly way the Rev. arl MacIntyre and his followers demonstrated, but she was not in sympathy with his belief in going for a military victory in Vietnam.

TWO "COUNTRY GIRLS," Mrs. James Proce and Mrs. John Hard, are in the process of setting up the Country Store, a new booth to be featured at this year's St. Theresa's Church carnival. Items on sale at the store, open this weekend, include homemade jellies and cakes, hand packed pickles and pie filling, and handmade articles like wall plaques.

No Ceremony Set On Y Fund Drive

No ceremony is planned for tonight to commemorate the end of the active phase of Countryside YMCA's Building Fund drive.

Drive workers will meet at 8 p.m. in the Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine, for a regular report meeting, bringing in contributions toward the Y's building facility.

After tonight, the drive will continue, but not with the heavy personal contact that has been the backbone of the drive for the past seven weeks. Beginning tomorrow, a three-week "clean-up" period will begin, in which the YMCA will go after the pledge cards that are still outstanding.

On Wednesday, the YMCA's board of directors will meet at 8 p.m. in Leadership Center to decide if enough money has been pledged to go ahead with the Y's facility.

TO DATE, about $650,000 has been pledged toward the building facility, which will be constructed on a site north of Palatine near Baldwin and Colfax roads. However, it has been estimated that a goal of $1.75 million would have to be reached to complete the first stage of construction with nine recreational priorities included in the building.

Among the nine priorities are an indoor swimming pool, a crafts room, a family game room, a snack bar and a teen center.

Beginning on April 2, the drive had a hard time getting started. With initial pledges of $100,000 on that date, the drive was only able to increase this amount by $10,000 by the following week.

By the time the drive was half over, the initial pledges had only been doubled.

Chairman of the drive, William Branham, blamed the slow progress on the late start the drive got in seeking pledges from area businesses. He also pointed out that some people who promised to go out and secure pledges from neighbors never found the time.

LAST WEEK, A. C. Buehler, the chairman of the board of the Victor Comptometer Corp., offered to double each dollar that the YMCA secured in pledges up to the first $750,000. While the YMCA board of directors voted to increase their pledges by 10 per cent, it is not known what effects this offer had on the public

As of this week, drive leaders were still confident that the goal of $1.75 million will be reached. They said this amount will be reached after all the cards still out as of tonight are brought in during the next three weeks.

After the three-week "clean-up" period, the YMCA is planning an event to honor the many people who donated time to drive during its active period.

There's Good In Teens, Too

Because he thinks we hear only the bad about teens, Frank Spaulding of Palatine wants everyone to know there are some good things, too.

He's the father of Craig Spaulding who was killed in an auto accident last weekend.

"We were overwhelmed by all the kids who took time out to come and see us," he said.

At the funeral service for his son Monday night more than 200 teens came to see the family.

"Some came from as far as Colorado and Texas," Sapulding said.

"So often you hear people say 'What do kids care?' Well, I just want them to know that kids really do have hearts."

The large sign in the lobby of the Bank of Rolling Meadows which reads, If you have an opinion, share it with someone who can do something about it, will no longer be at the bank after this week. The sign has been given to Forest View High School

Along with the sign were stamped, self-addressed envelopes for all area state and federal representatives which have been available to help assist customers in contacting their state officials

According to Don Johnson, director of marketing and customer relations at the bank, this program was planned to coincide with the opening of the 93rd Congress in February to give citizens a chance to contact their elected officials concerning critical issues

Johnson says, "Not everyone has the time to join an action group but everyone can write a letter." Within a two-month period 151 envelopes were sent to various officials from this service Men seemed to take advantage of this service more than women, which, according to Johnson, "is somewhat surprising since the lobby hours are from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. when most men are at work."

Information on how legislation is passed also is printed on the sign, and Johnson says he hopes Forest View High School will benefit

C of C Ecology Unit To Set Up Program

The Rolling Meadows chamber of commerce ecology committee met with members of the city health commission this week in an effort to set up a city-wide environmental program.

Chamber officials said the committee is "in the education stages, trying to find out the needs of the city." Health commission members suggested an environmental booklet to be sent to city residents explaining ways of best utilizing the environment, but the chamber of commerce made no decision.

The ecology committee was set up more than two months ago.

Homemade Jellies, Preserves Available At Church Carnival

Anyone looking for homemade jellies or preserves need not go any further than the carnival at St. Theresa's Church of Palatine this weekend.

These items will be available at the Country Store booth at this event, aimed at raising funds for church activities and programs. Women dressed as "country folk" will be manning the booth, selling everything from handpacked pickles to needlework.

According to Mrs. Beverly Carkeek, a carnival worker, this will be the first time St. Theresa's carnival will have a Country Store. The store will be open for business on Saturday and Sunday.

However, the rest of the carnival began yesterday and will continue through Sunday.

CARNIVAL HOURS will be 6 to 11:30 p.m. tonight, 2 p.m. to midnight tomorrow and 2 to 10 p.m. Sunday. It will be held in the church lot at 455 N. Benton St.

Other carnival attractions, which open tonight, include the rides, game booths and the concessions stands.

Rides at this year's carnival include the flying airplanes, the tilt-a-whirl, a ferris wheel, kiddie cable cars and a merry-go-round. Game booths include the duck pond and the Dragline.

In addition to the concession stand, several clowns will tour the carnival grounds selling balloons.

The sponsor of this year's carnival is the St. Theresa Social Club. Four husband and wife teams have been working on the club's carnival committee for several weeks, putting the contents of this event together.

St. Theresa Social Club is a group at the church that coordinates all activities and programs of the parish.

Final Concert By Organist Set

Donald Kendrick has been organist at St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Palatine for the past four years, but will be giving his farewell concert Sunday evening.

Serving as both organist and choir director, he'll give his farewell performance beginning at 8 p.m. in a choir and organ concert featuring German Baroque, French Romatic and contemporary music.

Kendrick is graduating from the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago and now will go on for his master's of music degree at the New England Conservatory of Music.

A reception is planned following Sunday's concert in the church at Wood and Schubert streets.

Sewer System Laws Adopted

The first two ordinances regulating the operation and use of sewer system in Palatine Township have been adopted by the board of auditors.

With these ordinances, the township can now acquire existing sewer services or build and operate sewer systems. The ordinances were written after months of discussion by board members, Township Atty. Roger Bjorvik, and William Townsend and Walter Hodel of Consoer, Townsend and Associates, township engineer.

Under the first of the two ordinances, the use of public sewers is defined and explained. The types of building drains and sewers are explained, along with the type of materials they can be made with. Regulations concerning hook-ups, location of pipes in relation to the home and the inspection of sewers are also listed.

THIS ORDINANCE sets installation of a sewer to a building at $50 for residences and $125 for businesses with $10 added if more than one inspector is needed on the project.

Also provided for is protection of public and private property in sewer excavation. If someone is convicted of violating the township sewer ordinance, he will pay a fine of $100 maximum.

In the second ordinance, the procedures for applying for sewer installation are defined. The construction, operation and maintenance of the sewer systems are also stated.

Since last year, the township board has been considering entering the sewer business in two subdivisions north of Palatine.

IN LAKE PARK Estates, located near Quentin Road and U.S. 14, residents have asked for township assistance in building a sewer system. Under the plan, the residents will pay for the system, but the township will maintain it.

Currently, Lake Park residents are considering having a feasibility study of a sewer system in their area done by an Arlington Heights engineering firm.

Also under consideration by the board is the acquistion of L & K Utilities Co. in the Palatine Hills subdivision, along Steven Drive between Baldwin and Colfax roads. The board will not acquire the water and sewer company, however, unless the subdivision's residents request that it do so.

Student Ecology Unit To Clean Maple Park

A major cleanup campaign will be staged by Palatine High School's Ecology Club on May 28 and 29.

During these two days, members of the club and other Palatine students will concentrate their efforts on cleaning up the Maple Park area.

Club members and volunteers will pick up all litter around the area, particularly at Salt Creek. They will also distribute literature to area residents encouraging them not to dump trash along the creek.

To date, about 15 Palatine students and club members have signed up to take part in the clean-up, according to Anne Wallace, a member of the Ecology Club.

In recent months, the club has planted trees around Palatine and cleaned up the area around Palatine High School. Its members also passed out anti-litter literature at the Randhurst Shopping Center in April.

Hassle Over Rob Roy Land Continues

The River Trails Park District and Kenroy, Inc. are still trying to agree on a selling price for part of the Rob Roy Driving Range in Prospect Heights.

Both parties are hopeful that an agreement will be reached out of court. The park district filed a suit to condemn the 19 acres, located on Euclid Avenue in February. However, the district has not yet asked the court to set a hearing date, according to Attorney Roger Bjorvik, who represents the district.

"We have not reached an impasse, nor have we reached an agreement," said Bjorvik. He indicated that the district would request a hearing date only if an impasse is reached in the negotiations.

Roy Gottlieb, an executive of Kenroy, said, "We assume we will make a deal with the park district. We are trying diligently to reach an agreement."

THE TWO PARTIES have been negotiating for more than seven months. The park commissioners made their first offer to Kenroy for the purchase of the driving range in October, after five months of annexation hearings before the village board.

The hearings were held to review Kenroy's request to have the land annexed to the village and rezoned for a $27 million planned development. The proposed development included 624 apartment units, 130 townhouses and a tennis club. The village board denied Kenroy's request after listening to objections from area residents and the park district.

In anticipation of a settlement, in negotiations or in court, the district has prepared a bond sale. District voters authorized the sale of $750,000 in bonds for purchase of the open land in December.

"We have everything ready so that all we have to do is publish a notice in the newspaper announcing the opening of the bidding," said Marvin Weiss, park director. The district will open the bidding only after a selling price is agreed upon.

IF THE PARK DISTRICT does not buy the land, there are several parties who have "expressed interest in buying parcels of the driving range," said Gottlieb. "These people expressed an interest in buying the land before the district filed the condemnation suit."

Gottlieb would not reveal who the "interested people" are but did say "they are primarily retail concerns along the order of a shopping center."

Gottlieb contends that the front 19 acres of the range is zoned for commercial use. He said he has a letter from the state's attorney verifying that fact.

The park district, on the other hand, claims that a covenant once placed on the county zoning is still in effect. The covenant restricts use of the land to a driving range.

In the past the commissioners have said that their immediate plan is to retain the land as a driving range, conforming to their interpretation of the zoning.

A TENDER MOMENT between Sir Thomas More and Lady Margaret More in "A Man For All Seasons" is enacted by Keith Szarabajka and Jan Andrews in a John Hersey High School production. The play will be presented at the school at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow. Tickets may be bought at the door for $1.50.

Stull Injured Seriously In Accident

John B. Stull, the 27-year-old vice president of Stull Realty and School Dist. 23 board member, was seriously injured Wednesday night in a two-car collision west of Palatine.

A resident of 309 Viola Ln. in Prospect Heights, Stull is reported in serious condition in the intensive care ward of Northwest Community Hospital.

He was injured at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday when his car collided with another driven by Herbert Funk, 18, of 50 W. Wood St., Palatine at Colfax Street and Quentin Road.

A hospital spokesman said Funk escaped serious injury and was released from the hospital after he was treated Wednesday night.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said Stull was northbound on Quentin Road and Funk was driving east on Colfax when the collision occurred.

Further details of the accident were not available, however.

Overrides Plan Commission Recommendation

Board Approves GEMCO Discount Store 4-3

The planned development for a GEM CO discount store at Rand Road and Thomas Street was approved by a 4-3 vote of the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night.

At first, the board was going to continue discussion on the discount store's planned development until after July 1, when more traffic problems would be worked out. However, officials from Lucky Stores, which operates GEMCO, stated a delay at this time, after almost 10 months of dealing with the village, would be the same as a denial of the development.

THE PROPOSED store has met many objections from residents of the area, including Prospect Heights and students from John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., which is across the street from the 11-acre site.

Denial of the request for annexation of the property, including all except the tip of the triangle at the southeast corner of Rand Road and Thomas Street, was recommended by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Aug. 19. The vote was 6 to 4, with one member of the commission abstaining.

The village board overrode the plan commission's recommendation and approved the rezoning and annexation in October 4-2, with one board member abstaining.

The village board discussed the planned development in April, but deferred action until Monday night so traffic problems could be solved.

Among the problems were the safety of students walking to Hersey High School along Thomas Street and the increased traffic which would be traveling through the busy intersection of Rand and Thomas.

VILLAGE MGR. L. A. Hanson told the board a gravel sidewalk will be installed along the south side of Thomas from Rand east to across the street from the high school. He said the sidwalk is planned to continue west of Rand, pending agreement with property owners.

Hanson also presented a map to the village boad showing proposals from the state highway department. These proposals include turning Windsor Drive into a cul-de-sac near where it connects with Rand Road and providing left-turn lanes for the intersection of Rand and Thomas.

Although the rezoning had already been approved, three members of the village board said they felt the development was not desirable and voted against approval. They were Alice Harms, Theodore Salinsky and Dwight Walton. Mrs. Harms and Salinsky were elected in April and took their seats in May. Walton, a two-year veteran of the board, voted against the rezoning for the store in October.

Voting in favor of the approval were Village Pres. Jack Walsh, the board members Frank Palmatier, James T. Ryan and Ralph Clarbour. Clarbour is a new member of the board and Ryan, formerly an appointee, was also elected in April. Ryan voted against approval of the rezoning, but changed his vote to yes for approval of the planned development.

2-Cent Stamps Suddenly Hot Sellers

Two-cent stamps are selling fast for the first time in years. Local postmasters say there hasn't been such a high demand for the stamp since a first-class letter could be mailed for only two cents.

The demand is due to a new increase in postal rates, the first since 1967. The increase is the first step taken by the United States Postal Service toward a self-sufficient operation. In the Postal Reorganization Act, Congress has required the postal service to become financially independent of the federal government.

First-class letter rates have been raised from six to eight cents an ounce and airmail letter rates have been raised from 10 to 11 cents an ounce. Post cards were hiked from five to six cents.

POST OFFICE OFFICIALS in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights say they have received almost no complaints about the increases. "But we have had a rush all week for the one and two-cent stamps, especially the two-cent stamps," said Theodore Geocaris, Mount Prospect postmaster.

"People held off to the last minute to buy the two-cent stamps, evidently because they thought the rate increases might be deferred," added Geocaris.

Rather than combine a six-cent stamp with a two-cent stamp, many are going ahead and buying rolls of eight-cent stamps. Harold Bozzelli, Prospect Heights assistant postmaster, reported that the "eight cent stamp is moving faster than the two-cent."

The demand has been so high for the one, two and eight-cent stamps that officials at both post offices have had to order extra supplies. Btu they say reassuringly, "we haven't run out yet."

Board Refuses To Discuss 'Amnesty' Clause Dispute

The Dist 57 school board has refused to meet with teachers to discuss a dispute over a contract "amnesty clause signed last fall, according to Board member Leo Floros

Floros said the board directed Supt Eric Sahlberg to write a letter to attorneys for the Illinois Education Association (IEA) informing them of the decision made Monday night in a closed executive session. He said Sahlberg would send the letter sometime this week.

The board's decision came in response to a recent notice from the Springfield law firm of Drach, Terrell and Deggenbaugh requesting the board and members of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) meet to discuss a rescheduled Institute Day to replace a Sept. 4 teacher walkout. Teachers called in the IEA to assist because they consider the rescheduling a reprisal and a violation of the amnesty clause which states no reprisals would be taken for the walkout.

THE BOARD'S decision may prompt the IEA to file a lawsuit against the board for either a day off for teachers or an extra day's pay. Ted Sanders, IEA representative, said earlier this month that the possibility of such a lawsuit exists if the board is not willing to negotiate.

"We don't think there is anything to discuss," said Floros. "We're not about to negotiate a day off. The courts will have to decide if there's a lawsuit."

If a suit is filed, it would be brought to the Cook County Circuit Court, Sanders said He said he did not know when a suit would be filed or how long it would take to reach a decision. Before a suit is filed, the MPEA governing board would have to take a vote on it, according to David Metzler, MPEA negotiations chairman.

"We only did what the law tells us we must do. We don't feel the rescheduling is a reprisal in any way, shape or form," Floros said We agreed to do something that was in violation of the state and county codes"

According to the school board the institute day was rescheduled after Sahlberg received a letter in November from G T. Gilluly, deputy superintendent of the Cook County Office of Public Instruction Gilluly notified the board that absenteeism at a designated teacher workshop violates the Illinois School Code and if another workshop was not scheduled the teachers must be docked one day's pay.

Board Will Announce New Member

The Dist 26 School Board has interviewed two candidates for the board post vacated by Jack Halvorsen earlier this month

The new board member will be announced at the board's next regular meeting June 1 The meeting will begin at 8 p m in the administration center, 1800 E Kensington Rd

According to school board member Lee Hilfman, "The board asked eight people to apply for the position No one asked the board to be a candidate We chose the names based on the caucus' list of candidates and based on recommendations we received"

Only two people appeared at the May 18 meeting of the school board to be interviewed for the position, according to Hilfman The candidates were interviewed in a closed executive session.

HALVORSEN, who served more than six years on the board submitted his letter of resignation to the board at its May 4 meeting He told the board, "Unfortunately the pressure of my commitments to my family and my business no longer permit me the pleasure of serving on the board"

"I have always felt that every man owed a contribution to the community in which he resided and since, in my mind, education is one of the more important civic functions, it was in this direction that I first made my venture into public life," added Halvorsen of 1617 Barberry Ln., Mount Prospect

Halvorsen, a patent attorney for Illinois Tool Works Inc., was first elected to the school board in 1961 He left the board in 1964 but returned a few years later when he was appointed to fill a vacancy He then ran for election to the remainder of the term he was filling and won Then in 1969 he was elected to a full three-year term

Students To Combine Voices For Concert

Students from the seven Dist. 57 schools in Mount Prospect tonight will join voices in the district's spring musical festival.

More than 500 students will perform at 8 p m in the Prospect High School Fieldhouse, 801 W Kinsington Rd. Choirs from each school will sing a number, and then all choirs will join in the rest of the presentation.

Sterling Mische, instructor at Prospect High School, will conduct the choirs, under the direction of Beverly Yates, music teacher at Lincoln Junior High School.

The Forest View High School choir, under the direction of Fred Schimmelmann, will also perform at the free concert.

Surprise Party For Harwood

Approximately 200 persons attended a surprise retirement and birthday party for Dist. 26 Supt. Winston Harwood Wednesday at River Trails Junior High School.

The event, sponsored by the River Trails Education Association, was attended by representatives from the school board, PTA board, seven district schools and the community.

According to Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff, "Harwood was completely surprised by the party and thought he was only going to introduce his successor, James Warden, to the faculty." Harwood announced last year that he planned to retire after he reached his 60th birthday this month.

Former school board member Jack Halvorsen described Harwood as a man of "empathy, warmth and the courage of his convictions," in a tribute to Harwood's eight years with the district. He briefly highlighted the tasks undertaken by Harwood since 1963, including "building four new schools and devising a plan for incorporating the Maryville Academy children into the district."

Harwood, in a farewell speech, said he thought today's schools must work to "gear teaching and teaching matter to the individual student." He then introduced Warden, who will assume the position on July 1. Warden is currently director of the elementary vocational program of the Northwest Educational Cooperative

The first in a series of parting gifts presented to Harwood was an honorary life membership in the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. George Stout, president of the River Trails PTA, presented the gift in behalf of the combined PTAs of Dist. 26. A donation made for Harwood's life membership will be used for a PTA college scholarship fund.

MRS. WILLIAM KUEHL, president of the River Trails Education Association, gave Harwood an "educational oscar" plaque and a watch with a caricature of Harwood drawn on its face.

The final presentation, revealed behind the stage curtains, was a wood lathe. It was a gift from all district personnel "to launch Harwood in his new hobby of woodworking."

The party concluded with presentation of a giant birthday cake topped with 60 candles.

Village Opposes More NIPC Advisory Power

A resolution opposing a bill that would strengthen the advisory powers of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The legislative bill, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, (R-Arlington Heights), would force local municipalities to submit various zoning and annexation plans to NIPC before going ahead with them. NIPC would have no legal power to enforce its decisions on those plans Its conclusions would be purely advisory.

Among other things, municipalities would have to submit plans to NIPC for any boundary changes, for any public works projects costing more than $500,000, and for any zoning changes that involve tracts of 10 acres or more.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S opposition to the bill was approved at Monday's board meeting by a vote of 5 to 1, with only Trustee Richard Monroe voting against it Commenting on the bill, Monroe said, "It's time someone did some planning on a regional basis. I think it would be a good idea to have someone look at things on a regional basis."

Other board members, including Mayor Robert Teichert, did not agree, Teichert said that the bill, if passed, would mean that "even if we just want to annex a house, we would have to go to NIPC."

In a memo to the board, Teichert said, "Regional planning is certainly necessary, but I find it difficult to believe that these specified local activities require regional coordination. Mandatory review of this nature by NIPC would appear to be an interference with home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals."

Trustee Donald Furst, at one time the village's representative to the regional planning agency, commented, "If NIPC is going to get involved in small things, they won't have time to plan. On a broad concept they do a fine job."

Trustee Kenneth Scholten termed the proposal "unwieldly."

THE RESOLUTION approved by the board sai in part, "whereas such mandatory review would appear to be an unnecessary interference of municipal home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals, now therefore . . . the bill does not appear to be in the best interests of our municipality and should not be enacted into law."

NIPC is a regional planning agency for six Northeastern Illinois counties. The group, sponsored on a cooperative basis by the state and by local governments deals with planning on a regional basis. Members of NIPC come from both the state and local governments.

Parents May Pick Child's School

Residents of the McDonald Acres subdivision in Prospect Heights will be given the option to send their sixth grade children to Indian Grove or Euclid school this fall

All other elementary age children in the subdivision will be transferred from Indian Grove School to Euclid School Dist 26 school officials said they are changing the school boundaries in order to "equalize class size in the different schools"

Originally the school board had planned to shift the children from the subdivision in kindergarten through the sixth grade to Euclid School. However, that proposal met with objections from almost a dozen parents at a recent Dist. 26 board meeting. The parents asked that the sixth grade children now going to Indian Grove be allowed to graduate there.

The board decided this week that the parents may keep their sixth graders at the Indian Grove School if they provide their own transportation. The district will bus the other children to Euclid School.

THE SUBDIVISION is comprised of 17 homes on two streets, It is surrounded on two sides by a golf course, church and park property. Approximately 50 Dist. 26 children live in the subdivision.

THE PARENTS MAIN concern is that their children's friendships with children from other subdivisions might be jeopardized by the transfer.

Currently 63 children are in three third grade classes at Euclid School and 83 children in the three third grade classes at Indian Grove School.

Four new classrooms were added to the Indian Grove School last year to provide extra classes at the kindergarten, sixth grade and first grade levels. The fourth room is used for music classes.

By moving the McDonald Acre children to the Euclid School, school officials say they will avoid having to add another second grade to the Indian Grove School and hiring another teacher.

Supt. Winston Harwood recommended the sixth graders be kept at Indian Grove School because "there is no practical difference in class size at the two schools at that particular grade level."

Teachers Hint Strike If 10% Pay Hike Vetoed

Eighty-six per cent of teachers returning to Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 in the fall have said they will back contract negotiators "to the point of withholding services if necessary."

Support came in the form of answers to a questionnaire sent out earlier this week by the Mount Prospect Education Association salary committee to determine what teachers wanted negotiated in a 1971-72 contract. Last night the committee met to tally the results.

High on the list of priorities is a 6 per cent salary increase beyond the yearly raise included in the current salary schedule. The Dist. 57 school board's contract proposal, released earlier this month, offers the current salary schedule. The MPEA proposal, released in February, asks for an average salary increase of 10 per cent.

Teachers also said they wanted to negotiate for reinstatement of personal leave. The board's proposal asks for abolition of personal leave because, according to board members, it has been "abused" in recent months.

Under the current provision, teachers are eligible for two days' personal leave each year without having to give a reason. The number increases to four days after five years' consecutive teaching in the district.

DIST. 57 SCHOOLS

Mount Prospect: Busse, Fairview, Gregory, Lincoln, Lions Park, Sunset Park and Westbrook.

ANOTHER TEACHER priority is the hiring of additional learning disabilities and remedial reading teachers, one more speech correctionist, one psychologist and one social worker.

Hiring of the additional personnel had been previously requested in the MPEA proposal. A social worker already has tentatively been added under a revised staffing plan approved by the board after the questionnaire was distributed.

Currently, the district employs two remedial reading teachers, one speech correctionist, eight full-time learning disabilities teachers, one psychologist and one social worker.

Teachers also said they want negotiators to obtain full major medical insurance for employes and dependents, as the MPEA previously requested. The board has proposed the current $90 toward dependents' policy.

"I am pleased with the staff support," said David Metzler, chairman of the MPEA negotiations team. "I don't think the staff will let the board push them around or go below the going rate of salary raises."

Metzler said earlier this week that staff support will include "a strike if we have one, no matter how long it lasts." He said he will ask to meet again with the board bargaining team and its professional negotiator, Richard Zwieback, sometime in early June.

A TENDER MOMENT between Sir Thomas More and Lady Margaret More in "A Man For All Seasons" is enacted by Keith Szarabajka and Jan Andrews in a John Hersey High School production. The play will be presented at the school at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow. Tickets may be bought at the door for $1.50.

Low-Income Housing Meet Set Monday

A discussion on low-income housing for the Northwest suburbs will be held at 8:15 p.m. Monday at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Featured speakers will be Dr. Salvatore V. Ferrera, executive director of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., and Howard Kagay, Arlington Heights real estate dealer and past president of the Arlington Estates Homeowners' Association.

Ferrera is director of the non-profit corporation seeking zoning to construct a moderate-income housing project on 15 acres of land in Arlington Heights known as the Viatorian project. The MHDC also plans to construct other low and moderate-income housing projects in suburban locations.

Kagay has been one of the leaders of the opposition to the Viatorian project.

The dicussion will be moderated by Mayor Robert Teichert of Mount Prospect. The meeting is being sponsored by the Committee on Community Life of St. Emily's Church of Mount Prospect and the Fairview Gardens Civic Association.

Chamber Auto Check Is Tomorrow

Hundreds of cars are expected to be safety checked tomorrow when the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce sets up its auto safety check lane.

The lane will be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow. It will be located on Emerson Street between Central Road and Busse Avenue in Mount Prospect.

Cars will be checked at no charge to the motorist. The auto safety check lane is a public service project of the chamber.

According to Doug Winkleman, chairman of the project, such things as cars' brakes, front suspension, steering system, exhaust system, engine belts, battery, lights, seat belts and tires will be checked.

The safety check usually takes about 10 minutes. Motorists will enter the safety check lane from Central Avenue.

Winkleman said that "as the people turn onto Emerson Street, they'll see a separate station for each part of the check." Various auto parts manufacturing firms will be in charge of each phase of the check.

MOTORISTS BRINGING their cars to the safety check will receive an inspection sticker saying the car has been inspected. Each owner is given a report on his car's condition.

Winkleman urged motorists to bring their cars to the safety check as early as possible to help "prevent any bottlenecks."

Last year more than 400 cars were inspected. About 17 per cent of those were "in good shape," Winkleman said.

According to National Safety Council statistics about 11 per cent of all fatal turnpike auto accidents are caused by vehicle defects. Defective or worn out tires were blamed for the majority of those accidents.

A safety council spokesman said that in about 16 per cent of the fatal accidents in cities and rural areas "there was no driver error shown." Most of these accidents are attributed to defects in the vehicle, he said.

Currently Illinois does not require cars to be safety checked, though many surrounding states do. The safety council spokesman said legislation calling for auto checks was killed earlier this year. "We have been pushing for these checks for years and years," he said.

2-Cent Stamps Suddenly Hot Sellers

Two-cent stamps are selling fast for the first time in years. Local postmasters say there hasn't been such a high demand for the stamp since a first-class letter could be mailed for only two cents.

The demand is due to a new increase in postal rates, the first since 1967. The increase is the first step taken by the United States Postal Service toward a self-sufficient operation. In the Postal Reorganization Act, Congress has required the postal service to become financially independent of the federal government.

First-class letter rates have been raised from six to eight cents an ounce and airmail letter rates have been raised from 10 to 11 cents an ounce. Post cards were hiked from five to six cents.

POST OFFICE OFFICIALS in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights say they have received almost no complaints about the increases. "But we have had a rush all week for the one and two-cent stamps, especially the two-cent stamps," said Theodore Geocaris, Mount Prospect postmaster.

"People held off to the last minute to buy the two-cent stamps, evidently because they thought the rate increases might be deferred," added Geocaris.

Rather than combine a six-cent stamp with a two-cent stamp, many are going ahead and buying rolls of eight-cent stamps. Harold Bozzelli, Prospect Heights assistant postmaster, reported that the "eight cent stamp is moving faster than the two-cent."

The demand has been so high for the one, two and eight-cent stamps that officials at both post offices have had to order extra supplies. Btu they say reassuringly, "we haven't run out yet."

Board Refuses To Discuss 'Amnesty' Clause Dispute

The Dist. 57 school board has refused to meet with teachers to discuss a dispute over a contract "amnesty clause signed last fall, according to Board member Leo Floros.

Floros said the board directed Supt. Eric Sahlberg to write a letter to attorneys for the Illinois Education Association (IEA) informing them of the decision made Monday night in a closed executive session. He said Sahlberg would send the letter sometime this week

The board's decision came in response to a recent notice from the Springfield law firm of Drach, Terrell and Degenbaugh requesting the board and members of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA) meet to discuss a rescheduled Institute Day to replace a Sept 4 teacher walkout. Teachers called in the IEA to assist because they consider the rescheduling a reprisal and a violation of the amnesty clause which states no reprisals would be taken for the walkout.

THE BOARD'S decision may prompt the IEA to file a lawsuit against the board for either a day off for teachers or an extra day's pay Ted Sanders, IEA representative, said earlier this month that the possibility of such a lawsuit exists if the board is not willing to negotiate.

"We don't think there is anything to discuss," said Floros. "We're not about to negotiate a day off. The courts will have to decide if there's a lawsuit."

If a suit is filed, it would be brought to the Cook County Circuit Court, Sanders said. He said he did not know when a suit would be filed or how long it would take to reach a decision. Before a suit is filed, the MPEA governing board would have to take a vote on it, according to David Metzler, MPEA negotiations chairman.

"We only did what the law tells us we must do. We don't feel the rescheduling is a reprisal in any way, shape or form," Floros said We agreed to do something that was in violation of the state and county codes."

According to the school board the institute day was rescheduled after Sahlberg received a letter in November from G. T. Gilluly, deputy superintendent of the Cook County Office of Public Instruction Gilluly notified the board that absenteeism at a designated teacher workshop violates the Illinois School Code and if another workshop was not scheduled the teachers must be docked one day's pay.

Board Will Announce New Member

The Dist. 26 School Board has interviewed two candidates for the board post vacated by Jack Halvorsen earlier this month

The new board member will be announced at the board's next regular meeting June 1. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the administration center, 1600 E Kensington Rd

According to school board member Lee Hilfman, "The board asked eight people to apply for the position No one asked the board to be a candidate. We chose the names based on the caucus' list of candidates and based on recommendations we received"

Only two people appeared at the May 18 meeting of the school board to be interviewed for the position, according to Hilfman The candidates were interviewed in a closed executive session.

HALVORSEN, who served more than six years on the board submitted his letter of resignation to the board at its May 4 meeting He told the board, "Unfortunately the pressure of my commitments to my family and my business no longer permit me the pleasure of serving on the board"

"I have always felt that every man owed a contribution to the community in which he resided and since, in my mind, education is one of the more important civic functions, it was in this direction that I first made my venture into public life," added Halvorsen of 1617 Barberry Ln., Mount Prospect

Halvorsen, a patent attorney for Illinois Tool Works Inc., was first elected to the school board in 1961. He left the board in 1964 but returned a few years later when he was appointed to fill a vacancy He then ran for election to the remainder of the term he was filling and won Then in 1969 he was elected to a full three-year term

Students from the seven Dist. 57 schools in Mount Prospect tonight will join voices in the district's spring musical festival

More than 500 students will perform at 8 p.m. in the Prospect High School Fieldhouse, 801 W. Kinsington Rd. Choirs from each school will sing a number, and then all choirs will join in the rest of the presentation.

Sterling Mische, instructor at Prospect High School, will conduct the choirs, under the direction of Beverly Yates, music teacher at Lincoln Junior High School.

The Forest View High School choir, under the direction of Fred Schimmelmann, will also perform at the free concert.

Surprise Party For Harwood

Approximately 200 persons attended a surprise retirement and birthday party for Dist. 26 Supt. Winston Harwood Wednesday at River Trails Junior High School.

The event, sponsored by the River Trails Education Association, was attended by representatives from the school board, PTA board, seven district schools and the community.

According to Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff, "Harwood was completely surprised by the party and thought he was only going to introduce his successor, James Warden, to the faculty." Harwood announced last year that he planned to retire after he reached his 60th birthday this month.

Former school board member Jack Halvorsen described Harwood as a man of "empathy, warmth and the courage of his convictions," in a tribute to Harwood's eight years with the district. He briefly highlighted the tasks undertaken by Harwood since 1963, including "building four new schools and devising a plan for incorporating the Maryville Academy children into the district."

Harwood, in a farewell speech, said he thought today's schools must work to "gear teaching and teaching matter to the individual student." He then introduced Warden, who will assume the position on July 1. Warden is currently director of the elementary vocational program of the Northwest Educational Cooperative

The first in a series of parting gifts presented to Harwood was an honorary life membership in the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. George Stout, president of the River Trails PTA, presented the gift in behalf of the combined PTAs of Dist. 26. A donation made for Harwood's life membership will be used for a PTA college scholarship fund.

MRS. WILLIAM KUEHL, president of the River Trails Education Association, gave Harwood an "educational oscar" plaque and a watch with a caricature of Harwood drawn on its face.

The final presentation, revealed behind the stage curtains, was a wood lathe. It was a gift from all district personnel "to launch Harwood in his new hobby of woodworking."

The party concluded with presentation of a giant birthday cake topped with 60 candles.

Village Opposes More NIPC Advisory Power

A resolution opposing a bill that would strengthen the advisory powers of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) has been approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The legislative bill, sponsored by Rep. Eugene Schlickman, (R-Arlington Heights), would force local municipalities to submit various zoning and annexation plans to NIPC before going ahead with them. NIPC would have no legal power to enforce its decisions on those plans. Its conclusions would be purely advisory.

Among other things, municipalities would have to submit plans to NIPC for any boundary changes, for any public works projects costing more than $500,000, and for any zoning changes that involve tracts of 10 acres or more.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S opposition to the bill was approved at Monday's board meeting by a vote of 5 to 1, with only Trustee Richard Monroe voting against it. Commenting on the bill, Monroe said, "It's time someone did some planning on a regional basis. I think it would be a good idea to have someone look at things on a regional basis."

Other board members, including Mayor Robert Teichert, did not agree, Teichert said that the bill, if passed, would mean that "even if we just want to annex a house, we would have to go to NIPC"

In a memo to the board, Teichert said, "Regional planning is certainly necessary, but I find it difficult to believe that these specified local activities require regional coordination. Mandatory review of this nature by NIPC would appear to be an interference with home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals."

Trustee Donald Furst, at one time the village's representative to the regional planning agency, commented, "If NIPC is going to get involved in small things, they won't have time to plan. On a broad concept they do a fine job."

Trustee Kenneth Scholten termed the proposal "unwieldly."

THE RESOLUTION approved by the board sai in part, "whereas such mandatory review would appear to be an unnecessary interference of municipal home rule, not justified by regional concepts or goals, now therefore . . . the bill does not appear to be in the best interests of our municipality and should not be enacted into law."

NIPC is a regional planning agency for six Northeastern Illinois counties. The group, sponsored on a cooperative basis by the state and by local governments deals with planning on a regional basis. Members of NIPC come from both the state and local governments.

Parents May Pick Child's School

Residents of the McDonald Acres subdivision in Prospect Heights will be given the option to send their sixth grade children to Indian Grove or Euclid school this fall.

All other elementary age children in the subdivision will be transferred from Indian Grove School to Euclid School. Dist. 26 school officials said they are changing the school boundaries in order to "equalize class size in the different schools."

Originally the school board had planned to shift the children from the subdivision in kindergarten through the sixth grade to Euclid School. However, that proposal met with objections from almost a dozen parents at a recent Dist. 26 board meeting. The parents asked that the sixth grade children now going to Indian Grove be allowed to graduate there.

The board decided this week that the parents may keep their sixth graders at the Indian Grove School if they provide their own transportation. The district will bus the other children to Euclid School.

THE SUBDIVISION is comprised of 17 homes on two streets, It is surrounded on two sides by a golf course, church and park property. Approximately 50 Dist. 26 children live in the subdivision.

THE PARENTS MAIN concern is that their children's friendships with children from other subdivisions might be jeopardized by the transfer.

Currently 63 children are in three third grade classes at Euclid School and 83 children in the three third grade classes at Indian Grove School.

Four new classrooms were added to the Indian Grove School last year to provide extra classes at the kindergarten, sixth grade and first grade levels. The fourth room is used for music classes.

By moving the McDonald Acre children to the Euclid School, school officials say they will avoid having to add another second grade to the Indian Grove School and hiring another teacher.

Supt. Winston Harwood recommended the sixth graders be kept at Indian Grove School because "there is no practical difference in class size at the two schools at that particular grade level."

Intersection Safety Plan Criticized

Plans calling for the redesign of the hazardous intersections of Arlington Heights-Central-Kirchoff roads area to increase traffic safety were criticized yesterday by neighboring residents who said the project would cause too many traffic problems.

The hearing was held at 2 p.m., in the municipal building by Village Engineer Allen Sander to give the public an opportunity to express their views

Three alternate plans were displayed at the hearing by Gary Alstot and George March, of Alstot and March, consulting engineers Sander explained to the audience that a final decision on the work to be done would be made in a meeting of the village, the Illinois Division of Highways and the Federal Highway Administration He said he expected that decision in 60 to 90 days.

The proposal involves the widening of Central Road to a multi-lane pavement east of Arlington Heights Road to west of Kirchoff Road The three-way stop sign at Central and Kirchoff roads would be replaced with traffic lights coordinated with improved signals at Central and Arlington Heights roads

The work would include the addition of left-turn lanes to all approaches at the Central Arlington Heights roads intersection and the realignment of the curved section of Arlington Heights Road north of the intersection

The approaches at Central and Kirchoff roads would be widened to two lanes in each direction

The proposed improvements would be financed with matching funds under the federal Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety (TOPICS) program

THE CONCERN OF most of the approximately 30 residents in attendance centered on the question of mountable or non-mountable medians and the use of cul-de-sacs

Sander, who explained that no firm decisions had been made on closing streets or which medians to use, explained the purpose of the meeting was to gain residents' views on those questions

Those views varied

Sander said a petition, signed by 15 homeowners in the 900 block of South Evergreen, was received, requesting that street be closed north of Central Road

One of the alternative plans indicates that Vail Avenue, south of Central, and Dunton Avenue, north of Central, be made cul-de-sacs

A resident of Highland Avenue, south of Central, said he objected to that plan because it would cause more traffic on Highland northbound to Central. Others agreed, stating that cul-de-sacs on nearby streets would cause more traffic on their streets

ONE MAN WHO LIVES on Chestnut Street, south of Highland, objected to the closing of Dunton Street north of Central, but for a different reason. The man said he uses Dunton to get to the downtown area and said he does not want to use Arlington Heights road

The objectors generally agreed in their position on the medians

March explained that state laws prescribes that the medians in the area of the left-turn bays has to be of the nine-inch, unmountable variety. The remain-

Suffoletto lapsed into silence as board member Clayton Sauers quipped, "I would have liked to hear Dan's explanation.

THERE'S GOTTA BE A LIMIT to developers traditionally asking for the world when they come in with plans for approval, but representatives of Miller Builders outdid themselves this week Not only did Miller representatives ask for approval of the largest multi-family development in town at Wednesday's plan commission meeting, but they walked out with an aluminum easel recently purchased by the village. Joe Kesler, village planner, informed Miller representatives they would return the easel immediately, if not sooner.

Miller Builders' Sales Tactics Questioned

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Charges of questionable sales tactics on the part of Miller Builders arose Wednesday night as about 50 residents of Northgate objected to Miller's latest plans before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission

The construction company is requesting approval of a planned development to permit the construction of a 934-unit apartment and condominium development along Hintz Road near Windsor Drive

The hearing on the project, which would represent the largest multiple-family development in the village if approved, was continued to July 14 pending a report from the commission's plat and

subdivision committee

Plans call for construction of two-story and four-story apartment buildings and two-story condominiums on about 70 acres annexed and zoned R-5 (multi-family) in 1967.

WILLIAM STEINBERG, Northgate, presented the commission with a petition, signed by about 30 residents, stating that a Miller representative gave them erroneous information regarding the use of adjoining land.

The petition was signed mostly by residents who live in the 2700 block of North Brighton Place. The rear yards of those homes abut that portion of the proposed project which includes two-story apartment buildings and one of the two swimming pools planned. One of the buildings and the pool would be 50 to 100 feet from the nearest home.

The petition states, "When purchasing our property from Miller Builders in the Northgate development we were told by Shelly Lazar, Miller's representative, that the property behind the homes on the east side of the 2700 block on North Brighton Place would be school-park property, running down to Hintz Road."

Contacted yesterday, Lazar, who is now sales director for Miller Builders said, "I wouldn't want to be quoted at this time I have been instructed not to comment."

Steinberg told the board, "We feel bad about it and we feel stupid about it, that we did not check with the village We took the builder at his word." He continued, "It is our contention that they should live up to the moral and possible legal commitment."

COMMISSION Vice Chairman John Langhenry, who chaired the hearing, told the residents that the commission is powerless to do anything about their claims.

Robert C Larson, director of the Northgate Civic Association, voiced the general feeling of the residents who attended when he told the commission he is not in opposition to the entire plan but that he thinks there are serious problems he hoped can be resolved.

Larson said the two most serious objections he has relate to the proximity of the pool and the apartment buildings to the single family homes and the possibility of future tenants using Brighton Place as a shortcut to avoid traffic on Hintz Road. He also suggested that the condominium buildings, which were described by Miller representatives as closely resembling single-family homes, be used as a buffer on the westerly edge of the proposed project.

Although the plan commissioners had little time for questioning the developers, several areas of concern were noted to be brought to the attention of the committee.

Commissioner Vic Beisler suggested the commission ask Village Atty. Jack Siegel for opinions on the legality of the four-unit condominium buildings and on the legality of having 79 such buildings with almost idential architecture in the same area. The commission also noted legal questions regarding future maintenance, provisions for street lighting and certain aspects of the Condominium Act.

Volunteer Bureau Office Move Delayed

Although permission was granted in mid-March, the Arlington Heights branch office of the Volunteer Service Bureau has not been moved to Pioneer Park because of a "security risk."

The move was scheduled for this month but was stopped by Margaret Early, executive director of the Volunteer Bureau. Mrs. Early told the bureau's board of directors Wednesday the plans were halted for "security reasons."

Mrs. Early had read a Herald article published shortly before the office was scheduled to move from John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. The article recounted the acts of vandalism at various parks, including Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave

Based on the article, Mrs Early said the branch office could not afford to lose "two years and thousands of hours of work" represented by the files which would be stored in the office.

Mitchell Ware Defends IBI

Mitchell Ware, director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Tuesday defended the role of the IBI and criticized those who level unfair attacks at the agency.

"We will not be intimidated by that kind of pressure by some of those in high places who cater to every radical friend in perpetuating them in political office." Ware said.

"We will not be intimidated by that pitiful caricature of a man who wears the mantle of a public official who prostitutes his oath of office," he said.

Speaking at the division 17 of Kiwanis International, meeting near Elk Grove Village, Ware did not name specific persons other than to criticize those who oppose the IBI. He did say he was surprised that Lt. Gov. Paul Simon had "lowered himself" in criticizing the IBI.

WARE INDICATED that the public may hear more about the IBI, since its financial appropriations are now under discussion in Springfield.

A state representative, Rolland Tipsword, D-Taylorville, has introduced a bill to abolish the 16-month-old IBI started by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

"Every once in a while we've taken our lumps but that is to be expected, Ware said.

He pointed to the 97 per cent conviction rate the IBI had out of 243 cases that have gone to trial in the last year.

THE CRIME rate in Illinois went up two per cent last year while nationally it rose 11 per cent. In surrounding states it went up 15 and 16 per cent, he said.

Ware said the IBI utilizes every tool in the law enforcement arsenal and that it has yielded results. He noted the indictment of Fiore Buccieri, the alleged boss of the Chicago crime syndicate.

Buccieri, who had not been arrested since 1946, was indicted by a DuPage County Grand Jury for involvement in a heavy construction equipment theft ring.

The IBI deals with "difficult crime" that local agencies do not have the manpower to cope with, Ware said. These include the murder of horse trainer George Jayne of Inverness, b .nbings, the Paul Powell scandal, narcotics and dangerous drugs, as well as organized crime.

A former TV newsman, Ware criticized the news media for its handling of the raids the IBI made in southern Illinois last month. Some of the reports were slanted, he said.

Defending the IBI's taking television camera crews on the raids in which explosives were discovered, he said he didn't know if it would be done again but that he did not regret it.

FORTY-EIGHT persons were arrested. However, three Southern Illinois University students who were innocent appeared on national television and were labeled as the chief conspirators.

Ware said Cook County State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan has told him that he wished he had invited television crews along when state's attorney's police raided the Black Panthers apartment where two members of the gang were killed.

Ware said he was glad the IBI had the camera crews on its raids. He later added that reports of newsmen who accompanied the IBI on the raids were accurate but that news reports became distorted by other media men who did not accompany the IBI agents on the raids.

Ware produced letters from radio and television stations agreeing that any misunderstanding was self-inflicted by the news media.

Responding to a recent news report that Ware is apparently the only high state official that requires or accepts money for speaking engagements, he said: "I figured I was worth a little if they insist on me as a speaker."

He noted that members of the IBI speak without fee but that when a group wants the top man they should be willing to pay for him.

WARE SAID he works hard, often until one or two in the morning and was deserving of some reimbursement.

Honorariums have ranged from $100 to $300 for Ware, according to one news report.

In response to a question on whether marijuana was harmful, Ware said there are arguments pro and con.

He said he preferred to reserve his opinion on the subject, after earlier saying marijuana is not harmless.

"The effects are not conclusive that it is harmful," he added.

Ware said there is a movement to undermine the principles of the country by revolutionaries who preach overthrow of the government.

Despite all the changes in society, he said mankind will overcome its problems but that there has to be a commitment by man to respect and abide by the law.

Following Ware's talk, the Kiwanis membership voted to pass a resolution endorsing and commending the IBI and its director.

Dennis Hull To Teach Hockey Class

Don't be misled by who you see skating on the ice this summer at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. It's not a mirage

It really will be Dennis Hull, Chicago Black Hawks star, working as an instructor in the Summer Hockey School sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Park District

The park district did have a little pull in latching on to Hull for the summer program. Gene Ubriaco, director of the school and coordinator of the program, is a former Hawks player who currently serves as hockey coach at Lake Superior State College, one of the outstanding hockey schools in the country.

HULL WILL be part of a five-man team of instructors. Although he will not appear at the ice rink five days a week, he will work as a guest instructor on a regular basis at specific times each week.

Skip Thayer, head trainer of the Black Hawks, will also be one of the five instructors. Ubriaco will be bringing two others from Lake Superior State to round off the instruction team, Ron Mason, assistant director of athletics and hockey coach at the school, and Don Muio, a junior and member of the varsity hockey team.

The Ubriaco school will be open to boys 7 to 17 years old in 10 weekly sessions from June 14 to Aug. 21. Each class will be limited to 35 students.

Daily sessions will include two hours of ice time with the instructors and one hour of lecture and films. Throughout the remainder of the day, hockey students can take part in the other recreational activities at the Sports Complex, such as swimming, gym, public skating and exercise.

Boys will be divided into age groups for their skating times. Following each full week of instruction, actual hockey games will be held on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Cost of each session is $35 per student.

A TOTAL enrollment of 1,200 boys is anticipated for the summer hockey school. The closest hockey school outside of Rolling Meadows will be in Rockton, Ill., making the local program the only one being offered in the Chicago area during the summer. Similar hockey schools in other areas cost a weekly fee ranging from $65 to $135.

The park board last month approved a total appropriation of $18,500 for salaries of instructors in the hockey program. At that time, park officials estimated a gross revenue of $40,000 from the hockey school, if the school enrolls the full 1,200 boys.

Registration for the Ubriaco Hockey School is being taken at the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Some Residents Here To Vote On Buffalo Grove Issue

Because of a peculiar boundary line, a small number of Arlington Heights residents will be eligible to vote tomorrow in the Buffalo Grove Park District referendum

The area is situated in the vicinity of Arlington Heights Road, south of Dundee Road The area is within the village limits of Arlington Heights but was included in the Buffalo Grove Park District when the district was formed two years ago.

The polling place for Arlington Heights residents is the Union Oil Co. service station at the corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee Roads.

IF PASSED, the referendum would increase the park district tax rate to 19.2 cents per $100 assessed evaluation. On a house assessed at $10,000, the homeowner would have to pay about $19 to the park district, if the referendum is approved.

The Buffalo Grove Park District is asking for voter approval to sell $1,250,000 in general obligation bonds. The money would be used to add 35 acres of park land and two swimming pools, one to be located at the Dist. 214 school site at the northeast corner of Dundee Road and the north extension of Arlington Heights Road

The deadline for submitting rosters was originally May 7, but has been extended.

March said the question is whether to use the safer, unmountable variety or the mountable type which allows for better access to homes and businesses along the roads.

Several residents expressed their desire for the plans to incorporate the mountable medians as much as possible, so that they will have access to their homes and businesses from more than one direction.

Most of those attending did not seem to like the plan at all. As one woman expressed it, "Why can't the whole plan be abandoned and keep policemen out on the corner to direct traffic?"

Earlier in the hearing March had attempted to explain why the work is necessary.

HE SAID THAT there is a high traffic demand at the intersection and accidents are frequent, citing 89 accidents at the Arlington Heights-Central intersection in the last three years.

March said the peak traffic at the corner presently is about 2,700 vehicles per hour and this number is expected to increase to about 4,500 per hour before 1980.

The Arlington Heights Board of Trustees approved the appropriation of $225,000 of Motor Fuel Tax Funds April 19 for the village's share of the cost of the improvements.

of the bureau's board, said he would "strongly favor" using the free space at the park, but said the final decision was up to Mrs. Early.

"That room is glass on two sides It's too easy to vandalize and destroy records which took two years to compile," Mrs. Early said

Christopher Edginton, recreation supervisor for the park district and a member of the bureau's board, said that although the park had been hit with vandalism in the past, the problem had been cleared up "I don't think it's that much a problem," Edginton said an dadded the park district has a patrolman who visits the parks every day.

MRS. EARLY said she appreciated the park district offering the free space and said she would "let the park district know" if the bureau would use it.

For the time being, the Arlington Heights branch office of the Volunteer Bureau will continue to operate from donated office space at Hersey. However, the high school needs the space in the fall so the office will be forced to move by then.

The Arlington Heights office is one of five branch offices of the bureau, which serves as a clearing house for volunteers throughout Northwest Cook County.

The request for the free office space came from the Volunteer Bureau and was approved by the park board at its March 16 meeting. The approval included allowing the condition that any equipment, including phone lines and typewriters, would have to be provided by the bureau.

In preparation for the new occupants, the office was cleaned and repainted by the park district. The space is available because Pioneer was formerly the site of the park district's administration offices which are now at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Lavallee Licensed For Home Administration

Paul F. Lavallee, administrator of the Arlington Heights Americana Nursing Center, has been certified and licensed as a nursing home administrator by the State Board of Examiners for Nursing Home Administrators.

Lavallee successfully completed a written examination in Chicago, which was given by the board of examiners, to qualify for the license. The testing also included an evaluation of the applicant's education and experience. The 1970 session of the Illinois Legislature inaugurated nursing home administrator licensure by enacting into law certain provisions which made it mandatory for every nursing home to be under the supervision of an administrator licensed by the state.

Since 1970, Lavallee has been administrator of the Arlington Heights Americana Nursing Center. Americana is an extended-care-facility with accommodations for 78 patients.

Mayer To Cap 20 Years Of Work Tonight At IIT

Tonight will literally "cap" 20 years of work for a Hoffman Estates man.

Jack Mayer, 233 Kingman Ln., will go to Orchestra Hall tonight to receive his Bachelor's Degree in mechanical engineering from Illinois Institute of Technology. Tonight's cap-and-gown ceremony culminates 20 years of night school classes, of staying up late poring over books, while working at a full time job and rearing a family.

The Mayers were married 20 years ago, and Mrs. Mayer said she does not know how she'll react, having for the first time a husband who is not in school. Earning his degree has been a family project, she said. The children have grown up with a healthy respect for keeping quiet during evening study hours.

Because this has been in a sense a family affair, the whole family will attend commencement tonight to see the husband and father receive his degree. "Jack wanted to just take it in the mail," said Mrs. Mayer, but she said she wouldn't have let him skip the occasion for anything.

AFTER COMMENCEMENT, the Mayers will hold a celebration in their home. It will be a chance to start renewing some of the friendships they have lost, said Mrs. Mayer, when they were too busy with homebork to keep pace with a social life.

The Mayers have lived in Hoffman Estates 12 years after moving from Chicago. While they lived in the city, Mayer took a few courses at Wright Junior College. But 99 per cent of his classes have been at the institute, said Mrs. Mayer.

Mayer works in Batavia, as a mechanical engineer for Dunbar Kappel, a manufacturing firm. He has held a mechanical engineering license the past five or six years, said Mrs. Mayer, and receiving his degree will "mean nothing to him as far as his job is concerned." For the past few years, he has been attending college only because he had gone so far, it seemed unthinkable not to finish, he said.

Now that he is receiving his degree, Mayer does not plan to continue his education. He will begin catching up on the things for which he has never had time. There have been a lot of books printed in the last 20 years, and Mayer looks forward to reading many of them.

OTHER THAN enjoying his new leisure, he has few plans for his "retirement" from school.

City Considering $500,000 Budget Cut For This Year

by BOB CASEY

Faced with a shortage of tax revenues and some unexpected higher costs, the City of Des Plaines is considering a $500,000 budget cut for the current year.

Although salaries of city employes would not be affected, the revenue shortage and cost increases have prompted propose deutbacks in sewer, street and parking lot programs and put off for at least another year the planned conversion to a plastic bag garbage collection system.

The proposed reductions in the city's $9.3 million budget, which was passed in February and amended with salary increases in March, would drop total spending to $8.8 million.

The budget cuts, which have been submitted to city council by City Comptroller Duane Blietz, wil be considered at a May 26 meeting of the council's finance and insurance committee.

ACCORDING TO Blietz, the budget revisions have been made necessary by recent indications that sales taxes and state income tax receipts will be lower this year than expected. Blietz also cited uncertainty about receipts from corporate personal property tax, which is being challenged as unconstitutional in the courts.

Blietz said the revisions he proposed also reflect pay raises voted by the city council in March. The raises amounted to 9½ per cent apy hikes for top employ- to 9½ a slight increase over the eight per cent raises that were voted originally in February.

He blamed the lower sales tax revenues on the slumping economy but said those revenues could increase if local consumers step up their purchases later in the year.

Sales taxes, the city's largest single source of revenue, last year brought in more than $2 million. The city receives one cent out of the total five cents in sales tax on every dollar pent in Des Plaines.

Receipts from the state income tax, which are rebated to municipalities on a per capita basis, are also down this year, partly because of lower-than-expected final 1970 census figures for Des Plaines, Blietz said.

In addition to the overall reduction in the budget, several programs have been cut to make up for rising costs connected with development of the city's new main fire station at 389 River Rd.

SO FAR, ESTIMATED total cost of the station and its equipment have jumped by more than $70,000 — from $250,000, to $321,370.

The one-acre fire station site, purchased earlier this year for $110,000, and about $18,000 in traffic signal controls for nearby intersections will bring the total expense of the new station to about $450,000.

To offset those cost increases, Blietz has proposed a delay for at least a year in converting to the plastic garbage bag system, with a savings of about $122,000. Budget items for new equipment purchases in several departments were also reduced or eliminated in Blietz' proposal.

The sewer department budget was slashed by $44,116, with $15,000 allocation for Weller Creek maintenance cut to $2,000 and a $30,000 sewer extension item reduced to $5,000. Blietz said the sewer extension is not normally earmarked for specific projects but is used as the need arises during the year.

About $51,000 was cut from the city forestry department budget, with the big reductions coming in allocations for trimming, removal and replacement of parkway trees under the proposed revisions.

Reductions also hit the police and fire department budgets, which were cut by about $42,000 and $52,000 respectively. Salary increases in both departments, voted in March after the budget was first approved in February, were offset by large cuts in allocations for new equipment.

In addition, library expenditures received a proposed cut from $383,425 to $314,120. The total street fund was reduced by $50,840 and the allocation for parking lot construction was cut from $50,000 to $5,000 in the proposed revision.

THE CITY OF DES PLAINES parkway tree trimming program already this spring has barbered 2,495 trees in the city's second, third, fifth, seventh and eighth wards, according to Public Works Commissioner Joseph Schw[illegible] A $20,000 stump removal program is also getting underway this week, he said. Here, an employe of Hendrickson Tree Experts Co., climbs down after finishing work on one of the city's trees.

Name New Youth Council Officers

New officers have been elected by the Des Plaines Coordinating Council on Youth Problems.

Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation for the Des Plaines Park District, was elected chairman Thursday by unanimous vote of members of the council, an organization of community, church and school leaders.

Elected secretary was David Veerman, who heads Campus Life, a religious-based youth activity and discussion program for Des Plaines Youths.

Kunkel, 28, of 1446 Lincoln, Des Plaines, has worked for the park district since 1965, and has headed the district programs since 1968.

He has been active in coordinating council activities since 1965 when he began to represent the park district at council meetings.

KUNKEL IS a native of Des Plaines. He and his wife Barbara have two children, Kelley, 7 and Mark, 6.

Veerman, 28, of 566 Princeton, heads the program, which involves more than 500 students at Maine West High School.

He is a native of Rockford. His wife Gail, is a fifth grade teacher at Central School.

Kunkel and Veerman were nominated by a committee, whose members were Sgt. Kenneth Fredricks, Des Plaines youth officer and 1970-71 chairman of the council, and Mrs. Betsey Kuzich, principal of Terrace School, and 1970-71 secretary of the council.

In other council actions Thursday, the group discussed publication of "We're Together," a list of gnidelines for Des Plaines parents to help them rear their children.

The guidelines published several years ago by the council, were revised by the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines. Mrs. Gail Kemp, Mrs. Nancy Wells and Miss Fannie Krevitsky, Maine West counselor.

THE GROUP ENDORSED the guidelines, and instructed a committee to seek further endorsements in the community and to examine means of publication.

The council heard a report from William Tarver, Des Plaines Police Department youth officer, that vandalism, runaways and narcotics use is increasing sharply in Des Plaines.

William Hall, business administrator for the Maine Township Mental Health Association, 1032 Lee St., Des Plaines, told the council the association is awaiting hiring of additional staff before beginning a 24 hour a day phone and emergency service.

Robert Gay, representing the Place for People drop-in center, told the group of efforts to find a new headquarters for the center.

Mayor No Longer Highest Paid

Mayor Herbert Behrel is no longer the highest paid city official in Des Plaines.

Under a salary schedule passed in March and incorporated in proposed budget revisions now being considered by the city council, both Police Chief Arthur Hintz and Fire Chief Frank Haag have eclipsed Behrel's $20,000 pay.

Their salaries are $20,136 and the mayor, barred by state law from receiving a mid-term pay hike, will have to run again in 1973 before he can get a raise.

So far, Mayor Behrel, who's been the city's chief executive since 1957, is carefully avoiding questions about whether he will run for a fifth straight term.

Emergency Phone May Begin Soon

A new emergency phone service for Des Plaines residents with emotional or medical problems is expected to begin before the end of the year.

William Hall, business manager of the Maine Township Mental Health Association, 1032 Lee St., said Thursday that creation of the new service will depend on when state funds are made available and additional staff members can be hired.

Hall, in a report to the Des Plaines Coordinating Council on Youth Problems, said an additional staff would be required by the association to provide professional guidance and training for volunteers.

The present staff's time being used fully, because of a sharp increase in the number of people seeking help from the Association since January, Hall said.

This year's budget does not provide enough funds to hire additional staff members, Hall said.

THE ASSOCIATION has already applied for state funds which would provide sufficient money to hire a social worker and a psychiatric nurse.

The association officials have applied for $100,000 from the state. Last year, the state provided $75,000, Hall said.

State funds will not be received until the state legislature approves the state budget. In any case, Hall said, local contributions will be necessary.

Association officials are in the process of screening applicants for the two needed positions, Hall said.

Getting the service into operation after funds are received would take several months, Hall said.

DR. EDWARD BARANOWSKI, executive director of the association, has said that the new phone service — unlike the present Hotline phone service, which he said emphasizes youth and drug abuse problems — will not stress any one problem related to mental health.

The emergency service would provide referral services to other area aid agencies like hospitals and professional aid, officials have said.

Baranowski set up a 24-hour phone service for potential suicides while he was chief psychologist of a mental health program in Quincy, Ill.

Youth Drop-In Center Lease Extended

The lease on the headquarters of the Des Plaines Place for People Drop-in Youth Center has been extended until Sept. 15.

The Des Plaines Park District decided this week to extend the lease, while the Drop-in center officials continue to seek a new headquarters.

The ideal site for the informal youth center would be in a central Des Plaines location like downtown Des Plaines, but without the high cost of rent such a site would require, Robert Gay, a Drop-in center volunteer, said Thursday at a meeting of the Des Plaines Coordinating Council on Youth Problems.

Gay also reported plans for raising funds, and the progress of center actions in seeking city aid for the center.

A Place for People week, June 12 through 19, is being planned, Gay said.

FUND RAISING activities will include a 72-hour marathon basketball game.

Gay said that teenagers have raised more than $7,000 for the center during its first year of operation.

These activities have included sale of candles during Christmas, and weekly Coffeehouse discussion and entertainment programs at the Center headquarters in the Rand Park Fieldhouse, Dempster near Parkview.

Twelve alderman and Mayor Herbert Behrel attended the recent meeting between Place for People Officials and interested community groups, Gay reported.

He said Mayor Behrel has expressed his support for the center, and understanding of Drop-in center activities is growing, he said.

The city rejected a center request for $500 last December after receiving a legal opinion from Robert DiLeonardi, city attorney, that the city does not have the legal authority to donate tax monies to a private organization.

Dave Russell, chairman of the center board, has said that the city could find a way to help support the center.

He said other communities, like Mount Prospect, give financial help to informal youth centers, similar to the Des Plaines center.

Mitchell Ware Defends IBI

Mitchell Ware director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation Tuesday defended the role of the IBI and criticized those who level unfair attacks at the agency

We will not be intimidated by that kind of pressure by some of those in high places who cater to every radical friend in perpetuating them in political office Ware said

We will not be intimidated by that pitiful caricature of a man who wears the mantle of a public official who prostitutes his oath of office he said

Speaking at the division 17 of Kiwanis International meeting near Elk Grove Village Ware did not name specific persons other than to criticize those who oppose the IBI He did say he was surprised that Lt Gov Paul Simon had lowered himself in criticizing the IBI

WARE INDICATED that the public may hear more about the IBI since its financial appropriations are now under discussion in Springfield

A state representative Rolland Tipsword D Taylorville has introduced a bill to abolish the 16-month-old IBI started by Gov Richard Ogilvie

Every once in a while we've taken our lumps but that is to be expected, Ware said

He pointed to the 97 per cent conviction rate the IBI had out of 243 cases that have gone to trial in the last year

THE CRIME rate in Illinois went up two per cent last year while nationally it rose 11 per cent In surrounding states it went up 15 and 16 per cent, he said

Ware said the IBI utilizes every tool in the law enforcement arsenal and that it has yielded results He noted the indictment of Fiore Buccieri the alleged boss of the Chicago crime syndicate

Buccieri who had not been arrested since 1946 was indicted by a DuPage County Grand Jury for involvement in a heavy construction equipment theft ring

The IBI deals with "difficult crime" that local agencies do not have the manpower to cope with Ware said These include the murder of horse trainer George Jayne of Inverness, bombings the Paul Powell scandal, narcotics and dangerous drugs, as well as organized crime

A former TV newsman, Ware criticized the news media for its handling of the raids the IBI made in southern Illinois last month Some of the reports were slanted he said

Defending the IBI's taking television camera crews on the raids in which explosives were discovered, he said he didn't know if it would be done again but that he did not regret it

FORTY-EIGHT persons were arrested However, three Southern Illinois University students who were innocent appeared on national television and were labeled as the chief conspirators

Ware said Cook County State's Atty Edward Hanrahan has told him that he wished he had invited television crews along when state's attorney's police raided the Black Panthers apartment where two members of the gang were killed

Ware said he was glad the IBI had the camera crews on its raids He later added that reports of newsmen who accompanied the IBI on the raids were accurate but that news reports became distorted by other media men who did not accompany the IBI agents on the raids

Ware produced letters from radio and television stations agreeing that any misunderstanding was self-inflicted by the news media

Responding to a recent news report that Ware is apparently the only high state official that requires or accepts money for speaking engagements, he said "I figured I was worth a little if they insist on me as a speaker"

He noted that members of the IBI speak without fee but that when a group wants the top man they should be willing to pay for him

WARE SAID he works hard, often until one or two in the morning and was deserving of some reimbursement

Honorariums have ranged from $100 to $300 for Ware, according to one news report

In response to a question of whether marijuana was harmful, Ware said there are arguments pro and con

He said he preferred to reserve his opinion on the subject, after earlier saying marijuana is not harmless

"The effects are not conclusive that it is harmful," he added

Ware said there is a movement to undermine the principles of the country by revolutionaries who preach overthrow of the government.

Despite all the changes in society, he said mankind will overcome its problems but that there has to be a commitment by man to respect and abide by the law

Following Ware's talk, the Kiwanis membership voted to pass a resolution endorsing and commending the IBI and its director

Northwest Community To Expand Emergency Facilities

With the volume in the emergency room at Northwest Community Hospital Arlington Heights doubling every three and a half years the hospital is planning to quadruple the facility

The emergency department s space will be expanded from 3 000 square feet to over 13 000 square feet when the surgery, surgical recovery, intensive and coronary care and medical records departments move into the new wing next year

Remodeling to expand emergency facilities in 1972 will not interrupt the emergency room which will be receiving over 130 patients each day by the summer of 1972

A new 60-second x-ray and many other specialized devices for immediate trauma diagnosis are scheduled for purchase as p of the expanded department Thes will expedite treatment and eliminate the necessity of moving patients outside of the area for specific services

The number of treatment stations will be tripled from six to 18 or more

The hospital anticipates that the results of the expansion will provide an emergency service to serve a community of 300 000 or more on a day-to day basis with the best possible trauma care at a reasonable cost by 1973

The emergency room at Northwest is now one of the busiest in the state for a small hospital handling more emergencies in 1970 than most hospitals with twice its 223 beds

Since the hospital opened 11 years ago, volume in the emergency department has doubled every three and a half years This trend is expected to continue through the 1970s

Between midnight Friday and midnight Sunday Northwest's emergency room handles about 250 cases Each day during 1970, the average volume ran 74 patients The 1970 total of 26 942 was 2,500 more than 1969 and 5 800 more than the 1968 total of 21 180

The emergency room for most hospitals is an economic burden because it must always be staffed It means salaries are paid for 8 760 hours each year rather than 2 080 hours as in a normal business

Mayer To Cap 20 Years Of Work Tonight At IIT

Tonight will literally ' cap 20 years of work for a Hoffman Estates man

Jack Mayer 273 Kingman Ln will go to Orchestra Hall tonight to receive his Bachelor s Degree in mechanical engineering from Illinois Institute of Technology Tonight s cap and gown ceremony culminates 20 years of night school classes of staying up late poring over books while working at a full time job and rearing a family

The Mayers were married 20 years ago and Mrs Mayer said she does not know how she ll react having for the first time a husband who is not in school Earning his degree has been a family project she said The children have grown up with a healthy respect for keeping quiet during evening study hours

Because this has been in a sense a family affair the whole family will attend commencement tonight to see the husband and father receive his degree

Jack wanted to just take it in the mail said Mrs Mayer but she said she wouldn t have let him skip the occasion for anything

AFTER COMMENCEMENT the Mayers will hold a celebration in their home It will be a chance to start renewing some of the friendships they have lost said Mrs Mayer when they were too busy with homework to keep pace with a social life

The Mayers have lived in Hoffman Estates 12 years after moving from Chicago While they lived in the city, Mayer took a few courses at Wright Junior College But 99 per cent of his classes have been at the institute said Mrs Mayer

Mayer works in Batavia as a mechanical engineer for Dunbar Kappel a manufacturing firm He has held a mechanical engineering license the past five or six years said Mrs Mayer, and receiving his degree will mean nothing to him as far as his job is concerned " For the past few years, he has been attending college only because he had gone so far, it seemed unthinkable not to finish, he said

Now that he is receiving his degree, Mayer does not plan to continue his education He will begin catching up on the things for which he has never had time There have been a lot of books printed in the last 20 years and Mayer looks forward to reading many of them

Mrs Mayer said their life to this point has been different from that of anyone else they know The nights Mayer went to school, usually two or three each week he would leave in the morning and not return home until 10 p m or later Driving from home to Batavia and from Batavia to the institute and then coming home took his full day The other nights were devoted to study His three children John 19 Kathy 17 and Jack 12 learned early to plan their activities so as not to interfere with their father s study hours

It is not the kind of life Mrs Mayer would recommend to anyone else and neither would her husband she said He tells his own children if they plan to go to college they should finish school before marrying she said

But Mayer s accomplishment is one in which his whole family takes pride When they go to Orchestra Hall tonight they plan to be the most enthusiastic cheering section there

Senior Citizens Of Suburbia

Their Motto: Be Active

Mrs. William Hinneberg at her ceramics class.

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(Third in a series)

Murray Tyler, 80, moved from New York to live with his daughter and her family in Palatine.

He misses the ocean and the salt water fish but "there are other things which compensate for that," he smiled. "There are lots of friendly people here."

When Murray first arrived, his daughter inquired about the Leisure Club of Palatine and suggested he attend their next meeting.

"I joined for companionship," he said, "and I found it."

Murray likes to travel and has taken advantage of numerous trips sponsored by either the Leisure Club of Palatine or The Over 50 Club in Arlington Heights, one of the largest organized senior citizen clubs in the immediate area. Recently he returned very sun tanned from two weeks in Hawaii.

REMAINING ACTIVE is an integral part of a senior citizen's life. Keeping busy acts as a youthful tonic. It is not a question of what one has lost, but what one still has to gain and still can do.

"It's very easy to feel sorry for yourself, but you just have to sit down and analyze . . . you're only a drop in the bucket," said Mrs. Marion Chamberlain of Palatine.

Quite active in several senior citizen clubs since her husband died, Mrs. Chamberlain feels it is of utmost importance to keep one's mind occupied. Currently she is president of the Leisure Club.

"Of course you can get bored," she continued. "You have to get out and help yourself. In working with other people with the same kind of problems, you tend to forget about yourself and begin to care about others."

MRS. CHAMBERLAIN likes "to go." Having met many women through the club, she attends luncheons and small afternoon get-togethers and joins other women for shopping.

Transportation is her only barrier. Mrs. Chamberlain must rely on friends, relatives or taxis. She is one of many who find the northwest suburban area sorely lacking in an adequate transportation system.

Mrs. Ethel Carzine of Winston Park in Palatine also laments the problem of transportation. She, too, relies mainly on cabs.

"I wish there was a shopping area close enough to walk," she said. "I miss that."

The senior citizens who still do own cars and drive run somewhat of a minibus service for their friends, picking them up for club meetings and remembering them when shopping is to be done.

MRS. JENNIE MCINNES is just such a person. With a car of her own, she has no problems in getting around wherever and whenever she pleases. Even so, she, too, voices a need for an intersuburb bus system.

When Mrs. McInnes, who resides with her son in Arlington Heights, lost her husband while still in her mid-fifties, she decided to return to work.

"The employment agencies all around here told me I was too old to go back to work so I went down to Chicago."

Mrs. McInnes found secretarial work in a small office and commuted daily for 16 years.

"They've had trouble filling my position," she laughed. "So many of the young girls can't spell."

THE HOURS MRS. MCINNES formerly spent working are now filled with various social activities. The Over Fifty Club of Arlington Heights takes up a great part of her time.

In addition to the weekly meetings, Mrs. McInnes, a past president of the club, attends a ceramic class every Friday morning at Pioneer Park.

Admitting that it was difficult to adjust to her husband's death, the primary reason for her return to work, Mrs. McInnes is presently neither bored nor lonely.

"I'm seldom home," she said. "When women call me who are lonely and depressed about their husbands. I tell them to get out of the house. You just can't sit around and mope."

THE BUFFALO GROVE Over 50 Club, the Golden Agers of Des Plaines and the Leisure Club and Young at Hearts Club, both of Palatine, are examples of organizations in the immediate area who plan various social activities for the senior citizen. Most are sponsored by either local park districts or individual churches, although actual operations are left up to the members themselves.

In addition to the bi-monthly or weekly meetings where members congregate informally and divide up into card playing foursomes, the clubs like to promote all-day field trips and weekend excursions.

Yet sometimes expenses cancel would-be short jogs. If the club is not large, chartering only one bus is an expensive means of travel.

WISTFULLY, A NUMBER of older residents of the northwest suburbs have suggested the possibility of a special senior citizen center, a building all their own and a full-time paid director to organize various activities and special events.

Yet it is far from reality. Even funds that were once appropriated to offset expenses for senior citizen clubs by local townships have been shut off.

HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICTS 211, 214 and 207 help out by offering senior citizens in their area special privileges.

As members of the various Golden Card Clubs, those 65 and over can attend all high school athletic and cultural events in their district free.

Senior citizens may also attend all adult education courses without having to pay tuition. The exception is District 207. Senior citizens in that area are required to pay one-half of the regular tuition.

Mrs. Dorothy Hulse of Rolling Meadows is presently enrolled in a creative writing course offered at Palatine High School.

"It is important to keep busy and oh, how one can still learn," said Mrs. Hulse, who has been interested in writing all her life.

THREE YEARS AGO, one of her short stories appeared in Highlight Magazine for children. Other small items, including several poems, have also been published.

"At 4 a.m. when I'm trying to sleep I often get an idea for a story and must get up and write it down. I'm just finishing up and on my way back to bed when everyone else is just getting up."

Mrs. Hulse, who is a member of the Poets and Patriots of Chicago, does not have to worry about disturbing her son and his family with whom she lives when she decides to burn the midnight oil. One side of the basement has been turned into a comfortable apartment for her including a bedroom, sitting room and small kitchenette. She is lucky to have both companionship and independence.

Dear Dorothy Do you know of any leaves that can be kept green by the glycerin and water method? Magnolia leaves? — Shirley W

An authority on drying arrangements says the only leaves she knows that will stay green are beech leaves You have to cut them in June, then place in a solution of half glycerin and half water with some green vegetable coloring They will stay green indefinitely Magnolia leaves will turn bronze-brown when put in a water-glycerin solution although they will remain soft and pliable

Dear Dorothy I'd like to store my winter clothes in plastic bags Is there any way I can keep moisture from collecting in these bags?— A Holeman

Plastic seems to draw moisture. Can only suggest you poke enough holes in the bags to make them not completely air-tight and yet keep the clothes clean.

They're the 'bees' knees' " and the cat's pajamas ' They're cute and campy guaranteed to draw admiring glances and they're often really beautiful examples of needlework art They're beaded bags, a Victorian-through-20's style which your mother or grandma probably still has in the bottom of her trunk, and you might want to borrow hers for a brand new 70's look

The big department stores are cashing in on the craze with new models at $30 or more You can be smart and find one much prettier, hand-made, at a flea market or antique show at a starting price of $5 and on up, depending upon condition and design

The original handbags were imported from Europe, for the most part The work required an enormous amount of time patience and dexterity Some American firms imported the beaded fabric rather than the finished bag, to escape the import tax on completed articles

THE BEADING WAS usually attached to a backing of velvet or satin, and was closed with a drawstring arrangement at the top with a silken cord One of the oldest type of beaded purse (although these are sometimes made of other materials too) is a 'miser's purse," crocheted or knitted, long and narrow, for keeping coins and small valuables

The plainer ones were also used by men in place of a wallet, so the men have come full circle since the 1840's long hair beards and mustaches, flares fitted jackets Wellington boots, flowing ties and purses'

Linings in the early purses were made of silk and satin, and some had a little pocket on one side for a mirror, which was covered on the back with the lining material

For do-it-yourselfers in the old days, department stores imported closures, beads by the skein, and accessories, plus instructions and patterns for making bags in many sizes and designs These featured geometrics, mostly, while imported ready-made bags usually were of flowers Birds, animals or buildings are rare and command a higher price

BY THE LATE 20's beaded bags were replaced in favor of steel mesh materials smooth and supple as snakeskin, and usually closed with a frame and snap fastener Perhaps you will find just a frame, as a friend did, an ornate one of repousse sterling silver marked "Marshall Field and Co Sterling. Pat Dec 18,89 " She attached a velvet upholstery type "pouch ' lined with white satin, matching the vest she had made of the same material

A dealer told me recently she can't keep a beaded bag in stock "Because of the teen girls buying them up?" I asked "No their mothers," she explained "They use them for evening bags and even for day wear if they aren't too ornate "

My mother was a flapper from her headache band right down to her open galloping galoshes, and next ...me I go down home, I'm going to look in that old trunk in her attic if she has ... already beat me to it'

1,500 Canoeists In River Marathon

Th 14th annual Des Plaines River canoe marathon is expected to draw up to 1 50 canoeists Sunday for a 25 mile race from Libertyville to Foundry Road north of Des Plaines

The race billed as the largest canoe marathon in the country is designed to kick off Clean Streams Week in Illinois and demonstrate the need to improve the condition of this area s rivers and streams so they can be used for recreational purposes

According to Ralph Frese race chairman the interest shown each year in the marathon indicates a demand on the part of area citizens for cleaner rivers and streams

Frese said more than 620 canoes and kayaks and 1 200 paddlers competed in the event last year The marathon is sponsored by the Cook County Forest Preserve District and the Illinois Paddling Council

RACE OFFICIALS will begin launching canoes in heats of 10 boats each at 8 a m Sunday at Oak Spring Road in Libertyville Frese said Canoeists can enter the race for a $2 fee at the launch site up until 11 a m he said

Frese said the racers will compete for prizes in each of 11 categories for boys, girls, men, women, mixed couples, racing canoes, kayaks and one-man canoes The first four winners in each category will receive trophies and all entrants will be given a special marathon patch when they complete the race, Frese said

The marathon dramatically emphasizes the citizens desire for activity of this kind This is why we get such a fantastic turnout in this area and it points out why we need to have the streams cleaned and made fit for uses like this" he said

Where else can you show me 1,200 people going down a trail without leaving a mark on the environment? Compare this to hiking or cycling where 1 200 people can trample a lot under foot With motorcycles and trail bikes it s even worse he said

ACCORDING TO FRESE, Illinois rivers and streams hold a tremendous recreational potential With little open space left in the Chicago metropolitan area he said it is more important now than ever before to clean up waterways that could be used for recreation

Frese suggested spectators who plan to watch the race can get a good view of all the excitement either at the starting point in Libertyville or at Dam Number 2 at Hintz Road and the Des Plaines River in Wheeling

George Dunne, Cook County Board president, is expected to attend the 5 p m awards ceremony at Dam Number 2, Frese said

Rigid Standards Set For Carnivals

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

Carnivals come to town every summer and occasionally even a circus. How safe do you feel riding the ferris wheel or sitting in the bleachers watching the circus?

In most Northwest suburban communities, the carnivals must meet local safety and health requirements and cannot open until they pass inspections

But despite inspections, not all local officials think the carnivals are safe. Sverre Haug, building commissioner in Rolling Meadows, said, "They're dangerous. I'd sooner not see any carnival in town. They have such old machinery; they leave wires laying around."

Rolling Meadows has two carnivals a year, Haug said. He inspects equipment for safety standards before they open. The carnivals are also subject to health inspections if food is served

Richard Dawson, environmental health director for Palatine, said the biggest problem with carnivals and circuses is knowing ahead of time that they're coming

WHEN HE HEARS one will be in town, he sends village regulations so the carnival can comply with local requirements. The village generally has two or three carnivals a year and last year had a circus, the first in ten years

Dawson said the building department makes safety inspections of rides and equipment and he inspects food facilities. The police in Palatine also regulate the type of games that can be offered by the carnival

Mount Prospect police handle carnivals in a similar fashion. The building, fire and health departments also send out inspectors before a carnival opens.

"We're quite forceful. The carnivals must comply with our regulations or not open," a spokesman in the Mount Prospect village clerk's office said

In Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Wheeling health and safety inspections are also mandatory

THE DES PLAINES health officer noted that food stands at carnivals must meet the same code as local restaurants do. "We want to protect restaurant owners since the food stands take business away from them," she said

Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove, and Hanover Park are not as rigid in carnival inspections as the other communities

Elk Grove Village requires that the carnival have proper insurance and suggest to carnival operators that they have their equipment inspected, but the village doesn't have required inspection by its officials, a spokesman in the village clerk's office said.

If food is involved, Elk Grove does a health inspection.

Schaumburg village Clerk Sandy Carsello said no inspections are made by the village since the two carnivals that come to town every year are on private property. "We've had no complaints," she said. Health and food inspections are made.

BUFFALO GROVE has no local ordinance, but expects carnivals to comply with state regulations. Fire, police and health inspections are made by local officials.

Hanover Park has four or five carnivals a year and they must get a permit through the mayor's office. However, they are not subject to inspections unless there's a complaint, Mayor Richard Baker said.

CARNIVALS sponsored by [illegible] organizations or businessmen are frequent site on summer weekends in the Northwest suburbs. To ensure that carnival equipment is safe, most local communities require health and safety inspections.

CLOSED CIRCUIT television in the theaters is here to stay, for better or for worse for richer or poorer and all that

And since circuit TV has become an institution with every great athletic event, we now have a new breed of fans the closed circuit theater breed

Psychologists would have a grand time analyzing the personality of a closed circuit television crowd Why, the psychologists would ask, do thousands of seemingly sane persons scream and yell and cheer and boo at a flat screen with its only features being the action on that screen?

Tuesday I attended my fifth closed circuit event the seventh game of the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs.

I had attended two heavyweight championship fights an Indianapolis 500 and a Daytona 500 in closed circuit theaters, but never before had I seen a closed circuit crowd so involved in an event as I did Tuesday night

One of the first scenes on the screen was referee John Ashley coming on to the ice The closed circuit crowd at the Bismark Theater in Chicago roundly booed Ashley

Now Ashley certainly could not hear the boos coming from the Bismark since the theater is two miles away from the Stadium But the theater fans booed anyway perhaps feeling that they belonged to this hockey game as much as anyone in the Stadium

And that is what this new breed of fan is.

He is a belonger

He is a part of the action

He is "there

The sense of belonging is held by all sports fans It is a very important part of their lives

For instance if you walked the streets of New York City today and asked everyone over 40 years old where they were when Bobby Thomson hit his famous home run in the 1951 playoff, you'd probably have a quarter of a million people saying that they were there and saw it

Of course, the Polo Grounds held less than 35 000 spectators so 250,000 people could not have possibly witnessed Thomson's home run But the New York fans had a sense of "belonging" to that event. They had witnessed and suffered and cheered and prayed all during that long, hectic season from close range, so they felt a part of it

And when Thomson's homer sailed into the left field bleachers, nearly everyone in New York was listening to the late radio broadcaster Russ Hodges go bananas and millions went crazy with him

Hodges painted the picture over the radio for those New Yorkers He gave those millions a sense of belonging That is why probably a quarter of a million or so of those New Yorkers would now say, "I saw Bobby Thomson's home run"

Tuesday's closed circuit television crowd had even a greater sense of belonging than the New Yorkers who listened to that 1951 playoff broadcast

After all, the Hawks and the Canadiens were right there in front of them. There were a couple of thousand fans cheering and booing, trying to pull Chicago through to victory.

If one ever got the feeling of being on the scene while at a theater, it was during the playing of the National Anthem on the screen Two thousand theater fans, despite the fact there was not a flag in sight, stood and solemnly sang the Star Spangled Banner

During the course of the game, the theater fans acted like any of those at the Stadium.

When Dennis Hull, who is not exactly a favorite of Hawk fans, fell down while crossing the blue line, the theater crowd guffawed and booed But when Dennis slapped in the first goal, he was cheered by the crowd like never before in his career and was suddenly a hero Yet, when Dennis flubbed a number of passes in the third period, the theater crowd gave another booing

Despite the fact that Dennis Hull was two miles away

When Eric Nesterenko missed a breakaway shot and later played the puck onto Henri Richard's stick for a goal, the theater fans gave Nesterenko a rough time yelling, "Sonja Sonja!"

During the second period when a Bobby Hull shot caromed off the cross bar, a shot which could have brought the Stanley Cup to Chicago or, at least, sent the Hawks into overtime, the theater crowd loudly moaned

During the latter stages of the third period when it appeared that the Hawks were on their way to defeat, the fans roundly booed every Chicago mishap

The sadness and the disgust got so bad in the last period that in the closing seconds one disheartened fan stood up and yelled toward the screen, "Send Reay to Dallas, we want Gutteridge"

As I said, the psychologists would have a field day analyzing the closed circuit breed of fans Myself included

For years from now when my son asks me if I was there and saw Bobby Hull's shot which could have won the game hit the crossbar, I'll reply

"Yes, son, I was"

HOT CORNER HANDYMAN. Maine West thirdbaseman Dave Arnswald scoops up a line shot and turns it into an out. Arnswald has been playing a slick third base for the Warriors, committing only one error in 17 games. He has also contributed with the bat, hitting .263.

Fan's Forum

MARTIN UNFAIR?

Dear Sirs

I would like to comment on Detroit Tigers manager Billy Martin's criticism of his star outfielder Willie Horton last week

Horton took himself out of the lineup for one game, saying his shoulder had such a knot in it that he could hardly raise his throwing arm Martin said he was disappointed in Horton for not giving his best, saying, "I've played this game with the flu, pneumonia, cracked ribs, broken toes, broken nose and I even played a month and a half after I broke an ankle"

So what? Does this mean that all baseball players should foolishly play with injuries, possibly disabling themselves even further and jeopardizing themselves? Just because Martin insisted on playing the suffering hero role, does that mean all his players must do the same?

Martin has a lot of gall assuming that a player is lazy and "playing hookey" just because he is honest enough to admit an injury If Horton was physically unable to play well (and I think we should take the word of a professional), he would only be hurting his team to continue playing

Name withheld by request

We missed reading about the incident, but if you have quoted Martin accurately, we must agree Only an athlete knows if he is injured enough not to play, and only he should make the decision. — Larry Everhart

"CITY FOR LOSERS"

Dear Sirs

So Chicago blew another one. Now, I suppose we'll hear all summer about how proud we should be of the Black Hawks, how they gave us so much to cheer about

This is a city for losers The big one always gets away and I don't see any chances like this one coming our way for a long, long, long time There's no way they should have blown that two goal lead on their own ice

So that's over And now we get stuck with Durocher and his Cubs, who are too old, Tanner and the White Sox, who are too young, Dooley and his Bears, who can never seem to get straightened out, and Motta and his Bulls, who will always have to face up to Lew Alcindor

Arlington Heights

Much as we hate to admit it, you're right Even though there's always next year, who knows how long it will be before the Hawks are that close to the Stanley Cup again. It was a bitter blow to a city that desperately needs something to really brag about in professional sports — Bob Frisk.

WHY BANKS?

Dear Sir

I am in agreement with a lot of people that Leo Durocher has to go My personal opinion is that Lou Boudreau should be hired as the new manager but, in last week's Fans Forum, Larry Mlynczak mentioned Ernie Banks for manager.

How does he base this opinion?

John Balfo
Des Plaines

If and when Leo goes, the Cubs' new manager must be able to step right in on the scene and know the team, the league and the situation immediately since the Cubs still have a shot at the pennant There can be no trial periods for the new manager. The Cubs can't wait for the new manager to "get his feet wet"

The Cubs' new manager must also relate to his players and get the most out of them The new manager must have the respect of his players.

The new manager must be a knowledgeable baseball veteran who knows the game inside out

Ernie Banks is on the scene right now He knows what is going on around the league. He knows his players.

Banks would give the Cubs a more personal relationship between player-and-manager Everyone speaks highly of Ernie, so he must have the players' respect

Ernie is a 17-year veteran of the major leagues and he's played the game at two positions and has doubled as a player-coach in past seasons.

dear Sirs

Well, I guess that neither of us can say "I told you so" You picked the Bruins I picked the Black Hawks For a while there I thought that I couldwrite this letter happy but now I ll just have to agree with you in what you said in reply to my first letter Wait until next year

Vince Maranto
Arlington Heights

That's the Chicago slogan in all sports, Vince. Wait until next year. —Larry Everhart.

First and second round action of the Central Suburban League tennis meet will begin today at 3 p m at New Trier West and Skokie Playground The semi-finals and the finals will be held on Saturday starting at 9 a m

Maine West and Maine North will compete in the rugged conference action

The Central Suburban League track meet will be held at Maine South Saturday at 10 30 a m In the CSL indoor championships, Maine South finished in first place, Maine West second and Glenbrook North third The outdoor battle for first place could very well be among this trio again

Notre Dame will compete in the Suburban Catholic Conference track meet Saturday at Wheaton College at 9 30 a m

Maine North will go against Deerfield in a baseball doubleheader Saturday at 10 30 a m at Maine South

KEYSTONE COMBO. Maine West's Ken Schroeder (foreground) and Dan Moss have bailed out Warrior pitchers in a number of situations with doubleplays around second base. In the last seven games, the Warriors have turned over six doubleplays. Both shortstop Schroeder and secondbaseman Moss are hitting around the 300 mark.

Brosnan To Speak At East Banquet

Maine East Athletic Boosters Club President, Ray Gross, announced recently that the 1971 Spring Sports Awards Night honoring Demon athletes who participated in baseball golf tennis and track will take place Wednesday, May 26, 1971, in the Maine East auditorium starting at 7 30 p m

In the baseball segment of the awards presentation Jim Brosnan former major league pitcher, will be a guest speaker

Gross urged all parents and families of those being honored to attend the affair Refreshments will be served in the school cafeteria following the close of the presentation of awards

Brosnan is the author of the famous baseball book "The Long Season"

500 In Class By Itself

by BOB COCHNAR

To begin with don t ever call it The Indy

After all if any motor race can be considered dignified (tradition does cloak an event in dignity) it is the Indianapolis 500 Indy' smacks of the crass and the commonplace Besides the 500 is serious.

It is inextricably entwined with a kind of Midwestern machismo which makes even a mildly negative attitude toward the race somewhat dangerous, at least within a 200-mile radius of ground zero on race day

Why this should be so, even after more than 50 years is something for the philosophers to debate In Indiana, May is 500 month From May 15 on, middle America is infected with the spirit and on race day even effete Easterners emerge from their cocoons and say to each other knowingly, "Andretti is bound to do it again" (At any other time, those same Easterners will ask pretentiously, 'Andretti who?")

This year, there is a slight departure from tradition The Race will be run on May 29, the Saturday before Memorial Day. And another tradition, established last year, continues Once again, there's a purse of more than $1 million — $1,003,610, to be precise

There are 76 entries from which 33 will be chosen in qualifying rounds. The unselected either sit around nursing damaged egos or, more realistically, begin to wonder how they'll pay the staggering setting-up bills. There's not even a piece of the purse to hope for

A J Foyt will be looking for a fourth victory, which would be unprecedented He won in 1961, 1964 and 1967

Once again, creative car owners have come up with screwball names for their machines, like "Sugarpe Prune Special" "Joe Hunt Magneto Special," "Indy on a Shoestring," "STP Keep Kool Radiator Treatment Special," "Minnesota Serendipity Special," and the best, "Need a Sponsor Special"

Five hundred miles, it should be remembered, is not a Sunday drive And thrashing pell-mell around a squared-off oval is not necessarily fun Forget about those who sniff that driving Indianapolis is easy, that all one doe does is stamp on it and turn left There are some 2,000 of those turns and each one, believe it or not, is not the same

Each driver must plan his race with extreme care, knowing that his plan may change seconds after he has formed it

Sportswriter Phil Stroud may have put his finger on the Indianapolis undercurrent when he wrote

"There is an intangible creeping fright here. The 500 threatens to show you all, but when you are there, a party to it, you pray you will be spared from seeing it all. This is a huge business, involving millions of dollars, international reputations and billboards from here to Rhodesia.

"It still is a kind of monster, an enigma which nobody completely understands No, not even the men of heart and soul and electrifying skills who drive 20 inches from the concrete"

The 500 is, simply, the 500, and nothing else

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Norsemen Fall To Niles North

Despite outhitting Niles North 8-6 Maine North lost to the Vikings 6-1 on the winner's baseball diamond Wednesday

Maine North took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fourth inning when Gary Halls slammed a triple and scored on a single by Ken Spain

Niles North scored all of its runs in the bottom of the fifth on five walks, two singles, a wild pitch and a catcher's interference The Vikings tallied six runs in that frame without hitting the ball out of the infield

Dave Eck paced the Maine North batting attack with two singles in three at bats

The Norsemen will take on Deerfield for a doubleheader Saturday at Maine South, starting at 10 30 a m Maine North has a 9-7-1 record in its first baseball season
